Police grill 4 in Gregg St. shooting

Bullet kills girl, 17

By ED SUMMERS

A 17-year-old Chillicothe girl was fatally wounded early Friday in a shooting at a Gregg Street home.

Police Chief Rodman Scott identified the dead girl as Demeatris Louise Winfield of 250 Locust St., Chillicothe. She was pronounced dead on arrival at University Hospital, Columbus, shortly after 5 a.m.

County Coroner Dr. Ralph Gebhart said death was caused by a gunshot wound to the left side of her head near the ear. The bullet, the caliber as yet unknown, was still lodged in her brain, X-rays revealed. Dr. Gebhart said the death was an apparent homicide.

Police have taken four local men into custody for questioning, all of them believed to have been at the residence at the time of the shooting. Officers are attempting to locate two others. Chief Scott said no charges have yet been filed in the shooting. A pistol was the apparent weapon.

Chillicothe police picked up two of the apparent witnesses shortly before 11 a.m. and local officers were en route there to question the pair.

POLICE DISPATCHER Mike Taylor said he was notified of the shooting by Esto Haithcock Jr., Delaware St., Steve Robinson, Bloomingburg, and Leonard Kelley, who lives at the shooting scene. Taylor said he met the trio at the door of police headquarters after hearing a horn blowing on Fayette Street in front of the building. They told Taylor there had been a shooting at 721 Gregg Street and to send an ambulance there.

Sgt. Charles Long immediately was dispatched to the scene where he found the girl lying on her right side on a couch in the front room of the residence. He said she was bleeding from the left side of her head.

The girl was taken to Memorial Hospital and then sent to University Hospital, Columbus, where she was pronounced dead on arrival. The body was returned to Memorial Hospital for a coroner's ruling and X-rays.

LONG SAID that when he arrived on the scene John A. Brown, 21, Rt. 1, Frankfort, was sitting on the couch, leaning over the girl. Brown later told officers he and the girl were alone in the house when someone forced their way inside through the back entrance. Brown said the intruder then entered the front room and shot the girl in the head.

There were six persons at the residence when officers arrived at the scene. Three men were taken to police headquarters for questioning at the time and the other man was apprehended by officers about 8:30 a.m. Two girls, one presently in custody of Chillicothe police, also are sought for questioning.

"We believe the girl was shot in the room where she was found," Chief Scott said. "We are trying to determine

Decision will affect 4,650 districts

Nixon to release school funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today confirmed it will release $507 million in impact aid to thousands of school districts located near federal installations.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said a statement will be released later explaining how the money will be distributed.

The decision marks a sharp turnaround in thinking at the White House. Earlier, it had impounded a substantial portion of the funds.

The impact aid to be distributed to some 4,650 school districts by midyear includes $68 million in one-time assistance to areas hit by Tropical Storm Agnes last June.

The decision will be especially important to districts with large numbers of non-military federal employes living but not working in their communities. Many had feared they would lose millions of dollars already locked into their budgets.

The allocations will be prorated under last year's formula, HEW sources said.

Districts will receive 100 per cent of their entitlement if children of federal employes living and working on federal premises make up at least 25 per cent of total enrollment, 90 per cent if less than 25 per cent of enrollment, and 73 per cent in other categories.

The entitlement figures are based on what districts would have received had the program been funded at 100 per cent of authorization.

Most of the money in the 22-year-old program goes to school districts on the basis of two categories. Children in Category A are those who live on federal property and attend nearby public schools. Parents of Category B children live in private residential areas but work at federal installations.

Until now, the U.S. Office of Education had been distributing 1972-73 funds only for Category A, which has the heaviest impact on local tax revenues, and for Category B children whose parents are in the military.

This eliminated aid to districts with heavy concentrations of non-military federal employes who work on government installations.

School districts in every state, and in nearly all the 435 congressional districts, will receive money because of the new decision.

About 4,650 districts have received "B" funds in the past, and 1,650 have claimed "A" children as well.

Last year Congress appropriated $592.5 million for impact aid, roughly two-thirds of it for children whose parents live in private residential areas.

Letters announcing the decision to school districts will be prepared next week, HEW officials said. A breakdown of allocations was not immediately available.

Air collision fatal to 16 probed

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — "The flames were 30 to 40 feet in the air and the wreckage was covered with black smoke. There was no way to get in there."

Fireman Ron Kimball was describing the scene after a National Aeronautics and Space Administration plane and a Navy aircraft collided in flight, plummeted onto a golf course in piggyback fashion, exploded and burned. Sixteen men aboard the planes died; one was critically injured.

"The one plane just set down on top of the other," said David Frame, 25, who was working on the Sunnyvale Municipal Golf Course when the planes crashed Thursday. None of the golfers or employes on the course was hurt.

The Navy immediately named a board of investigation to try to learn why the two four-engine planes were so close while approaching the Navy's Moffett Field, less than a half mile away. Both aircraft were on short test flights from Moffett.

Eleven of the men killed were in a Convair 990, a $2.5 million transport-type jet the National Aeronautics and Space Administration used as a flying laboratory.

The other five victims and the survivor were aboard a Navy P3 Orion turboprop, described by the Navy as a $10 million submarine chaser.

"The two aircraft were on their final approach, and the turbopop was in front of the jet," said Bill Brand, 47, the fire chief at Ketchum, Idaho, who witnessed the crash from a practice fire tower about a mile away where he was working with Mountain View firemen.

"The jet was gradually overtaking when the turboprop pulled up vertically," said Brand, who also is a pilot. "Then one of the jets caught the tail of the turboprop and turned it over."

The planes came down locked, with the Navy plane beneath.

"People just started to run," recalled Denny Castillo, an 18-year-old caddy. "Someone yelled, 'It's going to blow up.'"

PO 3. C. Bruce N. Mallibert, 22, of Mountain View, an antisubmarine warfare technician, was thrown clear of the Navy plane. He was taken to a hospital, where doctors said he was in critical condition with burns and fractures.

A golfer had covered Mallibert with his parachute, believing him dead, when Kimball reached the crash scene.

"People threw a chute over the body, but I yanked it off and felt his pulse and he was alive," Kimball said.

It was nearly three hours after the crash before the first bodies could be removed.

Debris was scattered over a 100-yard radius of the golf course, which borders busy Interstate 101 about 45 miles south of San Francisco.

The crash was within 100 yards of the freeway, over which planes approaching Moffett usually cross at an altitude of from 50 to 100 feet as they come in on a north by northwest course, a NASA official said.

Apathy reported in Ohio primary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Indifference and confusion over election issues are two reasons why Ohioans may avoid the polls for the May 8 primary.

Election officials in four Ohio counties report registration for this off-year election is "very light."

Voters can register until April 27 in districts holding special elections, but the deadline was April 9 for all Ohio districts which have a May primary with candidates on the ballot.

The issues failing to attract the voters include proposals to amend the Ohio Constitution to permit a state lottery; permit taxing for construction of sanitary sewers and waterlines; repeal a provision which disqualifies convicted embezzlers of public funds from holding any office in the state, and prevent any person holding public money for disbursement, or otherwise, from having a seat in the legislature until the money is paid to the treasurer.

James Marsh, of the Ohio Secretary of State's office, said the seven constitutional amendment proposals on the ballot have not generated a large registration turnout.

"One-half or more of the counties have no election except the constitutional issues," Marsh said.

He added that the recently-enfranchised 18-year-olds helped swell 1972 voter registration, but the count was not much higher than the 1960 election.

Other county officials report youth registration has been very light for the primary.

In Lucas County, where registration closes April 27, some 95 to 100 students from an area high school took a school bus to register Wednesday morning.

Andrew Orevets, assistant director of the Lucas County Board, said registration has been "nothing to brag about."

Mrs. Janet Frentfos, assistant director of the Delaware County Board of Elections, said there is "no comparison" between registrations for the primary and general elections.

"Voters say they are confused. When they see the ballot, they don't know what they are voting on," Mrs. Frentfos said.

Report truce violations

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government charged the Communists with 171 more cease-fire violations today, the largest number in nearly a month.

The Saigon command said the defensive perimeter around Hue came under heavy bombardment, and North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops made a frontal assault against an infantry position in the hills 15 miles southwest of the city.

Lake dragging work resumed

The search for the body of a 20-year-old Stoutsville man, who drowned Sunday evening when his boat capsized at Deer Creek Reservoir, moved into its fifth day Friday.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Friday noon that the Deer Creek area is being closed to the public until the body is found.

Pickaway County sheriff's deputies said dragging and diving operations for the body of Darrell Wheeler resumed again about 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Weather was favorable Friday for the searchers as strong winds and cold had hampered the operations the previous four days.

Sheriff's deputies said a plane would be used during Friday's operations in an attempt to spot the body.

Wheeler and three Circleville residents were riding in a motor boat which capsized on the lake shortly after 6:30 p.m. Sunday. The three others were pulled from the water by three Columbus men who were near the scene when the accident occurred. None of the three was seriously injured.

World farm trade fight opens

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle is shaping up between the National Farmers Union and the Nixon administration over world farm trade and how a growing reliance on exports as dollar-earners might affect U.S. producers.

The administration wants Congress to write new farm legislation this year along the lines of the present Agricultural Act of 1970, but including more flexibility and authority for carrying out crop acreage programs and goals.

At the same time, the White House is seeking a freer hand in world trade. Farm products figure prominently in Nixon plans for future trade expansion, including heavy reliance on exports as a key to farm prosperity.

But the National Farmers Union, in views shared by some other general farm and commodity groups, says the pitfalls of opening up federal programs further are too risky and that currently large export markets are not all that dependable for the future.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, in Paris this week for a meeting of foreign agricultural ministers, sounded the administration view in a speech Wednesday.

"We see a basic consistency between our approach to domestic agriculture and goals in international trade," Butz told the meeting. "The idea of freeing American agriculture to produce is entirely consistent with our desire for a liberal trade system that permits American agriculture to compete."

Butz told the meeting, held under the auspices of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, that the United States has moved on its own in recent months toward a market-oriented agriculture by expanding crop production, eliminating export subsidies and encouraging larger U.S. meat imports.

But at a farm meeting in Wichita, Kan., Weldon V. Barton, NFU assistant legislative director, took a dimmer view of the Nixon quest for more agricultural freedom and farm trade expansion.

Barton charged that the administration, faced with what he judges to be a growing balance of payments problem, plans to use farm export expansion as a hedge against rising import requirements for oil and other fuel.

"The most powerful force at work is the growing awareness that the U.S. will import several billion dollars more of oil and related fuels before the end of the 1970s," Barton said.

POW debriefings studied for possible legal action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military officials are studying transcripts of the debriefing sessions with freed POWs to determine whether there is a basis for misconduct charges against a dozen of the 566 returned U.S. war prisoners.

After analyzing the mass of material, legal officers expect to be able to advise certain former war prisoners if there is enough evidence to warrant formal charges against other American military men for actions while held captive by the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong.

Some officers came out of the POW compounds in a mood to file charges against men they felt cooperated willingly with the enemy. Several are reported to have mellowed since their release but others are said to remain adamant.

Pentagon sources said the sifting of debriefing transcripts is informal. If formal charges follow, they said, there will be full-fledged investigations before any decisions are made on bringing freed POWs to trial before court-martial.

Civilian Defense Department officials have emphasized there will be no prosecutions for making propaganda statements while a war prisoner.

But, under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, a serviceman of any rank may file charges against another.

Dr. Roger Shields, head of the Pentagon's POW-repatriation program, told a news conference Thursday that "there are no charges pending against any man who has returned, right now."

Asked whether investigations are under way, he said: "I really don't care to comment in this area ... if there were investigations or if anything else were going on it would indicate something improper. I don't think we ought to indicate anything at all."

Many returned POWs have acknowledged signing antiwar statements; making broadcast tapes, and similar actions, but said they did so only after undergoing torture and severe beatings.

However, several POWs have said privately some Americans cooperated willingly and made propaganda statements without being tortured.

These are the men who may face charges.

Ohio House budget showdown delayed

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio House Finance Committee has put off until Monday a showdown on the administration's $9.8 billion budget bill which leaders want ready for a floor vote Wednesday.

Chairman Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, had planned to hold committee members over after Thursday's legislative adjournment, but said he decided to give them the weekend to consider amendments.

He said he will call for final discussions and a committee vote at a meeting starting Monday at 10 a.m. Leaders have scheduled a 10-day Easter recess after Wednesday sessions.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore Gray, R-3 Columbus, announced an unusual Monday night Senate floor session so members of that chamber can go home Wednesday afternoon. He also moved Wednesday night committee hearings up to Monday night. The lawmakers normally begin their work week on Tuesday and remain through Thursday.

Although majority Democrats have the votes to get the budget bill on to the Senate next week, Republicans served notice they want changes in it and are geared to work over welfare appropriations.

Rep. Sam Speck, D-95 New Concord, criticized Thursday what he said were "vague, indefinite" proposals by the administration in welfare spending. He said many questions remain unanswered about welfare programs, and that he will propose that the legislature pass a welfare budget for only one year.

The budget proposed by Gov. John Gilligan would finance state government for two years starting next July 1. The $9.8 billion total compares to $8.1 billion for the state biennium which ends June 30.

New bills continued to pour into the two chambers Thursday in advance of an agreed bill cutoff date of April 18. The Senate received 14, bringing its total to 240. Twenty-four more House measures brought the total in that chamber to 610.

The House, after a flurry of debate, passed 80-4 and sent to the Senate an emergency bill to authorize interim payments to doctors, hospitals, and others providing health care for the indigent under the federal Medicaid program. The state has been running months behind in the payments as a

Ohio safety slogan wins for woman

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Elsie Weldon of Baltimore was named grand winner today of the 1973 Ohio highway safety slogan contest for submitting the slogan, "Slow Up Today— Show Up Tomorrow."

Gov. John J. Gilligan presented the award to Mrs. Weldon at a luncheon sponsored by the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents.

Mrs. Weldon was given free use of a leased sports car for a year, including insurance. The auto has Gov. Gilligan's No. 1 license plate.

In the under 18-year-old category, Brian Walter, 17, of Utica, took first place with "Buckle Up, Buckeyes." He was awarded $35.

Second and third place winner in the under 18 category were Amy DeBlase, 16, of Piqua and Pamela Eveland, 14, of Crooksville.

The Ohio Association of Insurance Agents co-sponsored the slogan-essay contest with the Department of Highway Safety.

Boyd pushed for post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, has recommended the appointment of Columbus attorney Robert E. Boyd Jr., to the U. S. District judgeship for Southern Ohio, the Columbus Dispatch said today.

Saxbe has submitted the name of the 46-year-old Boyd to the U.S. Department of Justice for clearance, the newspaper said.

If approved by the department, Boyd would be nominated for the post by President Nixon, subject to Senate confirmation.

The vacancy on the bench is caused by the retirement of Judge Carl A. Weinman of Dayton.

Boyd was in Saxbe's law office when Saxbe was in private practice and served as first assistant when Saxbe was state attorney general.

Broadcaster Jim Runyon dies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Jim Runyon, veteran Cleveland disc jockey who resigned from radio station WWWE in March because of ill health, died today in Lutheran Medical Center.

Runyon, 42, had been off the air for two weeks prior to his resignation March 15 while undergoing tests at the medical center.

His illness also forced him to relinquish his role as host of "The Gene Carroll Show With Jim Runyon," an amateur talent program telecast at noon Sundays on WEWS-TV.

Runyon also had been host for an amateur talent program on WHIO-TV in Dayton a few years ago. He had been at the helm of the Carroll show since May, 1972. Carroll died March 5, 1972, but had taped several shows in advance.

Shoe burglars like neatness

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — When William Crowe went to the shelves of his shoe store to look for a certain pair the box was bare.

He started looking in other boxes. All shoes were gone from 245 boxes.

Police said thieves apparently took the shoes — worth about $6,500 — and replaced the boxes.

"A pile of empty boxes on the floor would attract attention, I guess," said Crowe. "I wonder if they had the sense to tie the pairs together. Otherwise they are going to spend Friday the 13th with a headache of sorting."

Extend tax deadline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan today said Ohio's district tax offices would remain open all day Saturday and until midnight Monday to accommodate persons filing their state income tax. The filing deadline is midnight Monday.

Ethics backers on Holiday trip to Acapulco

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman and two members of the House Committee considering ethics legislation for public officials are attending a week-long auto dealers convention at the posh Princess Hotel in Acapulco, Mexico.

None of the politicians or convention officers could be reached to establish who paid the bill for the trip, but a hotel spokesman said the lawmakers' hotel bill will be paid by the Ohio Automobile Dealers' Association.

Listed as guests at the hotel were:

—Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, chairman of the State Government Committee, which held a hearing on the ethics bill Wednesday.

—Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, a longtime sponsor of ethics legislation and a member of the subcommittee which reported the bill to the committee two weeks ago.

—Rep. Arthur R. Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, another member of the State Government Committee, which is to vote on the bill next Tuesday.

—Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown.

Airline officials said the one-week round-trip excursion fare between Columbus and Acapulco is $250. Double room rates (including two meals) at the Princess Hotel start at $68 per day.

Officials at Port Columbus International Airport said two chartered planes carrying 307 persons from Columbus to Acapulco left here last Friday morning end were due back late tonight.

The Auto Dealers Association made headlines a year ago when the Cleveland Plain Dealer reported six legislators—and five wives—had been given a cut-rate, one-week vacation package to attend the group's annual conclave in Honolulu.

Several days later, the newspaper reported, all 11 were bumped off the association's return charter flight when the airline learned they were not members of the association.

The ethics bill, one of Gov. John Gilligan's top priorities, has been touted by the administration as an attempt to help restore public confidence in the government.

Under one provision of the proposed measure, it would be a misdemeanor for a public official to "use his official position to secure provisions for him that would not ordinarily accrue to him in the performance of his official duty."

If convicted, the official would be subject to removal from office.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Following is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

A large, cool high pressure centered over the upper Great Lakes was forecast to push through Ohio today, bringing sunny skies, but cool temperatures.

Fine spring weather is forecast for the weekend, with the nearest storm system expected to affect Ohio two days away.

Skies were clear this morning except for some clouds in the northeast where a few snow flurries were reported.

Temperatures fell to the mid to upper 20s across Ohio as cold air arrived with the high.

Cleveland was the only weather office reporting overnight precipitation, and there it consisted of only a few flurries.

Most of the snow which fell in central Ohio Thursday morning melted Thursday afternoon as temperatures climbed into the 40s. Snowfall amounts totaled as much as five inches.

Gradually warming temperatures are forecast for the weekend, with readings in the 50s and 60s expected.

exactly what happened and have filed no charges at this time."

Agents from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation were at the shooting scene for about two hours Friday morning, assisting police in the investigation.

The body of the Winfield girl was taken to Davidson Laboratories, Columbus, for an autopsy and removal of the bullet. Chief Scott said one of his officers was accompanying the body to return the bullet.

The pistol used in the shooting has not been found.

Hold Arab citizens

TEL AVIV (AP) — Acting on data from documents captured in raids on Arab guerrillas in Beirut, Israeli officials arrested a dozen Arab citizens today on suspicion of having links with the Palestinian guerrillas, police said.

A judge in northern Israel, where the suspects reside, ordered them held for 15 days pending court proceedings. They include a British-educated intellectual from Nazareth.

Industries face pricing questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a showdown set next week on the future of wage-price controls, the Nixon administration has summoned representatives of key industries to find out why their prices have skyrocketed.

The Cost of Living Council will call in representatives from the textile, canning, paper, nonferrous-metal and machine-tool industries, among others, it was learned. "We want to try to find out more about these industries, take a harder look at the problem areas," a council source said.

The goal is to try to hold downs these prices.

The industry sessions will open next week and will continue for several weeks.

The council has been edging back toward Phase 2-type mandatory controls in several problem areas as Congress debates proposed new ceilings on prices.

Meantime, House Democratic leaders decided Thursday that legislation to set ceilings on most prices and interest rates at their March 16 levels will go to the House floor Monday and a vote will come later in the week. If the bill passes the House, it must go to a Senate House conference.

Congress plans to adjourn next Thursday for an Easter recess. If it does so without approving President Nixon's request for a one-year extension of his authority to control wages and prices, the power would expire 11 days later.

The Nixon administration wants a simple extension of the law and is strongly opposed to the proposed price ceilings up for a House vote.

The administration criticized a proposal that would have extended controls temporarily for 60 days while Congress debated the bill. This would have caused companies to raise prices in anticipation of stronger controls by Congress, administration officials said.

The bill up for a House vote would roll back rents back to the Jan. 10 level while allowing landlords to pass on, dollar-for-dollar, increases in taxes and other costs.

The president would be required within 60 days to bring about further rollbacks in prices or explain why they were not feasible.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said recently the congressional ceilings are not workable and hinted that Nixon might veto them, leaving the nation without controls.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday in New York that the answer to "rampant runaway inflation" is "a complete freeze without time duration."

The Arkansas Democrat said he has suggested to Nixon that the only way to control rising prices is to "go back where he was on Aug. 15, 1971." That was the date on which Nixon began a 90-day freeze on wages and prices.

Mills would exempt interest rates and agricultural products at the farm level from the freeze.

Stock list moves lower

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market poked downward in listless trading today as investors took a breather from a four-day rally and sat back to see what the administration was going to do about inflation.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was down 7.30 points at 956.73. Declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange outpaced advancers 696 to 416.

The most-active issue on the Big Board was Beneficial Corp., down 1⅜ at 37¼. A 241,900-share block traded at 36⅝, off 2.

On the American Stock Exchange, trading was also light, with advances and declines running about even. The noon price-change index was off .02 at 24.19. The most-active issue was Great Basins Petroleum, up ½ at 3⅝.

The noon broad-based NYSE index of some 1,400 common stocks was down 0.37 at 59.53.

Judge attacks Nixon powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court showdown is shaping up in the growing controversy over presidential power—if the Nixon administration wants to test the issue.

Federal judges within the last two weeks have disagreed with White House actions. The Nixon administration has yet to say whether it will appeal the decisions that ruled against presidential power to impound appropriated funds and halted dismemberment of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Administration maintained that both questions were political ones to be thrashed out between the President and Congress without a judicial referee.

In each case, that argument was rejected by the courts.

In halting as illegal the administration's plan to abolish OEO, U.S. District Court Judge William Jones placed his assessment of the government's present policy in stark terms.

The government "really argues that the Constitution confers the discretionary power upon the president to refuse to execute laws passed by Congress with which he disagrees," Jones wrote Wednesday.

Jones ruled to the contrary as did the U.S. Circuit Court at St. Louis in a much more-limited opinion issued last week.

result of federal-state red tape, and some providers claim they are bankrupt.

Rep. Richard F. Celeste, D-5 Cleveland, the main sponsor, said the bill would authorize payments to providers who have not collected 35 per cent or more of their bills since last September. Payments would be up to 35 per cent of the bills they submitted in the calendar years 1971 and 1972, Celeste explained.

Rep. Rodney Hughes, R-78 Bellefontaine, charged that the backlog in payments was a result of "bureaucratic bungling" in the Welfare Department and added: "I would urge the defeat of this silly bill. It would only create further chaos in the Welfare Department."

Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, joined in the criticism of the department although he voted for the bill.

"This is a bill of solid good intentions growing out of a boondoggle the size of which the state hasn't seen in years," Kurfess said.

Rep. Ethel G. Swanbeck, R-72 Huron, chided her fellow Republicans for their criticism of the bill.

"We're only going to clear this up if you get politics out of your minds," she said. Mrs. Swanbeck, the wife of a doctor, said the backlog started in 1954 and speeded up in the last eight years.

A bill that grew out of Ohio's recent hog cholera epidemic was one of two measures that passed the Senate. It authorizes the director of agriculture to quarantine geographic areas of disease rather than individual farms as provided in the present law.

Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, said the measure also sets penalties for quarantine violations and increases the amounts the state may pay for animals ordered destroyed.

First-time quarantine violators would be subject to a fine of $100 to $300, and subsequent violations would be punishable by a fine of $200 to $500, and 90 days to six months' imprisonment, or both.

The measure increases from $40 to $50 per head the amount that could be paid for a destroyed "grade" animal, and from the $70 to $100 the payment for registered purebreds.

Also approved and sent to the House was a bill by Sen. Richard G. Reichel, R-29 Massillon, exempting transfers of real estate to non-profit organizations such as churches from the real estate transfer tax. The tax is a mandated one mill in all counties, but some have added a piggyback levy of three mills under state permissive tax laws, Reichel said. The exemption would apply to the piggyback tax as well, he added.

2nd meat boycott planned in May

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An organizer of the nationwide meat boycott the first week in April says there'll be another the first week of May.

June Donavan, chairman of Fight Inflation Together, announced a second boycott Thursday, saying prices are "still outrageous." She said the new campaign will run from April 30 through May 6.

FIT organized the first nationwide boycott and went ahead with it despite President Nixon's last-minute order freezing meat prices at late March levels.

Judge rejects Watergate secrecy request

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal district court judge has refused the request of Sen. Sam J. Ervin to suppress publication of future lawsuit testimony by Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles Richey ruled Thursday that such an order would violate the independence of the court and the public's right to free speech and free press.

Ervin heads a Senate unit investigating the Watergate wiretapping and other political espionage. He argued in an April 9 letter to Richey that McCord's testimony should be sealed to prevent "premature public release" and to avoid "unfair public implications of persons in criminal activities who may be innocent."

McCord is scheduled to begin telling what he knows soon about the Watergate burglary and related events to lawyers representing the Democratic and Republican parties in suits arising from the case.

Unlike McCord's previous testimony before a federal grand jury and Ervin's Senate committee, the lawsuit depositions will be made public as soon as transcripts are ready. This could be within a few days.

Ervin's committee, engaged in staff investigations, has yet to schedule a start for its promised public hearings.

McCord had planned to hold a news conference before release of thenlawsuit testimony but Thursday his lawyers called it off. One of them said it was because Ervin objected.

Qualified sources have reported that McCord, in his grand jury testimony, said he had received $3,000 a month to keep quiet, and that other defendants received $1,000 a month.

He reportedly said the money came from Mrs. Howard Hunt, wife of another of the Watergate conspirators, and that she told him it came from Kenneth W. Parkinson, an attorney for President Nixon's re-election committee. Mrs. Hunt died in a commercial plane crash last December.

Parkinson was present in court Thursday, representing the Republicans in the civil actions. He again denied McCord's reported allegation, and argued strongly against sealing McCord's future testimony.

"If ever a deposition in a civil case ought not to be under seal it is that of James McCord," Parkinson said.

In other Watergate developments:

—Clark MacGregor, who headed the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President, was quoted by the Christian Science Monitor as saying "public anger has probably deepened" over the Watergate affair, which he said probably cost Mr. Nixon "between three quarters of a million and a million and a half votes." MacGregor said when he took over the committee he asked "each of the principals in the committee" whether they had any knowledge of Watergate and "I got a straight, factural, look-me-in-the-eye negative."

—George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said President Nixon "fully understands the Watergate problem" and "will clear it up totally." He wouldn't elaborate.

U.S. rips Arab charges as lies

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States and the Arab world headed into a confrontation at the U.N. Security Council today over Palestinian charges of U.S. involvement in the Israeli raid on Beirut.

Delegates predicted the debate, which started late Thursday and could stretch over the weekend, would produce the second U.S. veto in the council in less than a month.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat was en route to U. N. headquarters to deliver a major speech.

Arab anger over the Israeli slaying of three Palestinian leaders in Beirut Tuesday was matched by official U. S. anger over Palestinian broadcasts charging American involvement.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers called envoys of 13 Arab countries to his office in Washington and asked them to have their government radios carry the U.S. denial of the charges as an "absolute falsehood."

U. S. Ambassador John A. Scali told the Security Council "the monstrous accusation that the United States somehow helped carry out the events in Lebanon ... originated with those who oppose at all costs and by any means a peaceful settlement."

Scali warned that the Palestinian accusations could encourage new violence, presumably meaning against Americans. He demanded that "all governments concerned ... disassociate themselves from this outrageous lie and take steps to prevent the spread of such slander, which can do great harm to the cause of peace."

Lebanon called on the council to produce a resolution against Israel stronger than condemnation. Ambassador Edouard Ghorra asked the council to use "force—moral force, political force, legal force" to punish Israel and end "Israeli aggression against Lebanon. Condemnation of her action is not enough."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah in reply charged that Lebanon "has convened the Security Council to ask license for the continuation of terrorism."

He said the raids against Lebanon were undertaken out of "necessity to stamp out such outrages as the Lod Airport massacre and the Munich murders," the "assassination of diplomats in Khartoum" and the Palestinian attacks last Monday on an Israeli airliner and the Israeli ambassador's home in Cyprus.

Kroger reports lower earnings

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The president of Kroger Co. told the annual stockholders meeting Thursday that sales are up but rising costs, particularly in the wholesale food industry, led to lower earnings.

A 32½-cent dividend for all shareholders of record April 27, payable June 1, was declared by the board of directors.

President James P. Herring reported an 11 per cent rise in sales for the first quarter ending March 24. The $928 million total compared to $836 million for the same period in 1972.

Herring said there were 4,000 wholesale cost increases in food items.

Songwriter succumbs

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Arthur Freed, 78, movie producer and songwriter who won two Academy Awards for best picture, died Thursday. His Oscars came for "American in Paris" and "Gigi." He collaborated on the songs "Singing in the Rain" and "You were Meant for Me."

No bread? Try some cake!

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has rubbed some more salt in the wounds of housewives engaged in the Battle of the Supermarket. Rising food prices, we are told, have brought the biggest monthly cost-of-living jump in 22 years.

This lends a probably unintended air of prediction to James McLane's urging that people with food budget problems "eat a little less" to relieve the pressure. As the upward trend continues, many may have to do just that.

McLane, who is deputy director of the Cost of Living Council, delivered himself of this advice in response to questions about what remedies the government might have in mind. Doubtless he was just trying to be helpful. Unfortunately, his remark echoed that famous one attributed to a French queen around the time of the revolution: upon being told that the people had no bread, she is said to have retorted, "Let them eat cake."

A strained comparison? Perhaps. Yet what is one to make of a high public official in comfortable circumstances who seems so callously insensitive to the harsh problems which confronted large families with small incomes?

McLane and others of like mind would do well to exhibit less wit and more empathy. The supply of cake may run out.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Reflections on the eve of April 15

Irwin Schiff, an economist friend of mine who has a well-earned reputation not only as an analyst but as a prophet, has asked a leading question of the Internal Revenue Service.

The U.S. government itself has officially stated that $1,000 U.S. dollars as of Feb. 11, 1973, had lost $100 in value by Feb. 12 because of the devaluation. Since the dollar is now officially worth only 90 cents, Mr. Schiff wonders why it wouldn't be legal to knock 10 per cent off one's income for tax purposes.

"Financially," he says, "it makes no difference if a taxpayer loses purchasing power by losing money himself (and thus creating a tax deductible loss) or if the government loses purchasing power for him by devaluating the money he owns or has a claim to."

Mr. Schiff is being wryly facetious, of course. For two generations now the government has been taking capital gains without reference to the inflation that has cut the value of the dollar in half.

EVER SINCE the Supreme Court dishonored the gold clause in the Nineteen Thirties it has been perfectly legal for the government to cheat its citizens. But if the citizen were to try to recoup on his IRS forms for losses inflicted by government he would quickly discover that his demand for official honesty would be rated as a species of theft in itself. Only an occasional Vivien Kellems has the fortitude and the nerve to fight things out with the IRS on the basis of common morality, good logic and accurate semantics. Other people can't afford the luxury of martyrdom.

Prophets who are right can be annoying, and some of the things that Irwin Schiff said at a congressional hearing in January of 1968 must be causing such luminaries as Sen. William Proxmire (D., Wis.) and former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board William McChesney Martin Jr. a great deal of pain these days. Schiff had testified against repealing the gold reserve backing for Federal Reserve notes.

"Removing the gold reserve," said Schiff, "is inflationary. Dollars can simply be run off a press and they would be. Prices would climb higher and higher (price controls would be demanded but would do no good) and gold would get scarcer and scarcer.

Such a move would not be interpreted as strengthening the dollar since a dollar backed by nothing cannot be better than a dollar backed by something. Ultimately we would lose two or three billion more (in gold) and then hopefully it would dawn on somebody that we dare not lose it all."

At this point, Schiff told the senators, gold sales to foreign nations would be suspended.

PROXMIRE AND MARTIN disputed Mr. Schiff's gloomy predictions. Proxmire called the gold reserve requirement "irrational," and Martin said the removal of gold backing was "inevitable" and actually necessary to "discourage market speculation." So Schiff was made to look amateurish by the "experts" when he prophesied that our new policies would end in devaluation and price controls, with gold hitting $105 an ounce on the free market instead of $35 an ounce. Schiff missed the mark by a few dollars; gold was at $95 an ounce on the free market in mid-February of 1973.

Give Richard Nixon credit, he is trying to do something to check inflation and, thus, to keep the IRS honest when it insists on taxing your dollars as if they were stable entities.

But as long as we live in a society that turns to government itself to maintain full employment, inflation will continue to be our way of life. There won't be any way out of the dilemma until some formula is discovered to keep unemployment at a minimum without calling in the government to subsidize the jobless as a matter of right.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

New national food policy urgent

WASHINGTON — There is some misconception of what old King Canute was up to when he sat on the shore and ordered the tide to stay back. Under no illusion himself, he was demonstrating to his foolish sycophantic courtiers that he could not control the forces of nature.

A parallel may exist here with President Nixon's attempt to hold back prices against what many of his own courtiers believe are the inexorable laws of supply and demand.

As the battle of the beefsteak rages on, grumbling can be heard in the White House directed at Secretary of the Treasury and general commander of domestic affairs George P. Shultz. The kindest thing said about him is that he is an ideologue with his feet stuck in concrete.

Whether Shultz was personally responsible for the incredible folly of abandoning the Phase 2 controls, which were working fairly well, for the charade of Phase 3 no one will say. But the onus falls heavily on the commander who now confronts the rising tide of protests, boycotts and a demand in Congress for a rollback of prices to the level of early January.

OBSERVERS with close contacts with consumers feel that neither the boycott nor the freeze on food prices will substantially lower the total the housewife pays at the checkout counter. The latest 2.2 per cent jump in wholesale prices makes the retail climb inevitable for several months ahead. And the most-disturbing aspect of that jump was the way in which prices of industrial commodities nearly kept pace with the consumer rise.

One of the ablest consumer advisers, Mrs. Esther Peterson, a former assistant Secretary of Labor, in talking to housewives finds an awareness that government tinkering with prices is not enough. As one of her audience put it recently:

"I'm a Republican and I don't like to think that it's Mr. Nixon's fault that we're paying $2 a pound for steak and $1.50 a pound for hamburger. Isn't there something wrong with our food policy?"

A GREAT MANY people are asking whether the present food policy is not a completely outmoded carryover from the scarcity concept of the '30s. That was when, under the New Deal program to raise the level of farm income, millions of acres were taken out of production and farmers — not a few in the large-scale agribusiness— were getting government checks to keep their land idle.

After delaying for more than seven months, Secretary of Agricultural Earl Butz finally began to reverse this scarcity program. But far more must be done to put idle land back into production. At least 50 million acres can become productive again if governnment moves quickly. Given the great facilities of mechanized agriculture in this country, the problems of food at home and abroad could be manageable.

The boycott has served at least to bringing into sharp perspective the urgent need for a new national food policy. Last year the chairman of the American Meat Institute, Clifton B. Cox, who is also president of Armour Food, in his annual report pointed to the "feast or famine" character of livestock production and marketing resulting in inefficiency and start-and-stop operations contributing to unemployment and higher prices.

"We need a national policy to stabilize the production of an ample supply of meat for consumers," Cox said.

HE LAID DOWN several prescriptions for a new policy. Most important was the stabilization of food drains with a government-sponsored storage and insuracnce program to level off the peaks and valleys in the supply of what is the raw material of meat production. It takes eight pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef.

Agriculture is the most-vital element in the American economy. If the full force of productivity on the farms is unleashed, exports of wheat, feed grains and soybeans can go a long way to offset the deterioriating trade balance in the next decade.

The red-ink side of the trade ledger will be augmented by 1980 with a deficit in the cost of imported oil of up to $17 billion a year. One estimate is that the abundance of the farms as geared to full production could offset at least half of this.

The hard-working American farmer with the superior mechanization at his command can do a lot to pull us out of the trade slump. But government must be an active partner if this is to come about.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How much does daughter owe her Mom?

DEAR ABBY: How much does a daughter owe her mother? Mom divorced Dad when I was five. I'm 23 now, and Dad has paid her a generous alimony all these years, plus child support which enabled me to have the best clothes, music lessons, dancing lessons, and a college education. Mom never had to go out and work.

I recently married a wonderful man whose work takes him all over the world. At first mom sulked because we didn't ask her to live with us. Now she wants me to stay home with her or invite her to travel with us. Abby, I love my mother, and my husband is very generous of her, but he doesn't want to make it a steady threesome.

Mother is 56, attractive, and could easily marry again but she says she won't let Dad off the alimony hook as long as she lives. (She's bitter because he's happily married now.)

I feel guilty leaving her. In fact, I feel guilty just writing this. What should I do?

LIFE OF MY OWN

DEAR LIFE: If you want someone to tell you not to feel guilty, count me in. A woman who makes a martyr of herself because she's determined to keep her husband on the alimony hook doesn't deserve much sympathy. You'd feel less guilty if you told her how you felt. It might cause her to take a good hard look at herself and possibly change her life's direction.

DEAR ABBY: We were planning a lovely big church wedding for our daughter in June. Well, she got pregnant, and she and her boy friend panicked and drove to Reno and got married there.

Now she wants to be married in church by our priest. (Do we have to tell him the truth?) Of course, the wedding won't be as big and elaborate as the one we planned originally, but I wonder if we could still have a flower girl and ring bearer? We promised my little niece and nephew, and they will be so disappointed.

MRS. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: Under the circumstances, I think simplicity should be the keynote in this wedding. Discuss it with your priest. And, yes, tell him the truth; he can count and will probably be asked to baptize the baby in six months.

DEAR ABBY: A girl with whom I work is getting married soon. She and I have spent our lunch hour together nearly every day since she came here a year ago. I was quite sure she would invite me to her wedding, but the other day she said she wasn't having anybody from the office because if she invited one she'd have to have them all or there would be hard feelings.

Abby, she isn't friendly with any of the other girls, and I'm sure there would be no hard feelings if she were to invite me. I am very hurt, and I don't know how I can continue to have lunch with her every day and keep a plastic smile on my face. If the situation were reversed, I'd have invited her to my wedding. I think she should be more concerned about hurting MY feelings than the feelings of the other girls in the office who are mere acquaintances.

Should I tell her how hurt I am? Or should Ilet it slide?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Let it slide, dear. Some people don't feel as close to us as we feel to them.

Something to think about

BY: NED KINZER

Good sportsmanship is the conduct which is displayed when participating in any game or sport. It is a worthy attribute to a person's character and personality. The outstanding viewpoint of a good sportsman, is the enjoyment and skill which is derived from playing rather than winning or losing.

Community Good Friday service set

Plans for the traditional Good Friday community service have been completed.

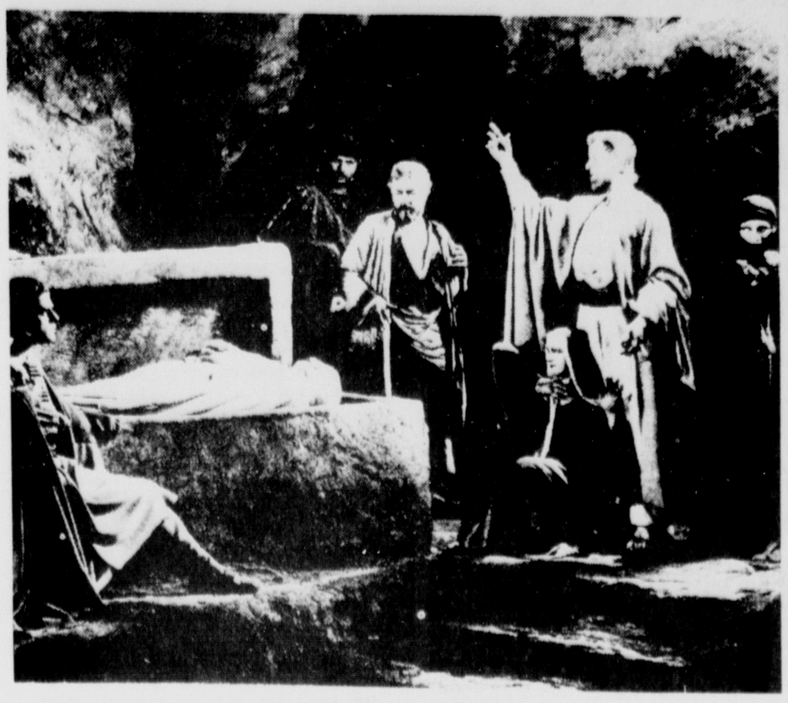

It will open at noon in the First Presbyterian Church and continue until 3 p.m. with six 30-minute segments. A minister from a different church will conduct the meditation at each segment. The ministers will be assisted by laymen.

Special music will include several selections by the Double Trio of the Cecilian Music Club and other music groups. Organist of the community will provide the music leadership.

Worshipers are encouraged to come to the service and take their seats in the sanctuary between the different periods of meditation during the congregational singing of hymns. Those who cannot remain for the entire service may feel free to leave between the different segments.

The theme of the services is "Words from the Cross."

No formal offering will be taken, but plates in which contributions may be left will be at the entrance. The donations will be used to carry on the work of the Fayette County Ministerial Association, which each year sponsors and conducts the union Good Friday service.

'King of Kings' classic booked at Hickory Lane

An unusual prelude to the conventional celebration of Easter will be observed at the Hickory Lane Church of Christ next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Rev. Keith Wooley, pastor, said arrangements have been completed for showing the original (1927) film, "King of Kings," at 7 p.m. the three nights before Easter in the church santuary.

This original production was directed by Cecile B. DeMille. It is considered one of the most sensitive and tasteful treatments of a religious subject ever filmed. Without spoken dialogue, and using subtitles, sound effects and a full musical score, this portrayal of the life of Christ has become a motion picture classic.

The film, which runs a little less than two hours, will be followed by an invitation to confess a commitment to Christ and a free will offering.

The Rev. Mr. Wooley said he saw the picture several times more than 30 years ago and that most of the scenes are still vivid in his memory. He commented that he is "anxious to see the film again and to see if it has the same impact on people today" as it did on him many years ago.

Presbyterian young people to serve Easter breakfast

The Youth Council of the First Presbyterian will begin a summer program of varied activities when its members serve the Easter breakfast in Persinger Hall following the sunrise worship service.

The menu will include ham, eggs, rolls, coffee, fruit juice and milk. Contributions to support the Council's program will be accepted.

Youth Sunday will be observed April 29. The message will be delivered by the pastor, the Rev. Gerald Wheat, and members of the Youth Council will serve as ushers for the worship service. They also will read passages of Scripture and lead prayers. A family night service will honor the graduating seniors.

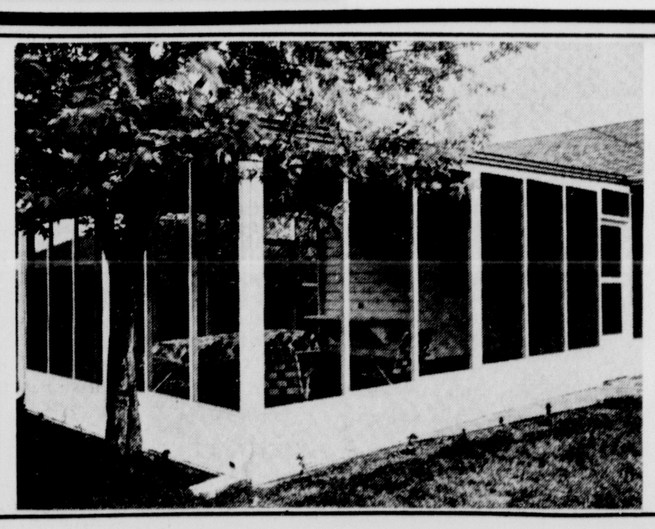

The Council will sponsor a three-day trip to Dearborn, Mich., June 1-3, to be made in the church bus and in private cars. The group, which will be limited to 60 young people, will stay at a KOA campground. Major cost of the trip will be borne by the Youth Council. The purpose of the trip is fellowship, to get acquainted with the historic area, to tour Greenfield Village, visit the Ford Museum and tour Toledo en route home.

A retreat will be held at a state park in August to plan activities for both youth groups of the church.

The group plans to raise sweet corn on the church farm and sell it to finance various projects and mission programs for young people.

The Youth Council also will participate in the summer camping program of the Presbytery at Geneva Hills, near Lancaster; scholarships are available from the church for those who are interested.

Ill members remembered by class

Members of the Loyal Daughters met in the First Christian Church social room with Mrs. Orpha Willis presiding. Devotions were by Mrs. Albert Matthews, whose topic was "Take Time." She also recited a poem, "The Coming of Easter." Cards were signed for the ill members by the 12 present.

The group voted to purchase a name plate for a painting presented to the church in 1948 by the late Jake Miller. The class also will provide a lily for the church at Easter.

A revival planned for April 30-May 4 was announced. Plans for the "fun party" and white elephant sale in the home of Mrs. James Garringer sometime in May were completed.

Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Ted Merritt and Mrs. Charlotte Haines, a guest, won the three contests.

Hostesses were Mrs. Mathews, Mrs. Dorothy Allen, Mrs. Kenneth Eggleston and Mrs. Ann Sanders.

The next meeting will be the annual birthday party at the church. Hostesses will be Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Eunice Draper and Mrs. Dean Torbett.

Travelogue presented for Progress Club

Mrs. Carl Janes was hostess to members of the Jeffersonville Progress Club for the regular Tuesday evening meeting. Mrs. Robert Owens, president, conducted the meeting, welcomed members and read the poem, "The Oldest Easter Message." Ten members answered roll call by naming a National Park.

Mrs. Janes presented a most delightful "Travelogue." She showed colored slides, with descriptions and her thoughts on tape. The travelogue took the group to scenic spots her family has enjoyed while touring the Atlantic coastal states, the West and Hawaii.

Part of Mrs. Janes' commentary was taken from the late Pearl Buck's book "America." Miss Buck wrote that "America has every natural beauty, the variety is awe-inspiring." The recordings of "Teach the World to Sing" and John Wayne's "Why I Love Her," were played also.

A salad course was served during the social hour.

How to bake ladyfingers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Ladyfingers are so popular that food markets all over the country carry them. But if you like to cook from scratch, make your own according to the following recipe.

After the ladyfingers are baked you may serve them "as is" or put two together with a favorite frosting. Or you may want to use them as a base for an "icebox" dessert or strawberry shortcake.

LADYFINGERS

½ cup sifted cake flour
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup teaspoon vanilla

Grease and lightly flour 2 ladyfinger pans (each pan holding 12 shapes and each shape about 4 inches long and 1¼ inches wide at narrow middle section)

On wax paper sift together the flour, cornstarch and salt.

In small bowl of electric mixer, at medium speed, beat together the eggs, ½ cup of the sugar and the vanilla until thick and ivory color. Gradually fold in sifted flour mixture making sure that all dry particles are blended.

Fill each ladyfinger shape in one of the pans with about 2 tablespoons batter — batter will come up to top of shapes. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the remaining sugar over batter. Keep remaining batter refrigerated while baking first pan, then fill and bake second pan the same way.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 12 to 15 minutes. Cool slightly, then loosening edges with a small spatula, remove from pan to wire rack to cool completely.

'Spring's Vision' Cecilian meeting theme

"Spring's Vision" was the theme for the Cecilian Club meeting in the home of Mrs. Milbourne Flee. Mrs. Gerald Wheat, president, welcomed the members and guests, Mrs. John Crummy, Mrs. Earl King, Mrs. Harry Campbell and Miss Betty McNeill.

Mrs. Robert Bachelor, program chairman, introduced other members of the committee: Mrs. John Armentrout, Mrs. Michael Campbell, Mrs. Ronald Dowler, Mrs. Larry Oates, Mrs. Charles Stemple, Mrs. James Vess and Mrs. Ralph Yerian.

The Cecilian Triple Trio sang "April in Paris" and "Now is the Month of Maying" following a poem, "Anticipation" by Mrs. Bachelor. Mrs. Vess sang the solo "Let My Song Fill Your Heart" accompanied by Mrs. Yerian. Mrs. Dowler recited the poem, "Dandelions," and Mrs. Armentrout played a piano solo entitled "Gardens in the Rain." The trio then sang "Sing a Rainbow" and "Were You There" with Mrs. Oates as soloist.

Mrs. Stemple read the Scripture pertaining to the Easter season and Mrs. Campbell sang "The Holy City."

The trio sang "Now is Christ Risen" to close the program.

On May 8 at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall of Grace United Methodist Church, the semi-formal annual dinner will be held. Members are to bring their husbands or guests. The Cecilian Double Trio will conduct a sing-a-long.

Members were also reminded of the Good Friday services at First Presbyterian Church and that the Cecilian Club will participate in the program.

The hymn-of-the-month, "All Glory, Laud and Honor," was sung by the group, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Creamer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. John Case, chairman, Mrs. Jerry Sears, Mrs. David Fabb, Mrs. Fred Enslen, Mrs. Dewey Sheidler and Miss Lora Ellen Tharp.

Jeff DAR conducts National Defense program

A national defense program was the main topic of the meeting of the William Horney chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Jeffersonville, in the home of Mrs. Harold Zimmerman Wednesday.

Mrs. Howard Burnett Sr., regent, conducted the meeting in ritualistic form, assisted by Mrs. Max Morrow, chaplain. Mrs. Ottis Thompson, flag chairman, led the Pledge of Allegiance and Mrs. Morrow led the first stanza for the singing of the national anthem.

Following roll call answered by 17 members, Mrs. Richard Craig gave the secretary's report.

Mrs. Louis Ulen read the president general's message and Mrs. Nona Stevens the state regent's message.

Mrs. Carroll Ritenour, corresponding secretary, read notes of thanks from the Kate Duncan Smith and Crossnore DAR-supported schools for money sent to them and the names of candidates in several states for vice president general.

Informative reports of the state conference at Cincinnati in March, were given by the delegates, Mrs. Ulen, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Zimmerman, Mrs. Harold Cline and Mrs. Craig, and the regent.

William Horney chapter was co-hostess at the formal reception Monday evening at state conference honoring the president general, Mrs. Donald Spicer. Mrs. Cline was an assisting chairman.

The chapter received two "Blue Ribbon" awards for its yearbook from state and national program committees. It also received a certificate for having 100 per cent participation in "A Gift to the Nation" signed by Mrs. Spicer. Mrs. Charles Cline was a page at the conference and one of the flag bearers in the formal opening.

Miss Helen Fults spoke on "Freedom — Symbol of a Nation" after the business session. Her talk was based on material from the national defense committee research and views from the book "Bending the Twig" by Augustine G. Rudd, author, educator and professor and member of the NSDAR.

Continental Congress of the DAR will meet April 16-22 in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C.

The regent thanked the hostesses and all read the DAR salute to the flag for the closing.

A dessert course suggestive of the Easter season was served during the social hour.

The board of management held a brief business session following the meeting.

Mrs. Robert Little will be hostess to the annual closed meeting May 9.

Croc's sun bath saved by Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Recently, an architect drew up plans for a 25-story addition to Berlin's swank Hotel Schweizer Hof. But the director of the zoo's aquarium complained. He said that the new hotel would be so high that it would cut off the sun in which the zoo's alligators and crocodiles bask.

Berlin's zoo is the largest in Europe, last year drawing two million people, and Berlin takes it seriously. So the city government changed the plans.

The new hotel will be 10 stories high, not 25.

An Old Art Form

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

BECAUSE her mother spent years working on a large quilt that never got finished, Ann-Sargent Wooster has a new interest in life. A painter and a sculptor whose ambition is to become an art critic, Ann is not only a prolific quilter but the author of a fascinating book on the subject. A combined history and how-to volume, her book, "Quiltmaking — The Modern Approach to a Traditional Craft," was just published by Drake.

Story of a Book

"The book is a result of several things," she said, "my mother's never-finished quilt — I'm in the process of finishing it — and a show of American quilts I stumbled into at the Whitney Museum a few years back. Because I'm an artist, I got interested in quilting designs and before I knew it I was hooked."

Ann, who also authored "The Art Reference Guide", likes to dig into subjects and find out where and how ideas originated. Her research resulted in "Quiltmaking".

"You know," she said, "quilts started out to fill a practical need, but when women got into making them they got involved with color and pattern and quilts became an art form."

Origin of "Spinster"

Among the fascinating facts mentioned in the book is the origin of the word spinster.

"When the Pilgrims first came to America they didn't make quilts," she said, "because they had to import all fabric from England and they needed clothing more than they need bedcovers. By 1640 they were allowed to make linen. Each family, by law, was required to have the services of a full-time spinner, usually a child or an unmarried woman, hence the term spinster."

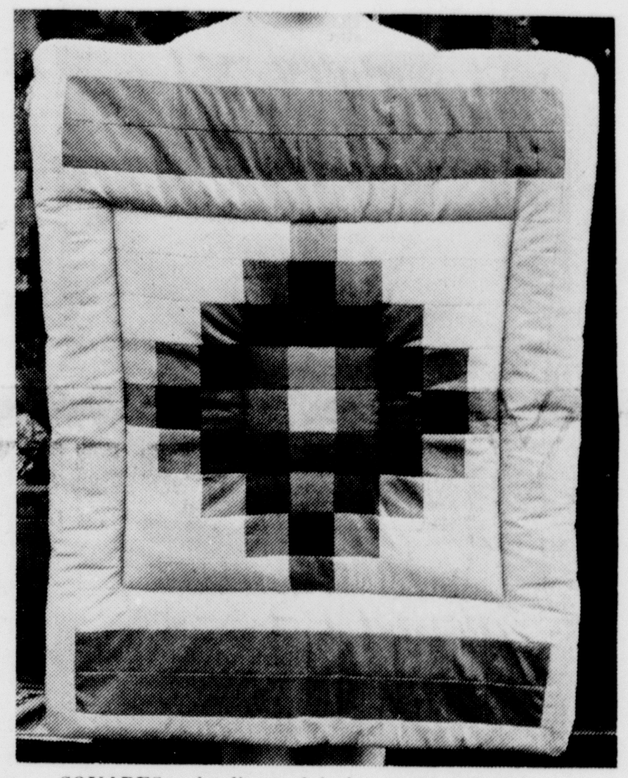

The book, which is illustrated with drawings and photographs by Ann, includes a Quilting Dictionary that explains standard quilt types and terms. You can dip into the book anyplace and find fascinating reading or how-to tips and sketches that show you how to duplicate some of the most famous quilting patterns.

One of the most fascinating pages of American quilting history, says Ann, involved Friendship Quilts, a tradition similar to barn raising. For a Friendship Quilt, each friend donated a square.

Marriage Quilts date back to 1700 when an engaged girl would invite her friends to her home to see her wedding presents and to help her make a Wedding Quilt, one with hearts and other symbols of love. The charming custom died out around 1900 when household gifts replaced quilt blocks.

Ann, who is working for her doctorate in Art History at Hunter College in New York, prefers quilting small things — jackets, pillows, baby quilts — because she has little time for big projects. Her book suggests how these can be made, too.

If you are interested in "Quiltmaking" or its fascinating history, you can order this book through your local book shop.

SQUARES make diamond design on this colorful baby quilt made by Rachel Liberman of Cambridge, Mass.

THIS POPULAR pattern for a child's quilt is called "Sunnbonnet Sue and Farmer Boy."

New state bill attacks Buckeye 'slumlords'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill to crack down on Ohio's "slumlords" who fail to keep up their run-down rental properties is the product of one of the most elaborate background efforts in years, the chairman of the Ohio Housing and Community Development Commission reported.

James I. Huston said the advisory group conducted seven hearings around the state, established metropolitan steering committees, and sent drafts of the bill to 4,000 individuals and 300 organizations.

"No bill in recent times has been developed as much in a fish bowl as this one has," Huston said.

Huston said the measure will do no harm to legitimate landlords, but will cause concern among "Ohio's slumlords."

The housing Commission also has in the works another administration proposal that would put the state in the business of financing low and moderate income housing.

It would authorize the state to issue tax exempt revenue bonds which could be retired from rent. The size of the venue has not been announced, but reports say the state might issue $500 million in bonds initially.

David Sweet, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development, said Ohio's housing needs have become more critical in the wake of a moratorium on federal housing funding.

He said he was told by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development that if Ohio wants to get federal housing money in the future, it will have to set up its own program to get matching funds.

Rep. Robert E. Netzley, R-81 Laura, maintains a low profile these days. But his long and highly-publicized effort to repeal the state income tax still has a way of getting his name before the public.

It came up at an unlikely place — a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee. Columbus attorney Robert McAlister, a committee member, held him up as an example.

Urging the committee to bypass the legislature and circulate petitions to place election reform on the November ballot, McAlister said:

"Look what Bob Netzley did. He almost wiped out everything it took the legislature a year to do."

President asked to declare Ohio counties disaster areas

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—President Nixon was asked to declare eight Ohio counties federal disaster areas after officials estimated damage caused by Lake Erie flooding earlier this week at $27.5 million.

Gov. John Gilligan surveyed the flood-stricken area Thursday before making the request for federal aid. The counties included Lucas, Ottawa, Sandusky, Erie, Lorain, Cuyahoga, Lake and Ashtabula.

Hardest-hit by Lake Erie waters was the Point Place area of Toledo. Officials estimated the damage as $2.5 million there.

By Thursday, most of the water had been pumped from the area and residents had returned to their homes. Electricity had been restored to all but a few homes. Gas service was expected to be completely restored this afternoon.

City workers were repairing damage to a dike in the Point Place area. By Thursday, a private contractor had repaired an 80-foot breach in a high-wall.

Northwestern Ohio nearly saw a replay of flooding Thursday. Flood warnings were issued early in the day. But waters dropped later after winds shifted. Minor flooding was reported.

If the President grants disaster status, homeowners and businessmen in the area would be eligible for low-interest federal loans.

The same district was declared a disaster area in November, 1972, after another flood struck. Claims were received totaling $1.6 million from the Point Place section.

In another effort to locate funds to aid the area, Toledo Mayor Harry Kessler said he would approach the Ohio Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Earlier, the mayor said he would ask the city council for funds to improve the dike.

Luxury liner like fortress pending cruise to Israel

LONDON (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 is being turned into a floating fortress with a private army of armed guards for its month-long cruise to Israel next week.

Twenty Marine commandos, a team of bomb disposal experts, two dozen American detectives and an undisclosed number of undercover security agents boarded the ship Thursday.

As they came aboard, a third of the QE2's 900 crew members were reported to have walked off in fear Arab terrorists would attack the 1,700 passengers bound for Israel's 25th anniversary celebration. Most are well-to-do American, British and European Jews.

"I'm damned scared and I'm not ashamed to admit it," said Ray Digweed, a cabin steward. "I signed off today because of the risk of terrorist action."

The ship's owner, the Cunard Line, promised a $150 "danger money" bonus for every crew member making the trip plus four years' salary to the family of any crewman killed in a terrorist raid.

The special security arrangements are costing Cunard $25,000.

"We're well satisfied with the security arrangements, but we don't think there will be any threat from the Arabs," said Oscar Rudwick, an American who organized the cruise.

The liner has been sealed off, its hull constantly checked for magnetic mines by a team of 12 Navy frogmen, and combed from stem to stern for explosives since she docked at Southampton early Thursday. Guards are checking everyone who boards the vessel and screening all provisions being loaded aboard

British Navy destroyers will escort the liner through the Mediterranean and Royal Air Force planes will shadow her all the way. Adding to the security problem will be stops in Lisbon on the way out and in Majorca on the return voyage.

Delay trial in Pentagon Papers case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg's testimony in his own defense may be postponed today for a second day because his chief attorney is ill and may have to take some medical tests.

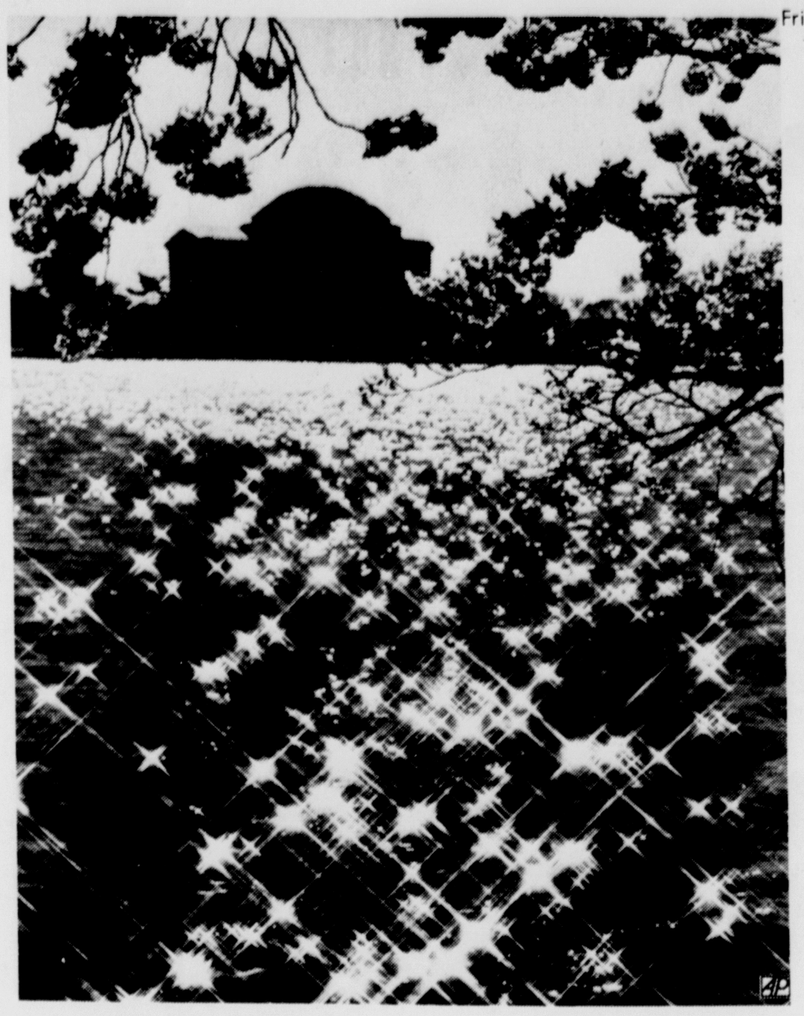

The Ellsberg defense team planned to ask U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne to recess the Pentagon papers trial until Monday.

The sudden illness of attorney Leonard Boudin, who has a heart condition, interrupted Ellsberg's testimony Thursday.

Ellsberg, on trial with Anthony Russo for espionage, conspiracy and theft, had been scheduled to tell jurors how his opposition to the Vietnam war spurred him to copy the Pentagon's secret study of the war.

Boudin, 60, a veteran civil rights attorney, wears a heart pacemaker to regulate his heartbeat. He was examined by a Los Angeles cardiologist and a defense spokesman said the doctor found no serious problems but recommended that Boudin undergo more tests today.

Ellsberg has admitted publicly that he released the documents to news media in 1971 — two years after he and Russo copied them — when Congress had taken no action. Ellsberg and Russo are not charged with releasing the papers, only with copying them.

Bancshares earnings spiral

COLUMBUS — Huntington Bancshares reports a record high increase in earnings of over 26 per cent for the first quarter of 1973 compared with the same period a year ago. Net income before securities gains rose to $2.5 million from $2 million or $1.16 per share, up $.24 from $.92 per share.

Clair E. Fultz, president of the Columbus based registered bank holding company, reports total assets reached $1.3 billion as of March 31, 1973, compared with $1.1 billion a year ago. Total loan volume increased 22.3 per cent to $682 million and deposits rose $72 million to $1.024 billion for an increase of 7.6 per cent.

Commercial loans led the substantial growth in the loan category with a 29.5 per cent gain over the same period in 1972. Consumer loans were next with a $34 million (20.6 per cent) gain and mortgage loans followed with a $25 million (14.7 per cent) increase.

Fultz commented that innovative marketing programs, development of new services, development of a master profit plan, management of earning assets and receipt of timely management information have helped us to achieve objectives.

Huntington Bancshares is a registered bank holding company based in Columbus with 12 affiliated banks operating 74 offices throughout Ohio, including the Washington Savings Bank of Washington C.H.

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	3 ♥

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠ AJ853 ♥ 94 ♦ 872 ♣ AK6
2. ♠ AKJ74 ♥ A ♦ Q952 ♣ 843
3. ♠ AQJ765 ♥ K62 ♦ K7 ♣ K9
4. ♠ AK96 ♥ K103 ♦ AJ97 ♣ 84
5. ♠ AQ982 ♥ 6 ♦ K4 ♣ AKJ73

1. Pass. You have a minimum opening bid — you could scarcely open with less — and the simplest way of informing partner of this is by passing. You can't tell whether East can make three hearts, whether you can make three spades, or where the future of the hand lies, so you pass the buck to partner and let him decide what to do. That's what partners are for.

2. Three spades. This is a far more promising hand and you show it by bidding three spades. You lack the values for a jump to four spades — there are seven losers in the minor suits for North to take care of — but the odds favor making nine tricks. Partner is expected to pass three spades in this competitive situation, but he is not totally barred from bidding again.

3. Four spades. The chance of making game is very good, particularly when your three kings sit squarely behind East, who is likely to hold any aces that are missing. Counting your distribution, partner's raise and the interferences you can draw from East's overcall, the hand is worth about 20 points.

4. Double. You have four probable defensive tricks and partner is apt to have two more — so the best solution seems to lie in letting East play the hand, doubled. The alternatives are to pass or bid three spades, but neither of these actions is as attractive as a double. If partner's raise was based on distributional values only, he may of course take the double out, but that is his affair, not yours.

5. Four clubs. This is an unequivocal slam try, for if you were merely interested in game you would bid four spades instead. You hope partner will respond four diamonds, showing the ace as well as interest in a slam — in which case you could either immediately or eventually get to six spades. North doesn't need much of a hand for a slam to sprout. The king of spades, ace of diamonds and queen of clubs, or shortage in clubs, are likely to do the trick.

ARAB GUERRILLA CAPTURED — Cyprus policemen lead away Arab guerrilla, second from left, after he was captured in an unsuccessful attempt to hijack an Israeli airliner at airport in Nicosia, Cyprus.

Brandt wins endorsement of policies on NATO, U.S.

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's party has overwhelmingly endorsed West Germany's alliance with the United States and its full participation in the North Atlantic alliance.

The Social Democratic party convention rebuffed left-wing attacks on pro-Western aspects of Brandt's foreign policy, including his staunch support for U.S. troops in Europe.

The vote Thursday night, by show of hands, looked to be about 370-3 with some 30 abstentions. The convention has 435 delegates, including about 110 leftists.

Party insiders say left-wing strength has grown considerably but not enough to change Brandt's policies. The voting today for the party's 35-member executive committee would normally give some indication of the size of the various party factions, but leftist maneuvering may cloud the picture.

Convention sources said the leftists offered to support a number of center-left candidates in return for support of 11 left-wingers. The leftists also were trying to oust right-wing members of the committee, including Annemarie Renger, speaker of the lower house of parliament, and Egon Franke, Brandt's minister for inter-German affairs.

In the voting Thursday night, the convention rejected leftist resolutions calling for a a freeze on military spending this year and a cut in it next year, cancellation of Bonn's payments to Washington for the U.S. troops in Germany and withdrawal of the 200,000 GIs.

One of the resolutions referred to the American force in Germany as "an anachronism" at a time of improving EastWest relations, and one young critic accused the Brandt government of "wasting billions of marks on the army."

During te heated debate Brandt repeatedly took the floor to rebuke the leftists. He defended his policies and said it was not possible to cut the defense budget.

Defense Minister Georg Leber told the left wing to be patient and await the outcome of the exploratory talks on an East-West reduction of forces in Central Europe and on European security.

Bowling Green case reviewed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's Supreme Court will decide whether a state suit against Bowling Green for polluting the North Branch of the Portage River should be dismissed.

It agreed Thursday to review the case in which the city could be held liable for sewage waste discharges that killed more than 20,000 fish on separate occasions in 1968 and 1970.

City officials claimed governmental immunity and the case was dismissed by the Wood County Common Pleas Court, but an appellate court reversed the decision holding that the treatment of wastes by the city is "a proprietary function."

Brooke believes both sides want cease-fire

SAIGON (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said today he believes both the Communists and the Saigon government want the cease-fire to work, but U.S. assistance in reconstruction may be the key to lasting peace.

"My final conclusion is that both parties want the cease-fire to work, and I think it will," said Brooke at the end of a visit to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

"Everyone wants reconstruction assistance, and I think it may be the big chip in bringing about adherence to the ceasefire. People are hurting, and they need assistance to build a life for themselves."

Brooke said the United States should also persuade both President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam and President Lon Nol of Cambodia to broaden the base of their governments.

2 historic log cabins face water damage

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—A Waynesville group will attempt to save two historic log cabins in Warren County that are to be flooded by the Caesar's Creek Reservoir.

Dennis Dalton said the group will try to relocate the cabins.

The group has been given 60 days to submit a plan to the state.

Fund distribution change proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A bipartisan proposal containing an "innovative departure" for the distribution of public funds to private and parochial schools is being introduced in the Ohio House.

Reps. James Mueller, D-74 Chesterland, and Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, are sponsors of the bill which would require the state to pay the utility bills of all the public and private schools in the state.

Mueller said Thursday that the measure represents an attempt to make partial distribution of funds already appropriated for private and parochial schools, but held up by court decisions disallowing outright subsidies.

"At the present time, we are awaiting the results of the Supreme Court's decision concerning Ohio's tax credit approach ...this new parochial and private school aid bill provides an innovative departure in an attempt to find a set of constitutionally-valid conditions which the Supreme Court will accept," the Chesterland lawmaker said.

The bill would provide for disbursement of about $20 a year per pupil of the $90 a year set aside in already-budgeted funds for private and parochial pupils. Utility bills for all schools would be paid directly by the State Department of Education.

Some 38 new bills were received by the House and Senate Thursday in advance of a bill cutoff next Wednesday. Among bills introduced were proposals to:

—Require sterilization of unmarried welfare mothers after the birth of two illegitimate children.

—Reduce the state voter residency requirement from six months to 30 days to coincide with the requirement for presidential elections.

—Increase the pay of election workers from $24 to $35 a day.

—Prohibit discrimination against women by private employers and others not affected by the proposed women's equal rights amendment.

—Prohibit chain letters and similar schemes and set penalties.

—Expand eligibility for obtaining absentee ballots.

—Set ratios of skilled workers to apprentices on public works projects.

—Allow veterinarians to turn unclaimed animals over to a pound or shelter after 10 days.

—Create a jail inspection bureau and review board.

—Designate No. 11 as Veterans Day.

Ohio Real Estate Board probe may reach courts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Real Estate Commission was asked Thursday to go to court on the validity of a real estate broker's license obtained by former Gov. James A. Rhodes just before he left office.

Commerce Director Dennis Shaul, in a memorandum to the commission, asked members to either take the question to the courts, or to not renew Rhodes' license when it expires at the end of this year.

The memorandum also said Vernon McMillen, executive secretary of the three-member commission, had been fired.

Probate law proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill liberalizing probate court procedures to settle estates has been recommended for passage by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, would exempt the surviving spouse from posting a bond before administering the estate of the deceased spouse.

The bill also adopts, with some changes, the suggested uniform probate code written by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

The purpose of the bill is reduce the cost of administering estates, particularly when no will is left. It sets up a line of descendants who would be eligible to share in such an estate.

Present law makes settling interstate estates long, difficult and costly.

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the big bands dead? Nope. The evidence is coming up Sunday night on the NBC Radio network in a three-hour special hosted by Art Ford.

The proceedings commence promptly at 7:05 p.m. EST on NBC's "Monitor" show, the only network program now on the air that consistently brings great jazz musicians to the listening public.

Sunday's show, called "The Big Bands Swing Again," primarily is devoted to big band jazz; it features the records of and interviews with veteran bandleaders who still are writing the history of jazz.

The lineup of guests includes Stan Kenton, Woody Herman, Count Basie and Benny Goodman. Their interviews were taped this week and last week in cities where they were appearing.

What they say about the business may be of particular interest to young musicians who play in jazz-oriented high school and college big bands that have been sprouting in growing numbers at campuses across the country.

Many of these youngsters probably have seen the Kenton and Basie bands perform at their schools, since these bandleaders have concentrated heavily the past few years on the campus circuit.

For Basie, whose 16-piece band has played in a swinging, straight-ahead groove for 30 years, the reception today's college students give his brand of music comes as an equally pleasant and unexpected experience.

"For anybody else-like the rock bands—the reaction they get is no surprise, because they're doing the things the kids are doing," Basie said.

"But I'm quite surprised and very happily so at the way the kids react to the things we're doing," he said after his interview with Ford for Sunday's show.

He said later he finds it amusing that some elders who dismiss the younger generation as tin-eared and untalented "are shocked at finding the quality of musicians they have in colleges and high schools.

"They just don't believe it. They really think the kids can only play in one key. But these kids are really playing today. They know what they're doing."

Fayette Airport News

By JUDY DENNIS

Howdy, Folks!

As I sit here working on my column, I glance out the window every now and then at the blizzard that is engulfing the airport. It is hard to believe that it is April, and supposedly Springtime.

The planes are quiet, now, under their blanket of snow. Yet, only yesterday, the Vick Flying Service "Ag" plane was darting in and out of the airport sowing grass seed.

Speaking of grass seed, we have had a busy season and more requests for seeding are coming in. So far, the Ag planes have covered 1,428 acres, and I still have requests for 151 more acres. If an Ag plane sweeps over your house, don't be upset. The pilot is just helping the farmers who have been unable to get into their fields, due to the wet and muddy ground.

In spite of the unpredictable spring weather, we have been able to do a little student instruction. In addition to the new students I told you about last time, we are happy to welcome Walt Gooldin and Bill Pauley to our flight school.

Walt is starting on his private pilot flight course, and Billy Pauley is working on his commercial rating in a "fixed wing" aircraft in the VA class. Billy already has a commercial rating in a helicopter.

TWO MORE of our students have soloed, so congratulations are in order for Mike Prickett and Bruce Denen. Other students receiving primary dual instruction were Owen Prince, Martha Rockhold, Barbara Abernathy, Gary Meyers and Deane and Marilee Carter (a father-daughter team).

Primary students going solo were Owen Prince (who is about ready to be flight-tested), Deane Carter, Jim Vess, Louie Poole, Gary Meyers, Chris Givens (one of our Ross County boys), Bruce Denen and Mike Prickett.

A couple of weeks ago, we had some really exciting plans. Four plane-loads of us (16 in all) made reservations for a weekend in New Orleans. However, that weekend was when we got all the ice and snow. Also, the New Orleans area was being hard hit with floods and tornadoes.

All of us were disappointed when we had to cancel our plans. However, I still had our suitcases packed when Rod and Jo Scott appeared Monday morning and said they were taking off for Florida. They asked us to go along, and we rushed around making arrangements for our son and the management of our airports. Three hours later, we climbed into Rod's Debonair and were on our way.

We reached Clearwater, Fla., in four hours and 40 minutes, and had a very enjoyable visit, although not nearly as long as we would have liked. We returned on Thursday, and had the same beautiful weather back that we were lucky enough to encounter on the way down.

Jim Roberds, a VA commercial student, is about to be flight-tested for his commercial rating. Jim passed his commercial written test and is now perfecting his maneuvers in preparation for his flight test. We are happy to report, also, that Charlie Dodds passed his written exam for his private pilot ticket.

COMMERCIAL students receiving dual instruction were Billy Pauley, Jim Roberds, Tom Romph, Ken Mathias and Ron Fitzwater. Commercial students soloing were Billy Pauley, Tim Vehnekamp, Bob Sowers and Ken Mathias. Tom Romph also flew to Cleveland taking his little son, Jimmy, to stay with "grandma and Grandpa" while Tom and his wife, Bev, have a wonderful vacation in Hawaii.

The State Department of Education visited our facility last week, and inspected our VA school records.

Bill flight-tested five students from other airports for private pilot licenses. Some passed and, I'm sorry to say, some didn't. However, the ones who didn't rescheduled for a re-test and will no doubt make it on their second try.

WE HAVE two new employees. We hired Tom Preston as a flight instructor and Blaine Kohler as our new mechanic. Tom is a local boy, and Blaine comes to us from Union County Airport, where he worked three years as their A & P mechanic.

Craig Beam has been working hard on his instrument rating. Bill went with him on a dual instrument cross-country flight to Fort Wayne, and they have also been "shooting" instrument approaches into Port Columbus.

This winds up our airport news for now. I'm anxious to get home and toast my feet in front of a cheerful fire.

There seems to be no place colder than an airport when the weather is bad.

Beans said cheapest source of body-building protein

WASHINGTON (AP) — Let's say you have a choice between a sizzling porterhouse or a serving of dry beans. Would your selection be influenced if you had to pay for it—and you knew the beans cost a 10th as much and had the same nutritional value?

Experts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture—wary of such ticklish items as food controls and meat boycotts— didn't pose the problem exactly that way today. But that's the way it came out.

What the USDA experts did was to put out some advice on how to stretch the food dollar for protein-rich, body-building foods necessary in family nutrition. They very carefully avoided any recommendations.

Measured in terms of February grocery prices, a six-cent serving of dry beans will provide the same amount of protein as 66 cents worth of porterhouse steak or 67 cents worth of lamb chops, the experts said.

Further, according to the USDA cost figures, when it comes strictly to meat and poultry, the best buys for protein-conscious shoppers are whole chicken and hamburger.

"One way to determine good buys among meats and meat alternates is to compare the costs of amounts ... that provide equal protein," the Agricultural Research Service said in a report.

Twenty grams of protein, for example, is about one-third of the recommended daily allowance for a 20-year-old man. A three-ounce serving of cooked lean beef, pork, lamb, veal, turkey or fish provides about 20 grams of protein or more.

On a 20-gram basis, the protein-cost rating of bacon, for example, is 63 cents; hot dogs 35 cents and bologna 47 cents.

Some other ratings on this 20-gram protein scale: peanut butter 12 cents; milk and eggs 18; beef liver; turkey and canned sardines 20; liverwurst 34 and veal cutlets 63.

Leukemia victim gets Nixon help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine-year-old Jessie Clark has leukemia and needed a room of his own in his fight against the disease.

Since March 28, the youngster has been without even a home. Fire destroyed the Washington residence where his mother and her seven children had lived.

Since that time, Mrs. Mamie Clark, 29, and her children have lived at a welfare shelter. But today is different.

President Nixon, a federal official said, found a new home for Jessie and his family, that will give the boy what doctor's say he needs most—a room of his own in his fight against the disease.

"The President's giving you a house," Mrs. Clark quoted Gilbert DeLorme as telling her. DeLorme is deputy area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

DeLorme said he was contacted by a "top administration official," whom he did not name, "on behalf of the President." He said he was told to find housing for Mrs. Clark and her family.

News accounts of the family's plight said Mrs. Clark, a welfare mother, had run into trouble finding housing for her large family.

DeLorme placed the family in a newly remodeled four-bedroom apartment that is being rehabilitated under a federally subsidized program.

The White House has confirmed that aides had stepped in to help the family, but a spokesman would not say whether Nixon was personally involved.

Photography's ability to be shared and to provide intense personal satisfaction is clearly apparent in the achievements of Volunteer Service Photographers Inc. I've participated in its activities for about 20 years but must be jolted periodically into realizing that it's unique and newsworthy and that its dedicated service of rehabilitation through photography is not just a routine mission.

VSP was founded in 1941 in New York by professional photographer Josephine U. Herrick as a community volunteer enterprise to enlist photography's services in our country's war effort.

In the three decades since, it helped wounded veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam in their hospital recovery periods. Between wars — and currently — VSP's programs have expanded into youth and senior citizens centers, a prison hospital and rehabilitation centers for the emotionally disturbed, handicapped and drug addicted.

When Miss Herrick died last year, the little group she started 30 years before had grown to a hard core of 100 active volunteers bringing photo enthusiasm to 45 institutions or groups in the New York area.

IT WAS FOUND that photography's greatest therapeutic value was achieved when the patient or student engages in a do-it-yourself activity. A definite amount of mental and physical stimulation is involved in handling a camera and a roll of film, in processing negatives, in making prints or in handling a set of oil colors and a brush to produce a hand-colored photograph.

Therefore, through the years, VSP's basic instructional services hasn't changed its teaching of taking, processing and printing black-and-white photographs and hand coloring black-and-white prints.

These basics maintain VSP's major objective: to impart a sense of personal achievement. It applies to hospitalized servicemen, the chronically ill or handicapped and to the young or elderly whether they're acquiring an interesting hobby or learning a useful skill.

VSP's efforts are humanized when you visit Goldwater Hospital on New York's Welfare Island and meet volunteer Sylvia Solomon and patients Tom and Nancy Brown.

Mrs. Solomon, a past VSP president, has been teaching at the hospital for 25 years. Tom and Nancy are polio victims who met at the hospital's VSP classes. Their mutual interest in photography developed to more than sharing a crippling disease and a hobby. They got married.

IT ISN'T EASY for Tom and Nancy to take pictures. Tom can't walk and his left hand is the one he has some control over. His camera requires the firm support of a platform attached to his wheelchair and must have a left-hand film advance. He designed a special screw-and bolt contraption for focusing.

Nancy has limited use of her fingers but can get around on her feet. Her camera, mounted on a tripod, has a cable release. It's placed in her mouth and she takes pictures by tongue pressure.

Tom and Nancy photograph staff and patient activities and their enlargements decorate the hospital walls and corridors. Tom is head of Goldwater Hospital's Community Board and has been photographically involved in numerous projects.

One was recording special medical techniques devised for patients, to illustrate reports at medical meetings. Another was making photo posters which encouraged patient participation in blood-donor and get-out-the-vote drives.

Other projects are aimed at improving Welfare Island roads and towards drug addict rehabilitation.

FOCUSING on teacher-volunteer Sylvia Solomon and student-patients Tom and Nancy Brown helps bring the whole VSP program into sharper focus.

It's a self-help program for people who need it, supported by working volunteers, contributions from sympathetic people and gifts of equipment and material from enlightened firms in the photographic industry.

Rehabilitation through photography works. It's being accomplished in one area in the country. In other areas there are other photo enthusiasts with talent, time and desire to serve their communities and there are hospitalized, young, old and handicapped people whose lives could be enriched.

All it takes is a VSP-type program. For information about it, you can write: Volunteer Service Photographers, 111 W. 57 St., New York, N. Y. 10019.

Stamps In The News

The 1973 Easter Charity stamps of Surinam feature religious scenes connected with the life of Jesus as shown on five multicolored, well-designed adhesives. As in past years, the set consists of five denominations, each with a surcharge (additional value) to raise money for charitable causes in that South American country.

The 10c plus 5 shows "the storm on the lake." The 15c plus 8 depicts "the washing of the disciples' feet." the 20c plus 10 illustrates a scene of Jesus being led away to execution. The 25c plus 12 pictures a cross. The 30c plus 15 shows the "men of Emmaus."

All of the stamps feature wording in Dutch to denote this is the Easter Charity set.

MANY OTHER countries around the world are issuing stamps commemorating the Easter season.

One such country is the British Indian Ocean Territory which has issued four stamps for Easter highlighting Ethiopic art. Two values show Christ on the Cross while the other two depict Jesus being carried to burial.

Many scholars believe the paintings found on the highlands of Ethiopia are true reflections of early Christian culture.

CRICKET has often been referred to as "the sport for rich Englishmen."

However, on Antigua 50 years ago the Rising Sun Cricket Club was organized to provide a social and athletic organization for the underprivileged where one could be a participant regardless of race, creed or color.

To honor the golden anniversary of this famous athletic organization, Antigua issued a special set of three stamps. The lowest value shows a cricket player and a map of Antigua, denoting its capital, St. John's. The middle value portrays two cricket players.

The highest value depicts the official emblem and crest of the Rising Sun Cricket Club and inscribing the name of its founder, Clemenceau A. Perry.

PUBLISHERS of stamp albums are busy catching up on a gap of 25 years now that the U.S. has a new "Open Door Policy" with the People's Republic of China.

The latest to augment its publication setup is H.E. Harris & Co. with its all-new, 64-page special section for the People's Republic of China. The section contains spaces for nearly every issue of Mainland China from its present regime, started in 1949, through late 1972, including even the issues of all the Chinese Provinces. It has over 1,850 illustrations and a comprehensive stamp identifier. Only the costly varieties have been omitted.

The section, as a supplement for the Harris loose-leaf albums, sells for $1.50. For those who desire just the binder for the section, it is available for an additional $2.50. They may be purchased at your local stamp dealer.

TWO international stamp exhibitions will be held in Munich in May. To honor these events, the West German postal authorities will issue four new semi-postals, reports the Wide World Philatelic Agency.

The additional values will go to the "Foundation for the Promotion of Philately and Postal History" in that country. Two of the stamps will appear on a souvenir sheet. All are available at your local dealer or stamp department.

Claim hospitals breed smallpox

CHICAGO (AP) — Hospitals are a potential source of smallpox, says a leading epidomiologist who maintains that all hospital personnel should be vaccinated.

Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir, a visiting professor at Harvard University Medical School, said Wednesday the hospital is "the weak link in the chain" of smallpox prevention.

The former U.S. Public Health Service employe made the comment in a lecture at the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians and elaborated later at a news conference.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman pillars of strength for Nixon regime

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Robbins Haldeman and John Daniel Ehrlichman share an ample supply of critics—and a boss who considers both of them nearly indispensable. The boss is President Nixon, so the critics don't count for much at the White House.

No strangers to controversy, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also share with Henry A. Kissinger the distinction of being Nixon's most powerful assistants. Charter members of what some have called the "German Mafia," they regulate the flow of people, papers and proposals reaching the President's office.

Haldeman—everyone calls him Bob—is chief of the White House staff, keeper of the gates and Nixon's naysayer. Ehrlichman has likened him to a lord chamberlain.

Soon after the President took his oath in 1969, Haldeman's office became known to critics as the "Berlin wall"—because members of the Cabinet and Congress found it blocking the path to Nixon's door.

More recently, Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut suggested Haldeman had advance knowledge of policies and personalities behind the Watergate conspiracy and should resign. The bipartisan leaders of the Senate select committee investigating campaign misdeeds stated publicly they had no evidence Haldeman was involved. Haldeman added a firm denial of his own.

Ehrlichman is the President's domestic policy assistant and, like Haldeman, he has been judged too aloof and inaccessible by some administration officials as well as senators and congressmen.

The two men, close friends since college days at UCLA, are Christian Scientists who neither smoke nor drink. As young men they were Eagle Scouts. Like Nixon, they display enameled American flags on their lapels and Haldeman even shares the President's enthusiasm for cottage cheese lunches.

Politically, Haldeman is a conservative generally regarded as standing somewhat to the right of Nixon. Ehrlichman is seen as more receptive to liberal thought. Both are intensely loyal to Nixon.

Ehrlichman, when interviewed by author Allen Drury for his book "Courage and Hesitation," said: "Part of our job is never to confront the President with a situation in which he has to disappoint someone or take a harsh action. For that reason, we usually send memoes to him for decision. He can then be perfectly free to turn ideas down without making his decisions personal."

Haldeman also gave Drury testimony to Nixon's detachment from argumentative hurly-burly, and to Haldeman's own reputation for barring the presidential door.

"Ehrlichman, Kissinger and I do our best to make sure that all points of view are placed before the President," he said. "We do act as a screen, because there is a real danger of some advocate of an idea rushing in to the President or some other decision-maker, if the person is allowed to do so, and actually managing to convince them in a burst of emotion or argument. We try to make sure that all arguments are presented calmy and fairly across the board."

In pre-election days, Haldeman made no secret of a conviction that the original builders of Washington wisely placed the White House and the Capitol at opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

"I don't think," he said, "Congress is supposed to work with the White House...There is a clearcut division of power which was intentional, and I think that a certain amount of distance is healthy."

Since November, Haldeman and Ehrlichman have been more accessible to Congress members, especially Republicans who argued they fared poorly in the election because of White House preoccupation with fashioning a Nixon landslide. Consultation and cooperation now are oft-used words and the President himself has found it desirable to expand the list of those invited to periodic breakfast sessions with GOP congressional leaders.

Haldeman, 46, married and the father of four, became a dedicated Nixon partisan more than 20 years ago, admiring his dogged pursuit of alleged Communist Alger Hiss. A volunteer whose responsibilities increased with each Nixon campaign starting in 1956, he enlisted Ehrlichman in the cause.

Haldeman looks like a chief of staff, erect and tall, his thinning crewcut showing ample scalp. His sense of humor tends to be rather sardonic.

He brought several proteges, among them press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, to the Nixon staff from his position as vice president and Los Angeles manager of the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency.

Haldeman's most visible avocation is taking home movies of Nixon, which he shows to friends. Tennis, chess and the guitar also lay claim to his limited leisure time, along with such plays as "Godspell" and "Jesus Christ Superstar." Cocktail parties are not for him.

Ehrlichman is the more affable of the two but is no devotee of the Georgetown party circuit either. A World War II air corps navigator and former Seattle zoning attorney, he is 48, stocky, round-faced and balding. He and his wife have five children.

He and Haldeman have a zest for sunshine that keeps them tanned troughout much of the year as they follow their boss to Florida and Southern California.

Ehrlichman thinks of himself as an attorney with a single client, Richard Nixon.

His loyalty is unquestioned. So is Haldeman's.

Calloway Army chief?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard "Bo" Callaway, a former one-term Republican representative from Georgia, is in line to become secretary of the Army, congressional and Pentagon sources report.

Callaway, now a GOP national committeeman, would replace Robert F. Froehkle, the Army's civilian head for nearly two years.

Froehlke is said to be anxious to return to the insurance business in Wisconsin.

Hatfield fears involvement in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, fresh from briefings by Pentagon and State Department officials, says he believes events in Cambodia are following the pattern of secret commitments that preceded U.S. entry into Vietnam nearly a decade ago.

The Oregon Republican's statement came amid rising senatorial concern over Cambodia and as President Nixon received a 45-minute report from trouble-shooter Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. on his Southeast Asian fact-finding mission.

The White House gave no details on Haig's 45-minute meeting with Nixon Thursday afternoon.

Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson, meanwhile, said "there are no proposals" for a possible South Vietnamese drive into Cambodia to ease Communist pressure. But he said the presence of North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia in violation of the cease-fire agreement gives South Vietnam "a basis for retaliatory, self-protective action."

Hatfield, a long-time critic of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia, said "my anxiety has intensified" that U.S. actions in Cambodia may be repeating "the pattern of secret commitments and public denials" of Vietnam.

He made the comments in a statement issued following a secret briefing by administration officials to a Senate Appropriations subcommittee on which he serves. "Developments in the past days heighten the unpleasant but unavoidable truth that we are on the verge of more, rather than less, involvement in the continuing Indochinese war," Hatfield said.

He indicated that the State and Defense Department officials who appeared Wednesday had pictured U.S. bombing, military aid and airlift—plus support for a possible South Vietnamese invasion—"as indispensable for the survival" of the current Cambodian government.

In 1909, when William Howard Taft was inaugurated, 6,000 workmen labored 12 hours to clear the snow.

WSHS Honor Society inducts 26

The four symbols of the National Honor Society were explained by the officers. These included: "Character," by President Chuck Bath; "Scholarship," by Secretary Jeanne Gad; "Leadership," by Treasurer Melody Mustain, and "Service," by Vice President Steve Hill.

Cancer CAN be cured

300 people attend dessert smorgasbord

Cancer can be treated effectively, even cured, if it is detected early, and science now has developed relatively simple methods for early detection.

This was the heart of the message given by a panel of four local physicians to more than 300 people at the dessert smorgasbord sponsored by the county unit of the Cancer Society Thursday night in the Mahan Building.

Dr. Byers W. Shaw said cancer of the breast caused the death of 37,000 women last year and then declared that "if it had been caught early, 85 per cent of these patients could have survived." Methods for detection of breast cancer, he emphasized, are not painful.

Dr. Ralph Gebhart asserted that "beyond all doubt, lung cancer is caused by cigarettes." He said people may inherit a tendency for cancer.

Dr. Robert A. Heiny reminded that in 1937, uterine cancer was the No. 1 cause of death among women and that by 1972 the death rate has been cut by 65 per cent. The decline, he said, is credited to the use of the Pap test. Although the Cancer Society has encouraged women to have the Pap test, only 2,451 received it last year and of these 15 were positive. He said cancer of cervix is "practically 100 per cent curable with early detection." He added that home kits for detecting uterine cancer are not reliable and should be taken off the market.

Dr. Joseph Herbert was the panel moderator.

Eighty-five posters made by Miami Trace and Washington S. H. school art classes were displayed as a backdrop for the smorgasbord. A special group of them created by a Miami Trace school class was the center of attention and the student who made them were at the meeting. They were Wayne Armentrout, Tim Bryant, Doug Cottrell, Dick Davis, Pam Evans, Rudy Funk, Debbie Harter, Sharon Hawkins, Barry Knapp, Marvin Matthews, Terry Miller, Bruce Reed, Bill Roe, Randy Smith, Sherman Strickratt, Keith Sutton, Ron Warnock and Jeff Wilson.

The group attendance plaque was presented to the United Methodist Church of New Holland.

Fifteen prizes were awarded at intervals throughout the evening under the direction of Mrs. Billie Shaw and Mrs. Marilyn Heinz.

Entertainment was provided by the Miami Trace Folk Singers

Robert E. Minshall, president of the county unit of the Cancer Society, was the master of ceremonies for the after-dinner program. The Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation. Co-chairmen for the event were Mrs. L. C. (Sonny) Johnson, Mrs. Bart Mahoney and Mrs. Wesley Cox.

The Atlantic is widening, the Pacific is narrowing and the Alps are growing higher. Los Angeles is sliding northward and Africa is splitting apart.

No injuries in 3 mishaps

No injuries and only minor damage was reported in three traffic mishaps investigated by sheriff's deputies Thursday.

A Miami Trace School bus was one of three vehicles involved in an accident on Prairie Road, just east of Bloomingburg-New Holland Road at 4:40 p.m.

Sheriff's deputies said cars driven by William A. Sexten, 17, Rt. 4, and Beverly J. McMurray, 25, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville were following the bus and collided as they both pulled out to pass. The Sexten car then slid into the left side of the bus driven by Millard H. Wiedinger, 59, Rt. 3.

None of the seven passengers on the bus were injured.

A wheel came off the rear of a dump truck driven by Paul V. Wamsley, 38, Belpre, and ran through a large plate glass window at the Dairy Isle, CCC Highway-W, at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Officers said a freezer in the building was damaged by the runaway wheel.

The right front wheel of a car driven by James S. Woods, 66, Rt. 2, Leesburg, was damaged when it hit a trench dug across Rowe-Ging Road, just west of Ohio 41, Thursday evening.

Sheriff's deputies said the fill in the trench had apparently settled well below the road surface.

Onion prices may take breath away

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A comedian somewhere once did a routine about high-priced restaurants that included the line: "Eat all the onions you want. The check will take your breath away."

Food prices in restaurants and supermarkets, particularly meat prices, remain astronomical. Now, to the added shock of already stunned consumers, the price of onions is soaring.

Produce managers blame short supplies on weather-damaged crops, principally in Texas. This came on the heels of poor crops in other major onion-growing states, Idaho, New York, California, Michigan, Colorado and Oregon.

In Boston, a two-pound bag that sold recently for 49 cents was reported now retailing for 79 cents to 89 cents.

In Los Angeles, where a 50-pound sack of white onions sold for about $7 in January, the price now runs from $18 to $22. Similar conditions were reported elsewhere in the country.

The pintail duck is one of the fastest flying of all waterfowl, reaching speeds of 50 to 65 miles an hour.

Hobbies help alcoholic to health

STITCHES IN TIME — Jo Bucher thinks working with her hands helped her conquer a drinking problem. Now she designs — or engineers — needlework kits.

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jo Bucher has come a long way in the past dozen years — from a guilt-ridden, alcoholic nonfunctioning housewife to a vibrant, active teacher, lecturer, businesswoman and author.

"Like millions of American housewives, comfortably off with a nice husband and children, it just crept up on me," she says of the drinking problem that put her in a number of institutions before she conquered it. "I had quite a few years of happy social drinking, but someplace along the line I began to lean on it — use it as a crutch."

She and her husband wanted to believe it was nervous fatigue, "anything but the real thing," recalls Mrs. Bucher, who finally began going to Alcoholics Anonymous meetings after her husband said, "Shape up or ship out."

NOW SHE OWNS a needlework shop in Denville, N.J., runs a mail order service for supplies, gives workshops all over the country, writes articles and has just published her second book, "Complete Guide to Creative Needlepoint."

"I started making my own clothes at 11," the attractive Mrs. Bucher says. "My mother was a frilly Southerner and she dressed my sister and me alike in ruffles. My sister was the feminine type but they just weren't for me."

While she "knit right through a lot of bottles of booze," she didn't really get hooked by needlework until she picked up a couple of crewel kits to fill the time while she was in a Connecticut institution.

"Later I was looking for some interest and signed up for six weeks of courses at The Embroiderer's Guild here. I stayed three years," she adds.

She began to volunteer her services at a rehabilitation center in Blairstown, N.J., where she had spent some time, and became active in teaching AA members needlework.

"A HOBBY is a healthy thing," she explains. "You can't go to AA meetings all day and you want to become a part of the human race again. Most of us lose coordination and feel we have wasted a lot of time, so doing something creative gives you a sense of accomplishment."

After receiving her Embroiderer's Guild teaching certificate she set up her shop, Stitch Witchery, and with the revival of interest in crafts traveled widely to lecture at museums and workshops.

"People are beginning to realize the pleasure of working with their hands again, and more and more men are taking up needlework, usually starting with needlepoint or rugs and going on to other things," she says.

"The men who do this kind of work are usually much better than women. After all, the first embroiderer's guild in the 1400s was made up of men — they wouldn't let women in."

BOTH Mrs. Bucher's sons have done macrame, and her daughter and daughter-in-law do all kinds of handwork. Her two granddaughters, 7 and 5, already work on simple needlepoint, she says. But her husband, an oceanographer, expresses his creativity in building research vessels.

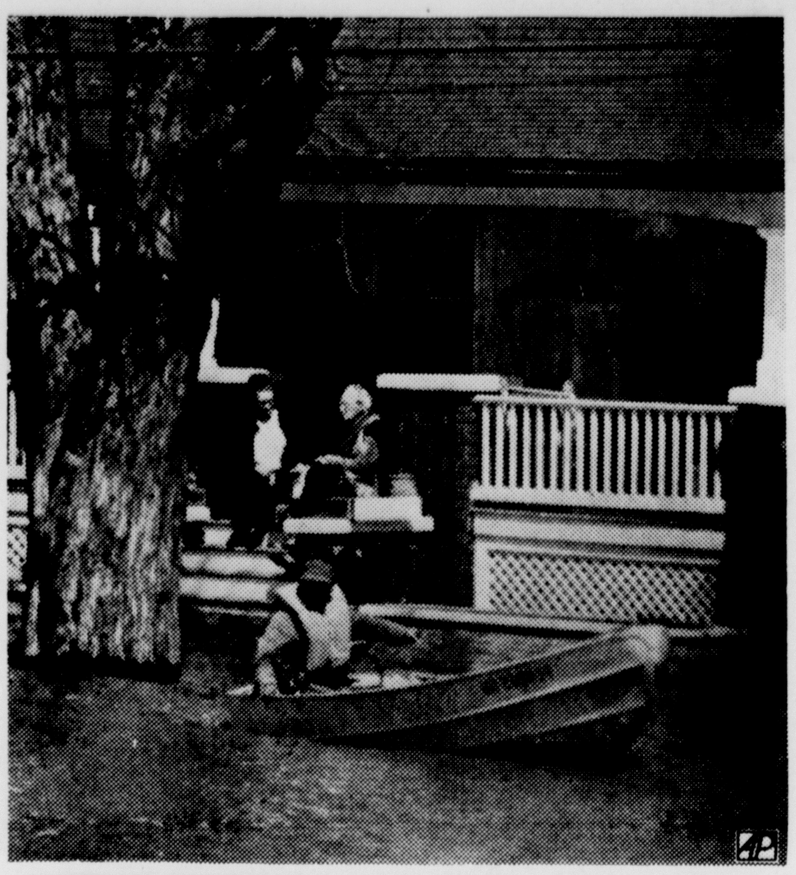

Mrs. Bucher was graduated from Cornell University with a degree in aeronautical engineering. That training has proved useful in the diagrams she makes for her books, which developed from pamphlets she prepared for her classes.

"They're really engineering schematics rather than artwork," she notes. "I think the analytical approach makes it easier for the reader to understand how to do the stitches."

AMONG the needlepoint items the author suggests are watchbands, slippers, lamp bases, typewriter covers, pillows, wall hangings, chair covers, wastebasket and tissue box covers, eyeglass cases, mirror frames and even an elegant flyswatter.

Mrs. Bucher continues her active life, slowed down only a little by the fact that she suffers from remissive spinal cancer.

"Your problems don't end when you sober up — you're just able to cope with them using the philosophy of one day at a time. Meeting the challenge of the other problem has helped me cope with this," she adds. "Every time you meet a challenge you build a little more for later."

Youth Activities

BLUE RIBBON CHAMPS

Jack Sommers, well known 4-H extension agent for Fayette County, was the guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Blue Ribbon Champs 4-H Club. "State and National Awards," was his topic for the evening. He pointed out that younger members should start now on keeping records of all their 4-H activities if they are interested in these awards. Mr. Sommers also showed slides and answered questions that were asked by members and advisers of the club.

"13 Steps to Alcoholism," was a dual report given by Health Leaders Julie Frost and Mark Holloway. Members were given a quiz on alcohol while Julie and Mark gave their report. Some of the signs of alcoholics were they have blackouts, liquor means more to them than friends, they drink more than they mean to and they start to drink alone.

Eddie Armintrout gave his safety report on "Protection Against Tornadoes." Ed told the club that the safest place to go during a tornado is a storm cellar or basement.

"Seat Belt Safety," was the topic of J. T. Perrill's safety report. J. T. stated that your chances of being injured in an accident are five times greater if you have no seat belts on.

Gary Mossbarger pointed out in his demonstration on "Caring for Sheep at the Fair," that the most important things were to keep your sheep watered, fed, and clean.

"How to Prepare a Garden," was the title of Robert Cotton's demonstration. Robert told some of the things he was going to plant this year for his project and answered the club members questions.

Jeff Smithson reported on the Program Committee meeting by reading the list of meeting dates and the speaker for each, and Raymond Mick reported that the club collected $32.27 for the Heart Fund. Roger Duff read the constitution which was approved by the club.

After the meeting, refreshments were enjoyed by all.

Kim Mickle and Marilee Garner moved for adjournament. The next meeting will be held in the home of Kim Mickle.

Refreshments were served following recreation by Melissa Orihood.

The meeting of the Jasper Top-Notchers 4-H Club was held in the home of Charles Hiser, adviser, Judging was the main topic of the evening, since the club had a team and two individuals who attended the Dorset sheep judging contest and the Hampshire Junior Field Day recently. The same team attended both contests and consisted of Tim Anders, Anita McFadden, and Mary Wilson. The two were Mike and David McFadden.

April 1 was club enrollment deadline.

Reports given were Tim Anders, "Cigarette Smoking," David McFadden, "What is Cancer?" Mike McFadden, "Tractor Noise, How Much Can You Stand?" and Kurt Klontz, "Power Mower Safety."

Refreshments were served by Mike Pierson and Johnny Blair. The next meeting will be April 17 at the Hiser home.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Barbed-wire fences may be harder to climb, and wooden fences harder to see through. But for sheer versatility, nothing beats the invisible fence erected around every piece of property by the laws of trespass and nuisance. Consider an example:

The Benson family lived next door to a vacant lot on which the owner kept a large pile of sand. Whenever the wind blew from that direction, sand would seep through the doors and windows of the Benson house.

Finally Benson sued the neighbor on grounds of nuisance. In court, the neighbor argued that he could not be blamed for what the wind did. But the court held it was unlawful — a breach of the invisible fence — for him to allow his sand to invade the Benson premises.

OTHER COURTS have taken a similar attitude toward leaves dropped from an overhanging tree, vines spreading into a lawn, eaves jutting over a boundary line (by a matter if inches), and sound waves from a neighbor's howling dog.

And, of course, the invisible fence also bars anyone from walking across your property without permission.

How high does the fence extend? Courts used to say it extended all the way up to heaven — a theory that, if enforced literally, would make every airplane flying overhead a trespasser.

Nowadays, your invisible fence extends only to a "reasonable" height. But still, your protection goes higher than the average housetop.

In one case a telephone company strung a wire 30 feet above a man's back yard, contending it was using only the "free and open" air. However, a court ordered the wire removed, since space that close to the ground might well be used someday by the owner himself.

"The space occupied by the wire," said the court, "was a part of his land. The law protects it from hostile occupation."

Although somewhat hampered by unseasonable spring weather, construction in the Washington C. H. area is booming. At least four new structures or additions to present buildings are underway as well as work on the U.S. 35 bypass. More projects are in the preliminary planning stages.

Work is progressing rapidly on the Goodyear Tire Service Center located in front of the Washington Square Shopping Center on Columbus Avenue and contractors are readying footers for concrete on the Pizza Hut Building at Elm and Cedar streets, across from Eastside School.

Roofing and siding is now being added to the new addition at the Seaway building, CCC Highway-W.

The future headquarters for the Case Power and Equipment Co., on CCC Highway-W, near the Drive-In Theatre, is taking shape, with most of the steel frame in place and some concrete work completed.

Cite fund needs for Ohio libraries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Library service to the homebound elderly, disadvantaged children, prisons, hospitals and rural Ohio counties will end June 30, unless $4.4 million is appropriated to the state library system, the head of the Ohio Library Association said Thursday.

A. Chapman Parsons, OLA executive director, said he will attempt to amend Gov. John J. Gilligan's $9.8 billion budget proposal to include funds needed by state libraries.

The biennium budget proposal was expected to be reported out of the House Finance Committee today. It does not now include additional funding for state libraries.

Parsons said the $4.4 million figure represents loss of federal funding as the result of President Nixon's cutbacks in social programs.

Parsons said Nixon recommended at the time that federal funding be made up by the states through revenue-sharing monies.

Ohio is expected to receive about $170 million in revenue-sharing funds over the next two years.

Ohio's public libraries are funded by the "intangible tax," which Parsons called "insufficient" to run most county library facilities. The Ohio Library Association has been helping to support these libraries through its federal funding and a yearly income of about $3.1 million from the state general revenue fund, Parsons said.

Along with the cutback in services, 116 library employes will be layed off if the additional revenue is not obtained, Parsons said.

Other services slated to be terminated Parsons said included:

Bookmobile service to 146,000 Ohioans in 21 counties.

—The state library catalogue center.

—A 70-county library unit.

—A reference and information network serving 79 libraries.

Storms hit Plains areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms rumbled across the southern Plains from central Texas to Oklahoma today in one of the few stormy centers in an otherwise calm weather picture.

Large hailstones pounded an area near Crosbyton, Tex., east of Lubbock, and winds reached 50 miles per hour, but little damage was reported.

Scattered light showers sprinkled the region from the northern Pacific coast to the Great Basin and the northern Rockies.

Dense fog settled over the coasts of Southern California and Texas and over West Virginia.

Below-freezing temperatures were confined mostly to the northern Great Lakes region, the middle and northern Mississippi Valley and the northern and central Atlantic coast states.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 17 at Marquette, Mich., to 77 at Blythe, Calif.

Cincy woman killed

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Ilona Hasler, 24, of Cincinnati, became Cincinnati's 16th traffic fatality of the year Thursday when her car hit a utility pole, police said.

Ohio wine lover continues fight against producers

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Paul Moran, a Cincinnati lawyer, fell in love with wine and wine-making 20 years ago during a visit to the wine-making area around Hammondsport, N.Y.

Now he is embroiled in a suit against five New York State wine producers charging their wine violates Ohio law. Moran said most of his information comes from material printed by the wine companies, themselves.

Moran's suit, filed Feb. 20, names the Taylor Wine Co.; Pleasant Valley Wine Co.; Widmer Wine Cellars Inc.; Gold Seal Wine Co. and Canadaigua Industries Co.

Moran said Ohio law, passed at the urging of Ohio winemakers in 1899, requires that all wine sold in Ohio must be made of at least 75 per cent pure grape juice.

For years, Moran said, the New York State manufacturers have been adding water and sugar up to 53 per cent in their products.

He called it a "cheap industrial way of reducing acidity," but added that he never charged them with "not making good wines."

Moran insists that the law, which was modernized in 1953, should be enforced. He has amended his suit to include those makers who are using dried grapes, called extracts, in their products.

Monday, the Ohio Board of Liquor Control, announced that tests had been made on the defendants' wines and nothing harmful to health was found.

The state is not part of the suit.

"I am delighted they have that result," laughed Moran, "because I drink it too. I didn't set out to accuse them of that. I never said it was harmful."

Moran said the law he cited is not part of Ohio Liquor Law. He said the state operates under the federal standards "in permitting the sales" of wines.

"The federal standards are very minimal," he said.

The smog is so bad in Tokyo, Japan, that traffic policemen and pedestrians are forced to stop at streetside oxygen stations to breathe oxygen into their lungs.

Cincy deals Dodgers fourth loss in row

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have lost four games in a row and six of their first seven.

Their manager, Walter Alston, is man known for his patience but not so the Dodger fans.

Thursday night there were 14,056 of them at Dodger Stadium and, reaching for someone to blame for the club's poor start, they chose shortstop Bill Russell.

He committed an error which cost a run, failed to get to a hard ground ball which let in another and then popped out to lead off the ninth inning in the Dodgers' 5-2 loss to the Cincinnati Reds.

The fans booed and afterward an emotional Russell said, quietly, "They pay their money, they can do what they want."

But Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson wasn't anywhere near as quiet as Russell as he defended the young Dodger shortstop.

"He's a fine athlete and he can play," said Anderson. "I'm really disappointed in these fans. That infield may be pretty to look at from the stands but it's terrible to play on. It's so hard. Those balls come off the bat like bullets. It's self defense."

Cincinnati, having swept the two games in Los Angeles, continues its West Coast tour Friday night in San Francisco in the first of a four-game series with the Giants. Ross Grimsely, 1-0, will start against San Francisco's Ron Bryant Friday night.

Characteristically, the Dodgers loaded the bases in the first inning against Cincinnati starter Jack Billingham, but managed only one run.

Against the Reds that's hardly enough. Cincinnati pounded out a dozen hits off Andy Messersmith who drew the loss. Seven of the 12 hits were produced by the Reds' big three at the top of the order—Pete Rose (double, single), Joe Morgan (double, single) and Bobby Tolan double, two singles. Tony Perez also had three singles.

Cincinnati scored twice in the third, added another run in the fifth, an unearned run in the seventh and one more in the ninth.

Defense key to Knight's success

It took young Bobby Knight only two seasons to install the disciplined control offense and hard-nosed man-to-man defense that characterized his teams at West Point after coming to Indiana University.

The Hoosiers took to it so well they captured their first undisputed Big Ten basketball championship since 1958 with an 11-3 record, posted a smart 22-6 all-games record and finished third in the NCAA tournament after losing to UCLA and Indiana was ranked sixth in the final Associated Press national basketball poll.

KNIGHT, who was a clear-cut winner in a poll of 40 Midwestern sportswriters and broadcasters for Big Ten Coach of the Years honors this winter, will be the featured speaker at the annual Miami Trace basketball banquet at 6:30 p.m. Monday, April 30.

The banquet will honor members of head coach Jan Stauffer's highly-prized 16-7 Miami Trace team which bounced back from a dismal 5-6 start to win a South Central Ohio League co-championship, the Rio Grande Class AAA sectional crown, plus the Southeastern District title before being ousted by highly-touted Columbus South in the Columbus Class AAA Regional tourney.

Tickets for the booster-club sponsored banquet can be purchased from Stauffer at the high school, at the high school office or from any member of the Miami Trace Booster Club. The ducats priced at $2.50 per person, can also be purchased at the Washington Paint and Glass Co., 125 N. Fayette St.

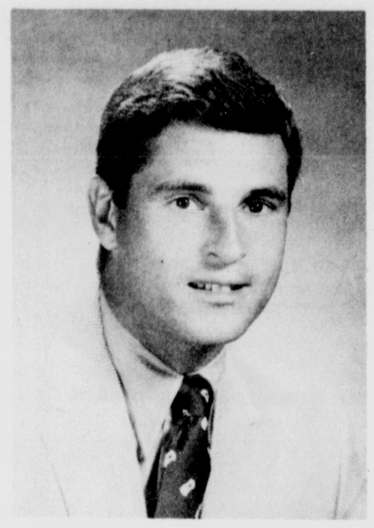

Defense is the key to Knight's brand of basketball and he played it to the hilt in six years as head coach at Army.

Taking over at West Point as a 24-year-old head coach, the Ohio State product built teams, despite the disadvantage of Academy height restrictions, which led the nation in defense in 1968-69-70, ranked second in 1971 and third in 1967. They produced a six-year record of 102-50, four invitations to the National Invitation Tournament, Army's best-ever season (22-6) and highest-ever national ranking, 16th in 1968.

The 32-year-old Hoosier head coach, who won ten letters as a prep athlete in Orville, was a 1962 graduate of Ohio State University and a three-year member of the Buckeye teams which won the 1960 NCAA title, Big Ten championships in 1960-61-62 and posted an overall mark of 78-6.

It also exposed him to the Big Ten's most successful coach, Fred Taylor, whose techniques and philosophy have shaped Knight's approach to the game and coaching it.

"Next to my father Fred has had more effect on my life than any other person," says Knight.

BOBBY KNIGHT

AFTER graduation with a degree in history and government Knight was an assistant coach at Cuyhoga Falls High School a year before entering the army, where he was assigned to be assistant to Tates Locke at West Point. After two years Locke, now head coach at Clemson, left to become coach at Miami University in 1965 and Knight was named to succeed him at the Academy.

Knight's first Indiana team finished 15th in the nation in defense, allowing opponents an average of only 67.1 points per game and this year the Hoosier head mentor successfully gambled with a youth experiment as he blended freshmen Quinn Buckner and Jim Crews and sophomore Steve Green with veterans Steve Downing and John Ritter for a winning combination.

In demand as a clinic instructor, Knight spent a month in Spain last year, lectured in Hawaii and this summer assisted veteran Hank Iba in the U.S. Olympic selection camp. He was also tapped for coaching and Clinic duty in South America.

But, Panthers lose

Four MT tracksters in top performances

Four Miami Trace tracksters turned in their top preformances of the spring campaign, but head coach Chuck Wallace's Panthers dropped a 90-37 decision to a tough Hillsboro team Thursday night on the Indian cinderpaths.

Three of Miami Trace's best performances came in losing efforts as Hillsboro, which will make a strong bid for this year's South Central Ohio League track championship, won a total of 13 events.

Ron Bays turned in his best effort in the mile run and won the event with a 4:58.3 clocking. Senior Gardner Cobb was defeated for the first time this season in the 440-yard dash as Hillsboro's Jim Buck won the race in 53.2, despite Cobb's best clocking of the spring.

Glenn Gifford and junior Jim Reno also turned in their top clockings of the year in the 100-yard dash and low hurdle events, but were beaten.

Miami Trace will participate in the annual Circleville Relays Saturday afternoon.

Cincy still seeks new hockey arena

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— There's still a chance Cincinnati can win a proposed new hockey arena for its downtown riverfront, but the city must come up with a proposal within two weeks, according to Mayor Theodore Berry.

Berry said after a two and one-half hour meeting with Cincinnati Hockey Club and city officials that the issue "is not dead."

Beulah Park loses spring racing day

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Beulah Park will not request an additional day for its spring thoroughbred racing meeting after losing Thursday's nine-race card because of snow.

"We probably will seek an extra day for the fall meeting from the racing commission," said an official of the suburban track.

Beulah races 31 days in the spring and 19 in the fall this year.

Three NBA quints facing elimination

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Superstitious?

Three National Basketball Association teams facing playoff elimination, better not be. Chicago, Milwaukee and Atlanta all trail their best-of-7 postseason series 3-2 with Game 6 scheduled for tonight, Friday the 13th.

In the only pro basketball playoff action Thursday night, the Utah Stars defeated the Indiana Pacers 124-107 to take the opening game of the American Basketball Association's Western Division finals.

The defending champion Los Angeles Lakers will try to finish off the Chicago Bulls, Golden State goes for the wrapup victory over the Milwaukee Bucks and Boston tries to eliminate the Atlanta Hawks in tonight's NBA action. There are no ABA playoff games scheduled for tonight.

Chicago and Atlanta will at least have the home court advantage going for them and in the series between the Bulls and Los Angeles, that advantage has been a factor so far. In the first five games of that series, the home team has won each time.

"Our fans really helped," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman of Tuesday night's victory which gave the Lakers the edge. "They were behind us every step of the way. In a playoff situation when the games get more physical, fans can really pick you up."

Boston, which dominated the first two games of its series against Atlanta only to drop the next two, staged a second half comeback to take Game 5.

Golden State has been doing just that at Milwaukee's expense, winning two straight to go ahead in the series. The Warriors would love to finish the Bucks off at home and avoid a return trip to snowbound Madison, Wisc.

No-hitter escapes McNally

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave McNally is in his April rut again.

Baltimore's veteran lefthander barely missed a nine-inning no-hitter against Detroit Thursday, finally getting a 10-inning, three-hit, 1-0 victory over the Tigers thanks to a throwing error by Detroit pitcher Mickey Lolich.

It was McNally's second start of the young baseball season— and his second three-hit shutout.

He started off last season with a pair of shutouts, a onerun game and two more shutouts before tailing off to a 13-17 record. That snapped a string of four 20-victory seasons for the 30-year-old pitcher.

In other American League games, the Chicago White Sox came from behind to beat Oakland 6-3, the New York Yankees stopped Cleveland 5-0, Texas defeated Kansas City 4-0 and Boston's game at Milwaukee was postponed due to snow and cold weather.

The unbeaten Orioles got their fourth victory of the season when Mark Belanger led off the 10th with a single and stole second. After Merv Rettenmund walked, Bobby Grich bunted. Lolich fielded the ball and tried for a forceout at third, but his throw was wild and Belanger came around to score.

"I'm throwing the ball better now than in the past couple years," said McNally, who handcuffed the Tigers over the first nine innings, when the only Tiger hit was a routine fly ball by shortstop Ed Brinkman, which Baltimore right fielder Rettenmund lost in the sun. It bounced off Rettenmund's right elbow for a triple.

Ken Henderson hit a grand slam home run in the eighth inning to lift the White Sox over Oakland. The A's, who got a two-run homer from Gene Tenace in the second inning, had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth when Chicago relief pitcher Terry Forster walked Sal Bando with the bases loaded.

But the White Sox came back in the bottom half of the inning, loading the bases on a single by Pat Kelly and walks to Carlos May and Bill Melton. Then Henderson, acquired from San Francisco in a major off-season trade, delivered his basesloaded blast off Rollie Fingers.

The Yankees' Steve Kline blanked Cleveland on a pair of singles, by Jack Brohamer in the fifth inning and George Hendrick in the sixth. Kline's performance came on the heels of a two-hit shutout hurled by the Yankees' Mel Stottlemyre against the Indians Wednesday.

"That's the way it should be done," noted Stottlemyre, approvingly.

Dick Bosman limited the Royals to one hit over seven innings and finished with a threehitter as Texas snapped Kansas City's four-game winning streak. Amos Otis singled in the fourth inning for the only Royals hit until Paul Schaal and Fred Patek came through with eighth-inning singles.

Gabriel eyes minor league

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Roman Gabriel's attorney says he has reached a tentative agreement for the unhappy Los Angeles Rams quarterback to play with a minor league club next season, despite threats he could be dropped from major league football.

But there were indications Gabriel was using the proposed contract with the Las Vegas Casinos to force a trade to some other National Football League club. Gabriel's attorney, Ed Masry, declined to comment on the matter after arriving here Thursday night, saying only, "Roman wants to be traded. If this helps him to be trade then as far as he's concerned it's beneficial."

Masry later met with owners of the Casinos and in a joint statement said the tentative agreement called for the 6-foot-4 signal caller to be paid $100,000 for an eight-game summer season with the team and be free to report to an NFL team by mid-August.

Gabriel, who has played 11 years for the Rams, still has two years remaining in his contract. But he has been seeking a trade and Masry said he wanted to join the Washington Redskins, coached by former Rams head coach George Allen.

Aaron out of Monsanto tournament

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — "I tried, but I just couldn't quite get with the program."

Masters champion Tommy Aaron, looking tired and drawn, was explaining his withdrawal after shooting a fat 77 Thursday in the first round of the $150,000 Monsanto Open Golf Tournament.

"I knew full well what to expect," said Aaron, who has had only a few hours of sleep since his Masters triumph Monday. "I'm just mentally and emotionally exhausted.

"I felt an obligation to play. I'd committed to the tournament and I was obliged. But after that 77 it's just hopeless for me to try to continue."

Homero Blancas, the happy hombre from Houston, held the first round lead with a 67, most of it built on his delicate touch around the slick, hard-to-hold greens that sent scores exceptionally high in this event that often produces a number of relatively low rounds.

Veteran Doug Sanders was alone in second with a 68 that he described as "not too exciting. Just another day at the office."

New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles, Chuck Courtney and Bob Wynn, grouped at 69, were the only others in the 144 man field able to break 70 on the 6,679 yard, par 71 Pensacola Country Club course.

Australian Bruce Crampton, who said he hit only six greens, headed a large group at 70. Defending champion Dave Hill had a fat 75 and must improve if he is to make the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

McCovey sparks Frisco powder keg

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Willie McCovey speaks, everyone listens respectfully. When he hits, everyone watches admiringly.

The biggest Giant of them all gave the crowd something to watch Thursday with two home runs in one inning that carried San Francisco to a 9-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

After carrying his big stick, the 6-foot-4, 230-pound first baseman spoke softly as reporters listened respectfully in the clubhouse.

"It didn't even occur to me that I was coming up again in the same inning," said the quiet, unassuming McCovey.

McCovey's two shots, his third and fourth of the season, drove in four runs and highlighted an eight-run fourth inning that sewed up the game.

In the National League's other games, the Montreal Expos trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 5-3; the Pittsburgh Pirates turned back the Chicago Cubs 6-0; the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1; the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres 3-2 and the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the Los Angeles Ddogers 5-2.

McCovey's feast on Houston pitching marked the first time in 24 years of baseball that a National Leaguer has hit two homers in one inning. Sid Gordon did it July 31, 1949, when the Giants were in New York California's Rick Reichardt was the last man to do it was in the American League, in 1966.

McCovey's power show made it easy for starter Tom Bradley, who secured his first National League victory. Houston's Ken Forsch, victim of McCovey's first clout of the inning, was the losing pitcher.

Jorge Roque's first major league grand slam homer keyed a five-run first inning that carried Montreal past Philadelphia. Roque's smash spoiled Jim Lonborg's debut before the Phillies' home fans and saddled the former American Leaguer with his first National League loss.

Home runs by Milt May and Manny Sanguillen and the fourhit pitching of Bob Moose helped Pittsburgh maintain its perfect record with a victory over Chicago. The Pirates' fourth straight victory was fashioned in near-freezing temperatures at Three Rivers Stadium before a sparse crowd of 3,764.

The New York Mets tagged Bob Gibson for two runs in the first inning and Tom Seaver and reliever Phil Hennigan made them stand up for their victory over the Cardinals. John Milner singled home Bud Harrelson with the first run and Cleon Jones later drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly.

Hank Aaron broke a tie with a solo home run in the sixth inning to lead Atlanta over San Diego. The blast was his second of the year and 675th of his career, moving him 39 behind Babe Ruth's all-time career record of 714.

All in the family: they're cymbal makers!

By RODNEY PRIDER

ISTANBUL (AP) — What do the Grenadier Guards, Armenian churches, jazz bands and Carnegie Hall have in common? They all use cymbals — tinkling thin ones, clashing big ones — and they all use cymbals made in Istanbul by a family which has been making them since the early 17th century.

The Zilcan family has been at work since 1623, producing nothing but the finest cymbals, from a formula handed down from father to son and still kept a solemn secret.

They make their own alloy, cast their own molds, and hammer, batter scrape and polish them into the final product, which they treat as tenderly as hi-fi fans treat their most cherished records.

The end product, they say, is the best in the world, and the list of customers is impressive. Some 2,000 to 3,000 pairs are exported each year, most of them to America, at prices ranging from $20 to $100.

THE ZILCANS, an Armenian family, have only a small share of the world cymbal market, and the American branch of the family, established at Weymouth, Mass., for the past 50 years produces many more than are made here.

The Zilcans attribute the quality of their instruments to their secret formula, and the fact that all the stages, including mixing the alloy of copper and tin, are done in the same workshop.

The workshop is a one-room, high-roofed shed in the slums outside the 4th century city walls of Istanbul, where it stands cheek by jowl with live animal traders, auto repair shops and fitters and turners.

Inside nine workmen, some Turks and some Armenians, hammer and hone and burnish and polish. The noise they create makes conversation below a bellow impossible.

"The finer tuning is done at the end of the day, when the noise stops," shouted Kerope Zilcan, 60, the cousin of the present owner Mikhail, 65.

THE CYMBALS come in four thicknesses — paper-thin, thin, medium, and medium-thick, and in any number of diameters from 10 inches to 24 inches, depending on the specification of the buyer.

The paper-thin and thin cymbals are used by dance-bands, the medium by symphony orchestras, and the thick by military bands such as that of the Grenadier Guards.

The firm of Toledo Brothers handles the orders and the exporting, and their representative calls each night at the workshop to collect the 20 or so cymbals produced during the day.

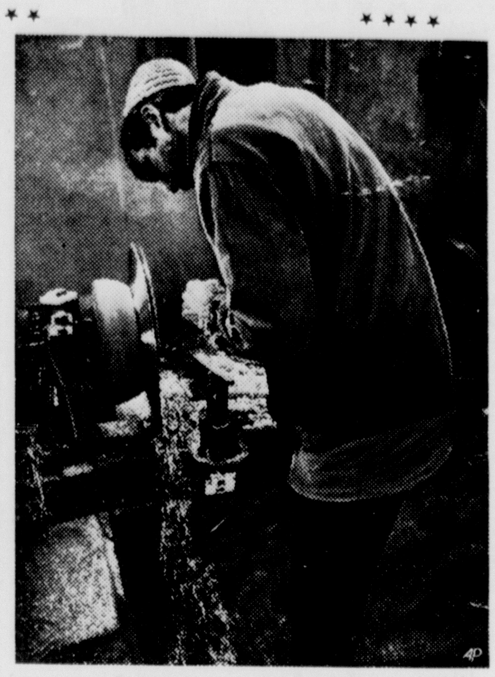

These have to be picked up gingerly by the edges — touch one and the perspiration has to be immediately rubbed off with a rag or the tone will be spoiled, Keroke Zilcan said.

CYMBALS have been in use as musical instruments since the Bronze Age, and are probably the oldest musical instruments man has. Primitive tribes in New Guinea and Australia use a wide variety of objects — stones, shells and sticks to clash together to maintain the rhythm for their songs, and these certainly predate primitive wind instruments made from hollow branches and the much later stringed instruments made from animal sinews.

The Zilcan family cannot trace their origins back to pre-history, but they still have records to show they were producing cymbals for the "Mehtar" bands of the Ottoman army's Jannissary corps, which terrified the armies of Europe with their shrill pipes and clashing cymbals.

More peacefully, they still provide the Armenian Patriarchal church here with the cymbals used to accompany the choir at the Liturgy.

MUSIC MAKERS — The Zilcan family in Istanbul has been making cymbals since 1623. The formula they use is handed down from father to son and still is kept a solemn secret. In the two pictures above, a workman is shown working on a cymbal and holding the finished product.

Bomb experts check liner

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Bomb experts and frogmen are making a thorough search of the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 before she sails Saturday with more than 2,000 Jews going to Israel's 25th anniversary celebrations.

The QE2 docked late Wednesday from Cherbourg, and visitors were barred from the pier as part of the extensive security precautions against Arab terrorist attack.

The British Defense Ministry said armed guards and bomb disposal experts will sail with the ship. The ministry tried to get the Cunard Line to call off the trip, but the line refused.

Speaking of Your Health...

Do You Have Hypoglycemia?

The mystique and confusion about hypoglycemia, or abnormally low sugar level in the blood, is attaining enormous propsitions.

It not unusual for a medical term to capture the attention and imagination of homemade diagnosticians.

Now it seems as if every conceivable symptom had been explained away by hypoglycemia enthusiasts.

It has been my fixed rule not to describe or identify symptoms of any medical condition I write about. The reason is that many readers, already tense and concerned, find it easy to say, "That's exactly what I have. Therefore I am sure that I have that illness."

The fact is that symptoms of various illnesses often resemble each other closely and thus usually cannot be pinpointed to one particular disease.

Today I am deliberately departing from this rule in order to emphasize how ridiculous it can be for anyone to make his own diagnosis of hypoglycemia simply by identifying with one or a combination of the following symptoms which can be associated with hypoglycemia.

Headache, fatigue, palpitation of the heart, restlessness, double vision, emotional upsets, sweating, mental disturbances, allergic reaction, changes in personality, nervousness, dizziness, hunger-weakness, tingling sensations in the fingers and the toes, drowsiness, inability to concentrate.

It is true that these symptoms occur in cases of hypoglycemia, but every one of these symptoms, single or in combination, can also be produced by a wide variety of conditions totally unrelated to hypoglycemia.

Hypoglycemia is a very definite, complex body disfunction.

There are two types: the organic type is associated with tumors of the pancreas, liver disfunction, hormone deficiencies especially related to the adrenal gland, and other intricate changes in the normal body function.

In this, and in the second type, there is an increased production of insulin.

The second, or functional, type of hypoglycemia may be associated with poor nutrition, severe muscular exertion, and faulty metabolism of sugar.

This second type is said to be responsible for the symptoms that have captured the imagination of super-enthusiasts of hypoglycemia.

There is no guesswork about this important condition. When it is suspected, very definite and conclusive tests of the blood sugar level can prove or deny the existence of the disorder.

The "five-hour glucose tolerance test," blood sugar studies while fasting, and a tolbutamide tolerance test are a few of the methods by which true hypoglycemia can be diagnosed. Once the diagnosis is made, treatment can be established, and the condition kept in control in most instances.

Many readers have written to say, "I know I have hypoglycemia and would like to know what to do about it."

The single most important thing to do is to make sure that you really have hypoglycemia by having your own physician check on your suspicions.

The alcoholic has been one of the most vulnerable people for the new fad — exploitation of hypoglycemia. Injections of cortisone or ACTH are not the answer to alcoholism, nor to hypoglycemia.

Only your own physician can direct you to the proper diagnosis and the proper control of this intricate disorder.

Meatless days are proposed by consumerists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newest national consumer group wants Americans not to eat or buy meat on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and to prepare for a national day of protest against food prices next month.

The battle cry for continued meat boycotts was sounded Wednesday as 150 women, all boycott leaders, met on Capitol Hill as the National Consumers Congress.

"I really think the consumer movement started here today," said congress chairman Betty Furness, New York City's commissioner of consumer affairs.

The group immediately called for two meatless days each week and designated May 5 as a national day of protest against high food prices with demonstrations scheduled across the country.

C. of C. lays plans for annual meeting

Plans for the 1973 Washington C. H. Area Chamber of Commerce annual meeting and program planning for the 1973-74 year were discussed Thursday at the Chamber's monthly board of directors meeting.

Fred L. Domenico, the 1973-74 president-elect, announced that the annual Chamber meeting will be held June 5 in the Mahan Building on the Fairgrounds.

Details for the meeting will be presented at the board session in May.

The board also established a format to be used in planning for 1973-74. The membership has been surveyed to determine program needs, and a committee will be appointed to draft a preliminary program for the board.

A budget committee also will be appointed to review the needs of the coming year, and its members will present a preliminary report to the board. The program of work will be formally announced at the annual meeting. The membership drive will open June 6.

Board members heard reports on agriculture, the annual Business - Industry - Education Day, a March 14 legislative conference held in Columbus and the progress of the physician-search committee.

HUGH WILSON, chairman of the chamber's agricultural committee, reported that the Chamber of Commerce and the Fayette County Extension Service worked together this past week on a public relations program for farmers. WBNS-TV (Channel, 10) in Columbus reported on Fayette County agriculture, a board members felt this was successful.

Plans for the annual BIE Day, which will be held in Washington Senior and Miami Trace High schools next month, have been completed, according to Bruce Galloway, chairman of the chamber's educational committee.

Galloway said panelists have been selected for the May 2-3 program and all that remains is to finalize plans for the banquet. The theme of this year's BIE Day program will be "Tell It Like It Is."

A report on the spring legislative conference held in Columbus was presented by George Winkle, head of the Community Improvement Corp. and a member of the Chamber board. Winkle stated that there was joint participation at the meeting by the Chamber, city and CIC and that those attending felt that it was one of the most successful sessions of its kind.

James Dunn, executive vice president of the Chamber, presented a report from the physicians committee. The board discussed the committee's progress and agreed that this program should be continued in the coming year. The physicians committee was successful in bringing Dr. Kwok Kuen Wong, who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology, to Washington C. H.

President Jerry Sheppard reported that preliminary ballots for new members of the board of directors have been returned at a good pace. He said 5 p.m. today is the deadline for returning the preliminary ballots.

Grangers discuss price rollbacks

NEW MARTINSBURG — Pomona Grange did not take any formal stand on a possible rollback of prices to check inflation, but during the informal discussion following legislative reports by Otties Smith and County Deputy Richard Carson, the opposition was unanimous.

Master Nathaniel Tway conducted the business session at which the subordinate Granges made their routine reports. Clarence Taylor reported for Marshall Grange, Gary Hidy for Good Will and Winfred Morgan for Forest Shade.

Deputy Carson read an invitation to the Fayette County Grangers to attend the Grange-sponsored Friendly Hills Camp, near Zanesville, and announced that Rural Life Sunday will be observed June 10 at the camp with a worship service and potluck dinner.

The theme of the program presented by Mrs. Charles Cook, lecturer, was "Welcome Spring." It included readings and poem recitations by Mrs. Robert Ritter, Mrs. Florence Bethards, Mrs. Maurice Sollars and Mrs. Cook.

After adjournment there was an auction of baked goods which netted $24 for the Grange treasury. Forest Shade Grange served refreshments.

Gilligan's net worth $306,602

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan today listed the net worth of he and his wife at $306,602, an increase of $48,347 over a similar report he made last year.

Gilligan said the increase was due primarily to a boost in value of their securities and personal property.

In making public his net worth, Gilligan called for "strong, effective legislation to insure ethical conduct by state employes and officials.

It was the fourth consecutive year Gilligan has filed a personal net worth statement. He requires all state employes under his jurisdiction earning more than $15,000 a year to disclose their finances.

"The people of this state and of the United States continue to view their public officials with distrust," he said.

'Scandals at every level of government, the Watergate incident, secret campaign funds, all add to this general feeling that politicians are on the make and on the take," he said.

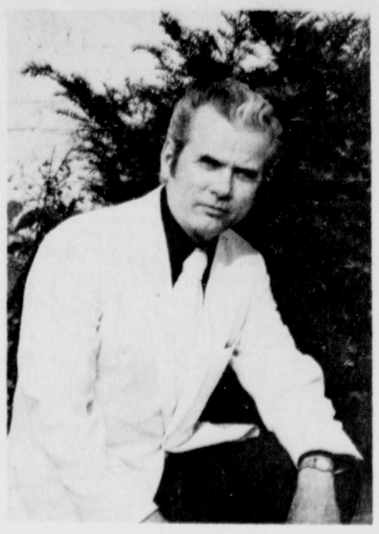

"Effective ethics legislation, such as that now under consideration in the House, is essential if we are to turn around this tide of mistrust," Gilligan said.

Gilligan noted that while his total income was approximately four times that of the average workingman, his state income tax was nearly 12 times as much.

"This is the real equity of this tax reform program," Gilligan said. "I pay more because I can afford more, and that is as it should be."

Gilligan's state income tax return showed he paid $787.50 based on taxable income of $37,750, less $1,500 for three exemptions.

A total of $827.86 has been withheld from his salary during the year and he had paid $100 in estimated tax payments. The Gilligans, therefore, would get a $140.36 refund.

EVANGELIST — Ed Bouseman, of Lynchburg, will conduct a seven-day revival, April 16-22, at the New Holland Church of Christ. Gerald Stemm, of Circleville, will be the song leader. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Howard McGinnis is the church pastor.

Police grill 4 in Gregg St. shooting

Bullet kills girl, 17

By ED SUMMERS

A 17-year-old Chillicothe girl was fatally wounded early Friday in a shooting at a Gregg Street home.

Police Chief Rodman Scott identified the dead girl as Demeatris Louise Winfield of 250 Locust St., Chillicothe. She was pronounced dead on arrival at University Hospital, Columbus, shortly after 5 a.m.

County Coroner Dr. Ralph Gebhart said death was caused by a gunshot wound to the left side of her head near the ear. The bullet, the caliber as yet unknown, was still lodged in her brain, X-rays revealed. Dr. Gebhart said the death was an apparent homicide.

Police have taken four local men into custody for questioning, all of them believed to have been at the residence at the time of the shooting. Officers are attempting to locate two others. Chief Scott said no charges have yet been filed in the shooting. A pistol was the apparent weapon.

Chillicothe police picked up two of the apparent witnesses shortly before 11 a.m. and local officers were en route there to question the pair.

POLICE DISPATCHER Mike Taylor said he was notified of the shooting by Esto Haithcock Jr., Delaware St., Steve Robinson, Bloomingburg, and Leonard Kelley, who lives at the shooting scene. Taylor said he met the trio at the door of police headquarters after hearing a horn blowing on Fayette Street in front of the building. They told Taylor there had been a shooting at 721 Gregg Street and to send an ambulance there.

Sgt. Charles Long immediately was dispatched to the scene where he found the girl lying on her right side on a couch in the front room of the residence. He said she was bleeding from the left side of her head.

The girl was taken to Memorial Hospital and then sent to University Hospital, Columbus, where she was pronounced dead on arrival. The body was returned to Memorial Hospital for a coroner's ruling and X-rays.

LONG SAID that when he arrived on the scene John A. Brown, 21, Rt. 1, Frankfort, was sitting on the couch, leaning over the girl. Brown later told officers he and the girl were alone in the house when someone forced their way inside through the back entrance. Brown said the intruder then entered the front room and shot the girl in the head.

There were six persons at the residence when officers arrived at the scene. Three men were taken to police headquarters for questioning at the time and the other man was apprehended by officers about 8:30 a.m. Two girls, one presently in custody of Chillicothe police, also are sought for questioning.

"We believe the girl was shot in the room where she was found," Chief Scott said. "We are trying to determine

DEATH SCENE — A chalk outline of a body marks the couch where police officers found Demeatris Louise Winfield, 17, of Chillicothe, following a shooting in the front room of the Leonard Kelley residence, 721 Gregg St., shortly before 4 a.m. Friday. Bloodstains from the wound in her head are visible. Police are questioning four local men but have filed no charges. Dr. Ralph Gebhart, county coroner, said the death was an apparent homicide.

Decision will affect 4,650 districts

Nixon to release school funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration today confirmed it will release $507 million in impact aid to thousands of school districts located near federal installations.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare said a statement will be released later explaining how the money will be distributed.

The decision marks a sharp turnaround in thinking at the White House. Earlier, it had impounded a substantial portion of the funds.

The impact aid to be distributed to some 4,650 school districts by midyear includes $68 million in one-time assistance to areas hit by Tropical Storm Agnes last June.

The decision will be especially important to districts with large numbers of non-military federal employes living but not working in their communities. Many had feared they would lose millions of dollars already locked into their budgets.

The allocations will be prorated under last year's formula, HEW sources said.

Districts will receive 100 per cent of their entitlement if children of federal employes living and working on federal premises make up at least 25 per cent of total enrollment, 90 per cent if less than 25 per cent of enrollment, and 73 per cent in other categories.

The entitlement figures are based on what districts would have received had the program been funded at 100 per cent of authorization.

Most of the money in the 22-year-old program goes to school districts on the basis of two categories. Children in Category A are those who live on federal property and attend nearby public schools. Parents of Category B children live in private residential areas but work at federal installations.

Until now, the U.S. Office of Education had been distributing 1972-73 funds only for Category A, which has the heaviest impact on local tax revenues, and for Category B children whose parents are in the military.

This eliminated aid to districts with heavy concentrations of non-military federal employes who work on government installations.

School districts in every state, and in nearly all the 435 congressional districts, will receive money because of the new decision.

About 4,650 districts have received "B" funds in the past, and 1,650 have claimed "A" children as well.

Last year Congress appropriated $592.5 million for impact aid, roughly two-thirds of it for children whose parents live in private residential areas.

Letters announcing the decision to school districts will be prepared next week, HEW officials said. A breakdown of allocations was not immediately available.

Air collision fatal to 16 probed

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — "The flames were 30 to 40 feet in the air and the wreckage was covered with black smoke. There was no way to get in there."

Fireman Ron Kimball was describing the scene after a National Aeronautics and Space Administration plane and a Navy aircraft collided in flight, plummeted onto a golf course in piggyback fashion, exploded and burned. Sixteen men aboard the planes died; one was critically injured.

"The one plane just set down on top of the other," said David Frame, 25, who was working on the Sunnyvale Municipal Golf Course when the planes crashed Thursday. None of the golfers or employes on the course was hurt.

The Navy immediately named a board of investigation to try to learn why the two four-engine planes were so close while approaching the Navy's Moffett Field, less than a half mile away. Both aircraft were on short test flights from Moffett.

Eleven of the men killed were in a Convair 990, a $2.5 million transport-type jet the National Aeronautics and Space Administration used as a flying laboratory.

The other five victims and the survivor were aboard a Navy P3 Orion turboprop, described by the Navy as a $10 million submarine chaser.

"The two aircraft were on their final approach, and the turbopop was in front of the jet," said Bill Brand, 47, the fire chief at Ketchum, Idaho, who witnessed the crash from a practice fire tower about a mile away where he was working with Mountain View firemen.

"The jet was gradually overtaking when the turboprop pulled up vertically," said Brand, who also is a pilot. "Then one of the jets caught the tail of the turboprop and turned it over."

The planes came down locked, with the Navy plane beneath.

"People just started to run," recalled Denny Castillo, an 18-year-old caddy. "Someone yelled, 'It's going to blow up.'"

PO 3. C. Bruce N. Mallibert, 22, of Mountain View, an antisubmarine warfare technician, was thrown clear of the Navy plane. He was taken to a hospital, where doctors said he was in critical condition with burns and fractures.

A golfer had covered Mallibert with his parachute, believing him dead, when Kimball reached the crash scene.

"People threw a chute over the body, but I yanked it off and felt his pulse and he was alive," Kimball said.

It was nearly three hours after the crash before the first bodies could be removed.

Debris was scattered over a 100-yard radius of the golf course, which borders busy Interstate 101 about 45 miles south of San Francisco.

The crash was within 100 yards of the freeway, over which planes approaching Moffett usually cross at an altitude of from 50 to 100 feet as they come in on a north by northwest course, a NASA official said.

Apathy reported in Ohio primary

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Indifference and confusion over election issues are two reasons why Ohioans may avoid the polls for the May 8 primary.

Election officials in four Ohio counties report registration for this off-year election is "very light."

Voters can register until April 27 in districts holding special elections, but the deadline was April 9 for all Ohio districts which have a May primary with candidates on the ballot.

The issues failing to attract the voters include proposals to amend the Ohio Constitution to permit a state lottery; permit taxing for construction of sanitary sewers and waterlines; repeal a provision which disqualifies convicted embezzlers of public funds from holding any office in the state, and prevent any person holding public money for disbursement, or otherwise, from having a seat in the legislature until the money is paid to the treasurer.

James Marsh, of the Ohio Secretary of State's office, said the seven constitutional amendment proposals on the ballot have not generated a large registration turnout.

"One-half or more of the counties have no election except the constitutional issues," Marsh said.

He added that the recently-enfranchised 18-year-olds helped swell 1972 voter registration, but the count was not much higher than the 1960 election.

Other county officials report youth registration has been very light for the primary.

In Lucas County, where registration closes April 27, some 95 to 100 students from an area high school took a school bus to register Wednesday morning.

Andrew Orevets, assistant director of the Lucas County Board, said registration has been "nothing to brag about."

Mrs. Janet Frentfos, assistant director of the Delaware County Board of Elections, said there is "no comparison" between registrations for the primary and general elections.

"Voters say they are confused. When they see the ballot, they don't know what they are voting on," Mrs. Frentfos said.

Report truce violations

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government charged the Communists with 171 more cease-fire violations today, the largest number in nearly a month.

The Saigon command said the defensive perimeter around Hue came under heavy bombardment, and North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops made a frontal assault against an infantry position in the hills 15 miles southwest of the city.

Lake dragging work resumed

The search for the body of a 20-year-old Stoutsville man, who drowned Sunday evening when his boat capsized at Deer Creek Reservoir, moved into its fifth day Friday.

The Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Friday noon that the Deer Creek area is being closed to the public until the body is found.

Pickaway County sheriff's deputies said dragging and diving operations for the body of Darrell Wheeler resumed again about 8:30 a.m. Friday.

Weather was favorable Friday for the searchers as strong winds and cold had hampered the operations the previous four days.

Sheriff's deputies said a plane would be used during Friday's operations in an attempt to spot the body.

Wheeler and three Circleville residents were riding in a motor boat which capsized on the lake shortly after 6:30 p.m. Sunday. The three others were pulled from the water by three Columbus men who were near the scene when the accident occurred. None of the three was seriously injured.

World farm trade fight opens

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — A battle is shaping up between the National Farmers Union and the Nixon administration over world farm trade and how a growing reliance on exports as dollar-earners might affect U.S. producers.

The administration wants Congress to write new farm legislation this year along the lines of the present Agricultural Act of 1970, but including more flexibility and authority for carrying out crop acreage programs and goals.

At the same time, the White House is seeking a freer hand in world trade. Farm products figure prominently in Nixon plans for future trade expansion, including heavy reliance on exports as a key to farm prosperity.

But the National Farmers Union, in views shared by some other general farm and commodity groups, says the pitfalls of opening up federal programs further are too risky and that currently large export markets are not all that dependable for the future.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, in Paris this week for a meeting of foreign agricultural ministers, sounded the administration view in a speech Wednesday.

"We see a basic consistency between our approach to domestic agriculture and goals in international trade," Butz told the meeting. "The idea of freeing American agriculture to produce is entirely consistent with our desire for a liberal trade system that permits American agriculture to compete."

Butz told the meeting, held under the auspices of the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, that the United States has moved on its own in recent months toward a market-oriented agriculture by expanding crop production, eliminating export subsidies and encouraging larger U.S. meat imports.

But at a farm meeting in Wichita, Kan., Weldon V. Barton, NFU assistant legislative director, took a dimmer view of the Nixon quest for more agricultural freedom and farm trade expansion.

Barton charged that the administration, faced with what he judges to be a growing balance of payments problem, plans to use farm export expansion as a hedge against rising import requirements for oil and other fuel.

"The most powerful force at work is the growing awareness that the U.S. will import several billion dollars more of oil and related fuels before the end of the 1970s," Barton said.

POW debriefings studied for possible legal action

WASHINGTON (AP) — Military officials are studying transcripts of the debriefing sessions with freed POWs to determine whether there is a basis for misconduct charges against a dozen of the 566 returned U.S. war prisoners.

After analyzing the mass of material, legal officers expect to be able to advise certain former war prisoners if there is enough evidence to warrant formal charges against other American military men for actions while held captive by the North Vietnamese or Viet Cong.

Some officers came out of the POW compounds in a mood to file charges against men they felt cooperated willingly with the enemy. Several are reported to have mellowed since their release but others are said to remain adamant.

Pentagon sources said the sifting of debriefing transcripts is informal. If formal charges follow, they said, there will be full-fledged investigations before any decisions are made on bringing freed POWs to trial before court-martial.

Civilian Defense Department officials have emphasized there will be no prosecutions for making propaganda statements while a war prisoner.

But, under the Uniform Code of Military Justice, a serviceman of any rank may file charges against another.

Dr. Roger Shields, head of the Pentagon's POW-repatriation program, told a news conference Thursday that "there are no charges pending against any man who has returned, right now."

Asked whether investigations are under way, he said: "I really don't care to comment in this area ... if there were investigations or if anything else were going on it would indicate something improper. I don't think we ought to indicate anything at all."

Many returned POWs have acknowledged signing antiwar statements; making broadcast tapes, and similar actions, but said they did so only after undergoing torture and severe beatings.

However, several POWs have said privately some Americans cooperated willingly and made propaganda statements without being tortured.

These are the men who may face charges.

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio House Finance Committee has put off until Monday a showdown on the administration's $9.8 billion budget bill which leaders want ready for a floor vote Wednesday.

Chairman Myrl Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, had planned to hold committee members over after Thursday's legislative adjournment, but said he decided to give them the weekend to consider amendments.

He said he will call for final discussions and a committee vote at a meeting starting Monday at 10 a.m. Leaders have scheduled a 10-day Easter recess after Wednesday sessions.

Senate Majority Leader Theodore Gray, R-3 Columbus, announced an unusual Monday night Senate floor session so members of that chamber can go home Wednesday afternoon. He also moved Wednesday night committee hearings up to Monday night. The lawmakers normally begin their work week on Tuesday and remain through Thursday.

Although majority Democrats have the votes to get the budget bill on to the Senate next week, Republicans served notice they want changes in it and are geared to work over welfare appropriations.

Rep. Sam Speck, D-95 New Concord, criticized Thursday what he said were "vague, indefinite" proposals by the administration in welfare spending. He said many questions remain unanswered about welfare programs, and that he will propose that the legislature pass a welfare budget for only one year.

The budget proposed by Gov. John Gilligan would finance state government for two years starting next July 1. The $9.8 billion total compares to $8.1 billion for the state biennium which ends June 30.

New bills continued to pour into the two chambers Thursday in advance of an agreed bill cutoff date of April 18. The Senate received 14, bringing its total to 240. Twenty-four more House measures brought the total in that chamber to 610.

The House, after a flurry of debate, passed 80-4 and sent to the Senate an emergency bill to authorize interim payments to doctors, hospitals, and others providing health care for the indigent under the federal Medicaid program. The state has been running months behind in the payments as a

Ohio safety slogan wins for woman

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Elsie Weldon of Baltimore was named grand winner today of the 1973 Ohio highway safety slogan contest for submitting the slogan, "Slow Up Today— Show Up Tomorrow."

Gov. John J. Gilligan presented the award to Mrs. Weldon at a luncheon sponsored by the Ohio Association of Insurance Agents.

Mrs. Weldon was given free use of a leased sports car for a year, including insurance. The auto has Gov. Gilligan's No. 1 license plate.

In the under 18-year-old category, Brian Walter, 17, of Utica, took first place with "Buckle Up, Buckeyes." He was awarded $35.

Second and third place winner in the under 18 category were Amy DeBlase, 16, of Piqua and Pamela Eveland, 14, of Crooksville.

The Ohio Association of Insurance Agents co-sponsored the slogan-essay contest with the Department of Highway Safety.

Boyd pushed for post

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Sen. William B. Saxbe, R-Ohio, has recommended the appointment of Columbus attorney Robert E. Boyd Jr., to the U. S. District judgeship for Southern Ohio, the Columbus Dispatch said today.

Saxbe has submitted the name of the 46-year-old Boyd to the U.S. Department of Justice for clearance, the newspaper said.

If approved by the department, Boyd would be nominated for the post by President Nixon, subject to Senate confirmation.

The vacancy on the bench is caused by the retirement of Judge Carl A. Weinman of Dayton.

Boyd was in Saxbe's law office when Saxbe was in private practice and served as first assistant when Saxbe was state attorney general.

Broadcaster Jim Runyon dies

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Jim Runyon, veteran Cleveland disc jockey who resigned from radio station WWWE in March because of ill health, died today in Lutheran Medical Center.

Runyon, 42, had been off the air for two weeks prior to his resignation March 15 while undergoing tests at the medical center.

His illness also forced him to relinquish his role as host of "The Gene Carroll Show With Jim Runyon," an amateur talent program telecast at noon Sundays on WEWS-TV.

Runyon also had been host for an amateur talent program on WHIO-TV in Dayton a few years ago. He had been at the helm of the Carroll show since May, 1972. Carroll died March 5, 1972, but had taped several shows in advance.

Shoe burglars like neatness

OAK PARK, Ill. (AP) — When William Crowe went to the shelves of his shoe store to look for a certain pair the box was bare.

He started looking in other boxes. All shoes were gone from 245 boxes.

Police said thieves apparently took the shoes — worth about $6,500 — and replaced the boxes.

"A pile of empty boxes on the floor would attract attention, I guess," said Crowe. "I wonder if they had the sense to tie the pairs together. Otherwise they are going to spend Friday the 13th with a headache of sorting."

Extend tax deadline

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan today said Ohio's district tax offices would remain open all day Saturday and until midnight Monday to accommodate persons filing their state income tax. The filing deadline is midnight Monday.

Ethics backers on Holiday trip to Acapulco

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The chairman and two members of the House Committee considering ethics legislation for public officials are attending a week-long auto dealers convention at the posh Princess Hotel in Acapulco, Mexico.

None of the politicians or convention officers could be reached to establish who paid the bill for the trip, but a hotel spokesman said the lawmakers' hotel bill will be paid by the Ohio Automobile Dealers' Association.

Listed as guests at the hotel were:

—Rep. Michael Del Bane, D-56 Hubbard, chairman of the State Government Committee, which held a hearing on the ethics bill Wednesday.

—Rep. Charles E. Fry, R-75 Springfield, a longtime sponsor of ethics legislation and a member of the subcommittee which reported the bill to the committee two weeks ago.

—Rep. Arthur R. Bowers, D-98 Steubenville, another member of the State Government Committee, which is to vote on the bill next Tuesday.

—Sen. Donald E. "Buz" Lukens, R-4 Middletown.

Airline officials said the one-week round-trip excursion fare between Columbus and Acapulco is $250. Double room rates (including two meals) at the Princess Hotel start at $68 per day.

Officials at Port Columbus International Airport said two chartered planes carrying 307 persons from Columbus to Acapulco left here last Friday morning end were due back late tonight.

The Auto Dealers Association made headlines a year ago when the Cleveland Plain Dealer reported six legislators—and five wives—had been given a cut-rate, one-week vacation package to attend the group's annual conclave in Honolulu.

Several days later, the newspaper reported, all 11 were bumped off the association's return charter flight when the airline learned they were not members of the association.

The ethics bill, one of Gov. John Gilligan's top priorities, has been touted by the administration as an attempt to help restore public confidence in the government.

Under one provision of the proposed measure, it would be a misdemeanor for a public official to "use his official position to secure provisions for him that would not ordinarily accrue to him in the performance of his official duty."

If convicted, the official would be subject to removal from office.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Following is the Ohio weather summary from the National Weather Service:

A large, cool high pressure centered over the upper Great Lakes was forecast to push through Ohio today, bringing sunny skies, but cool temperatures.

Fine spring weather is forecast for the weekend, with the nearest storm system expected to affect Ohio two days away.

Skies were clear this morning except for some clouds in the northeast where a few snow flurries were reported.

Temperatures fell to the mid to upper 20s across Ohio as cold air arrived with the high.

Cleveland was the only weather office reporting overnight precipitation, and there it consisted of only a few flurries.

Most of the snow which fell in central Ohio Thursday morning melted Thursday afternoon as temperatures climbed into the 40s. Snowfall amounts totaled as much as five inches.

Gradually warming temperatures are forecast for the weekend, with readings in the 50s and 60s expected.

Mild Sunday and Monday. Cooler Tuesday. A chance of rain Sunday night and Monday. Highs in the 60s, lowering to 50s on Tuesday. Lows in the 40s, lowering to 30s on Tuesday.

exactly what happened and have filed no charges at this time."

Agents from the Bureau of Criminal Investigation were at the shooting scene for about two hours Friday morning, assisting police in the investigation.

The body of the Winfield girl was taken to Davidson Laboratories, Columbus, for an autopsy and removal of the bullet. Chief Scott said one of his officers was accompanying the body to return the bullet.

The pistol used in the shooting has not been found.

Hold Arab citizens

TEL AVIV (AP) — Acting on data from documents captured in raids on Arab guerrillas in Beirut, Israeli officials arrested a dozen Arab citizens today on suspicion of having links with the Palestinian guerrillas, police said.

A judge in northern Israel, where the suspects reside, ordered them held for 15 days pending court proceedings. They include a British-educated intellectual from Nazareth.

Industries face pricing questions

WASHINGTON (AP) — With a showdown set next week on the future of wage-price controls, the Nixon administration has summoned representatives of key industries to find out why their prices have skyrocketed.

The Cost of Living Council will call in representatives from the textile, canning, paper, nonferrous-metal and machine-tool industries, among others, it was learned. "We want to try to find out more about these industries, take a harder look at the problem areas," a council source said.

The goal is to try to hold downs these prices.

The industry sessions will open next week and will continue for several weeks.

The council has been edging back toward Phase 2-type mandatory controls in several problem areas as Congress debates proposed new ceilings on prices.

Meantime, House Democratic leaders decided Thursday that legislation to set ceilings on most prices and interest rates at their March 16 levels will go to the House floor Monday and a vote will come later in the week. If the bill passes the House, it must go to a Senate House conference.

Congress plans to adjourn next Thursday for an Easter recess. If it does so without approving President Nixon's request for a one-year extension of his authority to control wages and prices, the power would expire 11 days later.

The Nixon administration wants a simple extension of the law and is strongly opposed to the proposed price ceilings up for a House vote.

The administration criticized a proposal that would have extended controls temporarily for 60 days while Congress debated the bill. This would have caused companies to raise prices in anticipation of stronger controls by Congress, administration officials said.

The bill up for a House vote would roll back rents back to the Jan. 10 level while allowing landlords to pass on, dollar-for-dollar, increases in taxes and other costs.

The president would be required within 60 days to bring about further rollbacks in prices or explain why they were not feasible.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said recently the congressional ceilings are not workable and hinted that Nixon might veto them, leaving the nation without controls.

Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, said Thursday in New York that the answer to "rampant runaway inflation" is "a complete freeze without time duration."

The Arkansas Democrat said he has suggested to Nixon that the only way to control rising prices is to "go back where he was on Aug. 15, 1971." That was the date on which Nixon began a 90-day freeze on wages and prices.

Mills would exempt interest rates and agricultural products at the farm level from the freeze.

Judge attacks Nixon powers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Supreme Court showdown is shaping up in the growing controversy over presidential power—if the Nixon administration wants to test the issue.

Federal judges within the last two weeks have disagreed with White House actions. The Nixon administration has yet to say whether it will appeal the decisions that ruled against presidential power to impound appropriated funds and halted dismemberment of the Office of Economic Opportunity.

The Administration maintained that both questions were political ones to be thrashed out between the President and Congress without a judicial referee.

In each case, that argument was rejected by the courts.

In halting as illegal the administration's plan to abolish OEO, U.S. District Court Judge William Jones placed his assessment of the government's present policy in stark terms.

The government "really argues that the Constitution confers the discretionary power upon the president to refuse to execute laws passed by Congress with which he disagrees," Jones wrote Wednesday.

Jones ruled to the contrary as did the U.S. Circuit Court at St. Louis in a much more-limited opinion issued last week.

result of federal-state red tape, and some providers claim they are bankrupt.

Rep. Richard F. Celeste, D-5 Cleveland, the main sponsor, said the bill would authorize payments to providers who have not collected 35 per cent or more of their bills since last September. Payments would be up to 35 per cent of the bills they submitted in the calendar years 1971 and 1972, Celeste explained.

Rep. Rodney Hughes, R-78 Bellefontaine, charged that the backlog in payments was a result of "bureaucratic bungling" in the Welfare Department and added: "I would urge the defeat of this silly bill. It would only create further chaos in the Welfare Department."

Minority Leader Charles F. Kurfess, R-83 Perrysburg, joined in the criticism of the department although he voted for the bill.

"This is a bill of solid good intentions growing out of a boondoggle the size of which the state hasn't seen in years," Kurfess said.

Rep. Ethel G. Swanbeck, R-72 Huron, chided her fellow Republicans for their criticism of the bill.

"We're only going to clear this up if you get politics out of your minds," she said. Mrs. Swanbeck, the wife of a doctor, said the backlog started in 1954 and speeded up in the last eight years.

A bill that grew out of Ohio's recent hog cholera epidemic was one of two measures that passed the Senate. It authorizes the director of agriculture to quarantine geographic areas of disease rather than individual farms as provided in the present law.

Sen. Robert T. Secrest, D-20 Cambridge, said the measure also sets penalties for quarantine violations and increases the amounts the state may pay for animals ordered destroyed.

First-time quarantine violators would be subject to a fine of $100 to $300, and subsequent violations would be punishable by a fine of $200 to $500, and 90 days to six months' imprisonment, or both.

The measure increases from $40 to $50 per head the amount that could be paid for a destroyed "grade" animal, and from the $70 to $100 the payment for registered purebreds.

Also approved and sent to the House was a bill by Sen. Richard G. Reichel, R-29 Massillon, exempting transfers of real estate to non-profit organizations such as churches from the real estate transfer tax. The tax is a mandated one mill in all counties, but some have added a piggyback levy of three mills under state permissive tax laws, Reichel said. The exemption would apply to the piggyback tax as well, he added.

2nd meat boycott planned in May

LOS ANGELES (AP) — An organizer of the nationwide meat boycott the first week in April says there'll be another the first week of May.

June Donavan, chairman of Fight Inflation Together, announced a second boycott Thursday, saying prices are "still outrageous." She said the new campaign will run from April 30 through May 6.

FIT organized the first nationwide boycott and went ahead with it despite President Nixon's last-minute order freezing meat prices at late March levels.

Judge rejects Watergate secrecy request

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal district court judge has refused the request of Sen. Sam J. Ervin to suppress publication of future lawsuit testimony by Watergate burglar James W. McCord Jr.

U.S. District Court Judge Charles Richey ruled Thursday that such an order would violate the independence of the court and the public's right to free speech and free press.

Ervin heads a Senate unit investigating the Watergate wiretapping and other political espionage. He argued in an April 9 letter to Richey that McCord's testimony should be sealed to prevent "premature public release" and to avoid "unfair public implications of persons in criminal activities who may be innocent."

McCord is scheduled to begin telling what he knows soon about the Watergate burglary and related events to lawyers representing the Democratic and Republican parties in suits arising from the case.

Unlike McCord's previous testimony before a federal grand jury and Ervin's Senate committee, the lawsuit depositions will be made public as soon as transcripts are ready. This could be within a few days.

Ervin's committee, engaged in staff investigations, has yet to schedule a start for its promised public hearings.

McCord had planned to hold a news conference before release of thenlawsuit testimony but Thursday his lawyers called it off. One of them said it was because Ervin objected.

Qualified sources have reported that McCord, in his grand jury testimony, said he had received $3,000 a month to keep quiet, and that other defendants received $1,000 a month.

He reportedly said the money came from Mrs. Howard Hunt, wife of another of the Watergate conspirators, and that she told him it came from Kenneth W. Parkinson, an attorney for President Nixon's re-election committee. Mrs. Hunt died in a commercial plane crash last December.

Parkinson was present in court Thursday, representing the Republicans in the civil actions. He again denied McCord's reported allegation, and argued strongly against sealing McCord's future testimony.

"If ever a deposition in a civil case ought not to be under seal it is that of James McCord," Parkinson said.

In other Watergate developments:

—Clark MacGregor, who headed the 1972 Committee to Re-elect the President, was quoted by the Christian Science Monitor as saying "public anger has probably deepened" over the Watergate affair, which he said probably cost Mr. Nixon "between three quarters of a million and a million and a half votes." MacGregor said when he took over the committee he asked "each of the principals in the committee" whether they had any knowledge of Watergate and "I got a straight, factural, look-me-in-the-eye negative."

—George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, said President Nixon "fully understands the Watergate problem" and "will clear it up totally." He wouldn't elaborate.

U.S. rips Arab charges as lies

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The United States and the Arab world headed into a confrontation at the U.N. Security Council today over Palestinian charges of U.S. involvement in the Israeli raid on Beirut.

Delegates predicted the debate, which started late Thursday and could stretch over the weekend, would produce the second U.S. veto in the council in less than a month.

Egyptian Foreign Minister Mohamed Hassan el-Zayyat was en route to U. N. headquarters to deliver a major speech.

Arab anger over the Israeli slaying of three Palestinian leaders in Beirut Tuesday was matched by official U. S. anger over Palestinian broadcasts charging American involvement.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers called envoys of 13 Arab countries to his office in Washington and asked them to have their government radios carry the U.S. denial of the charges as an "absolute falsehood."

U. S. Ambassador John A. Scali told the Security Council "the monstrous accusation that the United States somehow helped carry out the events in Lebanon ... originated with those who oppose at all costs and by any means a peaceful settlement."

Scali warned that the Palestinian accusations could encourage new violence, presumably meaning against Americans. He demanded that "all governments concerned ... disassociate themselves from this outrageous lie and take steps to prevent the spread of such slander, which can do great harm to the cause of peace."

Lebanon called on the council to produce a resolution against Israel stronger than condemnation. Ambassador Edouard Ghorra asked the council to use "force—moral force, political force, legal force" to punish Israel and end "Israeli aggression against Lebanon. Condemnation of her action is not enough."

Israeli Ambassador Yosef Tekoah in reply charged that Lebanon "has convened the Security Council to ask license for the continuation of terrorism."

He said the raids against Lebanon were undertaken out of "necessity to stamp out such outrages as the Lod Airport massacre and the Munich murders," the "assassination of diplomats in Khartoum" and the Palestinian attacks last Monday on an Israeli airliner and the Israeli ambassador's home in Cyprus.

Kroger reports lower earnings

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The president of Kroger Co. told the annual stockholders meeting Thursday that sales are up but rising costs, particularly in the wholesale food industry, led to lower earnings.

A 32½-cent dividend for all shareholders of record April 27, payable June 1, was declared by the board of directors.

President James P. Herring reported an 11 per cent rise in sales for the first quarter ending March 24. The $928 million total compared to $836 million for the same period in 1972.

Herring said there were 4,000 wholesale cost increases in food items.

Songwriter succumbs

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Arthur Freed, 78, movie producer and songwriter who won two Academy Awards for best picture, died Thursday. His Oscars came for "American in Paris" and "Gigi." He collaborated on the songs "Singing in the Rain" and "You were Meant for Me."

Opinion And Comment

No bread? Try some cake!

The Bureau of Labor Statistics has rubbed some more salt in the wounds of housewives engaged in the Battle of the Supermarket. Rising food prices, we are told, have brought the biggest monthly cost-of-living jump in 22 years.

This lends a probably unintended air of prediction to James McLane's urging that people with food budget problems "eat a little less" to relieve the pressure. As the upward trend continues, many may have to do just that.

McLane, who is deputy director of the Cost of Living Council, delivered himself of this advice in response to questions about what remedies the government might have in mind. Doubtless he was just trying to be helpful. Unfortunately, his remark echoed that famous one attributed to a French queen around the time of the revolution: upon being told that the people had no bread, she is said to have retorted, "Let them eat cake."

A strained comparison? Perhaps. Yet what is one to make of a high public official in comfortable circumstances who seems so callously insensitive to the harsh problems which confronted large families with small incomes?

McLane and others of like mind would do well to exhibit less wit and more empathy. The supply of cake may run out.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Reflections on the eve of April 15

Irwin Schiff, an economist friend of mine who has a well-earned reputation not only as an analyst but as a prophet, has asked a leading question of the Internal Revenue Service.

The U.S. government itself has officially stated that $1,000 U.S. dollars as of Feb. 11, 1973, had lost $100 in value by Feb. 12 because of the devaluation. Since the dollar is now officially worth only 90 cents, Mr. Schiff wonders why it wouldn't be legal to knock 10 per cent off one's income for tax purposes.

"Financially," he says, "it makes no difference if a taxpayer loses purchasing power by losing money himself (and thus creating a tax deductible loss) or if the government loses purchasing power for him by devaluating the money he owns or has a claim to."

Mr. Schiff is being wryly facetious, of course. For two generations now the government has been taking capital gains without reference to the inflation that has cut the value of the dollar in half.

EVER SINCE the Supreme Court dishonored the gold clause in the Nineteen Thirties it has been perfectly legal for the government to cheat its citizens. But if the citizen were to try to recoup on his IRS forms for losses inflicted by government he would quickly discover that his demand for official honesty would be rated as a species of theft in itself. Only an occasional Vivien Kellems has the fortitude and the nerve to fight things out with the IRS on the basis of common morality, good logic and accurate semantics. Other people can't afford the luxury of martyrdom.

Prophets who are right can be annoying, and some of the things that Irwin Schiff said at a congressional hearing in January of 1968 must be causing such luminaries as Sen. William Proxmire (D., Wis.) and former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board William McChesney Martin Jr. a great deal of pain these days. Schiff had testified against repealing the gold reserve backing for Federal Reserve notes.

"Removing the gold reserve," said Schiff, "is inflationary. Dollars can simply be run off a press and they would be. Prices would climb higher and higher (price controls would be demanded but would do no good) and gold would get scarcer and scarcer.

Such a move would not be interpreted as strengthening the dollar since a dollar backed by nothing cannot be better than a dollar backed by something. Ultimately we would lose two or three billion more (in gold) and then hopefully it would dawn on somebody that we dare not lose it all."

At this point, Schiff told the senators, gold sales to foreign nations would be suspended.

PROXMIRE AND MARTIN disputed Mr. Schiff's gloomy predictions. Proxmire called the gold reserve requirement "irrational," and Martin said the removal of gold backing was "inevitable" and actually necessary to "discourage market speculation." So Schiff was made to look amateurish by the "experts" when he prophesied that our new policies would end in devaluation and price controls, with gold hitting $105 an ounce on the free market instead of $35 an ounce. Schiff missed the mark by a few dollars; gold was at $95 an ounce on the free market in mid-February of 1973.

Give Richard Nixon credit, he is trying to do something to check inflation and, thus, to keep the IRS honest when it insists on taxing your dollars as if they were stable entities.

But as long as we live in a society that turns to government itself to maintain full employment, inflation will continue to be our way of life. There won't be any way out of the dilemma until some formula is discovered to keep unemployment at a minimum without calling in the government to subsidize the jobless as a matter of right.

WASHINGTON CALLING . . . by Marquis Childs

New national food policy urgent

WASHINGTON — There is some misconception of what old King Canute was up to when he sat on the shore and ordered the tide to stay back. Under no illusion himself, he was demonstrating to his foolish sycophantic courtiers that he could not control the forces of nature.

A parallel may exist here with President Nixon's attempt to hold back prices against what many of his own courtiers believe are the inexorable laws of supply and demand.

As the battle of the beefsteak rages on, grumbling can be heard in the White House directed at Secretary of the Treasury and general commander of domestic affairs George P. Shultz. The kindest thing said about him is that he is an ideologue with his feet stuck in concrete.

Whether Shultz was personally responsible for the incredible folly of abandoning the Phase 2 controls, which were working fairly well, for the charade of Phase 3 no one will say. But the onus falls heavily on the commander who now confronts the rising tide of protests, boycotts and a demand in Congress for a rollback of prices to the level of early January.

OBSERVERS with close contacts with consumers feel that neither the boycott nor the freeze on food prices will substantially lower the total the housewife pays at the checkout counter. The latest 2.2 per cent jump in wholesale prices makes the retail climb inevitable for several months ahead. And the most-disturbing aspect of that jump was the way in which prices of industrial commodities nearly kept pace with the consumer rise.

One of the ablest consumer advisers, Mrs. Esther Peterson, a former assistant Secretary of Labor, in talking to housewives finds an awareness that government tinkering with prices is not enough. As one of her audience put it recently:

"I'm a Republican and I don't like to think that it's Mr. Nixon's fault that we're paying $2 a pound for steak and $1.50 a pound for hamburger. Isn't there something wrong with our food policy?"

A GREAT MANY people are asking whether the present food policy is not a completely outmoded carryover from the scarcity concept of the '30s. That was when, under the New Deal program to raise the level of farm income, millions of acres were taken out of production and farmers — not a few in the large-scale agribusiness— were getting government checks to keep their land idle.

After delaying for more than seven months, Secretary of Agricultural Earl Butz finally began to reverse this scarcity program. But far more must be done to put idle land back into production. At least 50 million acres can become productive again if governnment moves quickly. Given the great facilities of mechanized agriculture in this country, the problems of food at home and abroad could be manageable.

The boycott has served at least to bringing into sharp perspective the urgent need for a new national food policy. Last year the chairman of the American Meat Institute, Clifton B. Cox, who is also president of Armour Food, in his annual report pointed to the "feast or famine" character of livestock production and marketing resulting in inefficiency and start-and-stop operations contributing to unemployment and higher prices.

"We need a national policy to stabilize the production of an ample supply of meat for consumers," Cox said.

HE LAID DOWN several prescriptions for a new policy. Most important was the stabilization of food drains with a government-sponsored storage and insuracnce program to level off the peaks and valleys in the supply of what is the raw material of meat production. It takes eight pounds of grain to produce one pound of beef.

Agriculture is the most-vital element in the American economy. If the full force of productivity on the farms is unleashed, exports of wheat, feed grains and soybeans can go a long way to offset the deterioriating trade balance in the next decade.

The red-ink side of the trade ledger will be augmented by 1980 with a deficit in the cost of imported oil of up to $17 billion a year. One estimate is that the abundance of the farms as geared to full production could offset at least half of this.

The hard-working American farmer with the superior mechanization at his command can do a lot to pull us out of the trade slump. But government must be an active partner if this is to come about.

Dear Abby:

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

How much does daughter owe her Mom?

DEAR ABBY: How much does a daughter owe her mother? Mom divorced Dad when I was five. I'm 23 now, and Dad has paid her a generous alimony all these years, plus child support which enabled me to have the best clothes, music lessons, dancing lessons, and a college education. Mom never had to go out and work.

I recently married a wonderful man whose work takes him all over the world. At first mom sulked because we didn't ask her to live with us. Now she wants me to stay home with her or invite her to travel with us. Abby, I love my mother, and my husband is very generous of her, but he doesn't want to make it a steady threesome.

Mother is 56, attractive, and could easily marry again but she says she won't let Dad off the alimony hook as long as she lives. (She's bitter because he's happily married now.)

I feel guilty leaving her. In fact, I feel guilty just writing this. What should I do?

LIFE OF MY OWN

DEAR LIFE: If you want someone to tell you not to feel guilty, count me in. A woman who makes a martyr of herself because she's determined to keep her husband on the alimony hook doesn't deserve much sympathy. You'd feel less guilty if you told her how you felt. It might cause her to take a good hard look at herself and possibly change her life's direction.

DEAR ABBY: We were planning a lovely big church wedding for our daughter in June. Well, she got pregnant, and she and her boy friend panicked and drove to Reno and got married there.

Now she wants to be married in church by our priest. (Do we have to tell him the truth?) Of course, the wedding won't be as big and elaborate as the one we planned originally, but I wonder if we could still have a flower girl and ring bearer? We promised my little niece and nephew, and they will be so disappointed.

MRS. J.

DEAR MRS. J.: Under the circumstances, I think simplicity should be the keynote in this wedding. Discuss it with your priest. And, yes, tell him the truth; he can count and will probably be asked to baptize the baby in six months.

DEAR ABBY: A girl with whom I work is getting married soon. She and I have spent our lunch hour together nearly every day since she came here a year ago. I was quite sure she would invite me to her wedding, but the other day she said she wasn't having anybody from the office because if she invited one she'd have to have them all or there would be hard feelings.

Abby, she isn't friendly with any of the other girls, and I'm sure there would be no hard feelings if she were to invite me. I am very hurt, and I don't know how I can continue to have lunch with her every day and keep a plastic smile on my face. If the situation were reversed, I'd have invited her to my wedding. I think she should be more concerned about hurting MY feelings than the feelings of the other girls in the office who are mere acquaintances.

Should I tell her how hurt I am? Or should Ilet it slide?

HURT

DEAR HURT: Let it slide, dear. Some people don't feel as close to us as we feel to them.

Something to think about

BY: NED KINZER

Good sportsmanship is the conduct which is displayed when participating in any game or sport. It is a worthy attribute to a person's character and personality. The outstanding viewpoint of a good sportsman, is the enjoyment and skill which is derived from playing rather than winning or losing.

Community Good Friday service set

Plans for the traditional Good Friday community service have been completed.

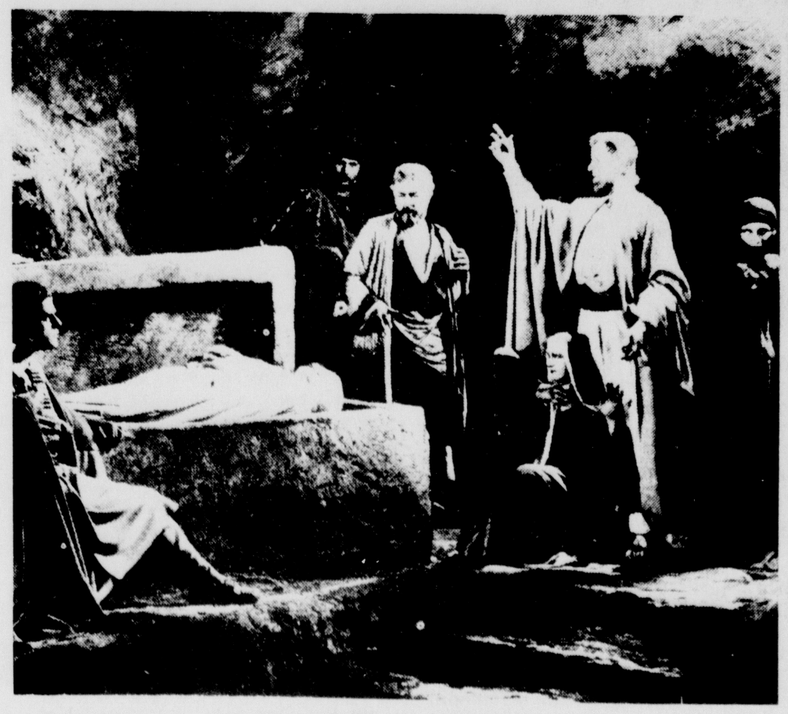

It will open at noon in the First Presbyterian Church and continue until 3 p.m. with six 30-minute segments. A minister from a different church will conduct the meditation at each segment. The ministers will be assisted by laymen.

Special music will include several selections by the Double Trio of the Cecilian Music Club and other music groups. Organist of the community will provide the music leadership.

Worshipers are encouraged to come to the service and take their seats in the sanctuary between the different periods of meditation during the congregational singing of hymns. Those who cannot remain for the entire service may feel free to leave between the different segments.

The theme of the services is "Words from the Cross."

No formal offering will be taken, but plates in which contributions may be left will be at the entrance. The donations will be used to carry on the work of the Fayette County Ministerial Association, which each year sponsors and conducts the union Good Friday service.

'King of Kings' classic booked at Hickory Lane

An unusual prelude to the conventional celebration of Easter will be observed at the Hickory Lane Church of Christ next Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

The Rev. Keith Wooley, pastor, said arrangements have been completed for showing the original (1927) film, "King of Kings," at 7 p.m. the three nights before Easter in the church santuary.

This original production was directed by Cecile B. DeMille. It is considered one of the most sensitive and tasteful treatments of a religious subject ever filmed. Without spoken dialogue, and using subtitles, sound effects and a full musical score, this portrayal of the life of Christ has become a motion picture classic.

The film, which runs a little less than two hours, will be followed by an invitation to confess a commitment to Christ and a free will offering.

The Rev. Mr. Wooley said he saw the picture several times more than 30 years ago and that most of the scenes are still vivid in his memory. He commented that he is "anxious to see the film again and to see if it has the same impact on people today" as it did on him many years ago.

Presbyterian young people to serve Easter breakfast

The Youth Council of the First Presbyterian will begin a summer program of varied activities when its members serve the Easter breakfast in Persinger Hall following the sunrise worship service.

The menu will include ham, eggs, rolls, coffee, fruit juice and milk. Contributions to support the Council's program will be accepted.

Youth Sunday will be observed April 29. The message will be delivered by the pastor, the Rev. Gerald Wheat, and members of the Youth Council will serve as ushers for the worship service. They also will read passages of Scripture and lead prayers. A family night service will honor the graduating seniors.

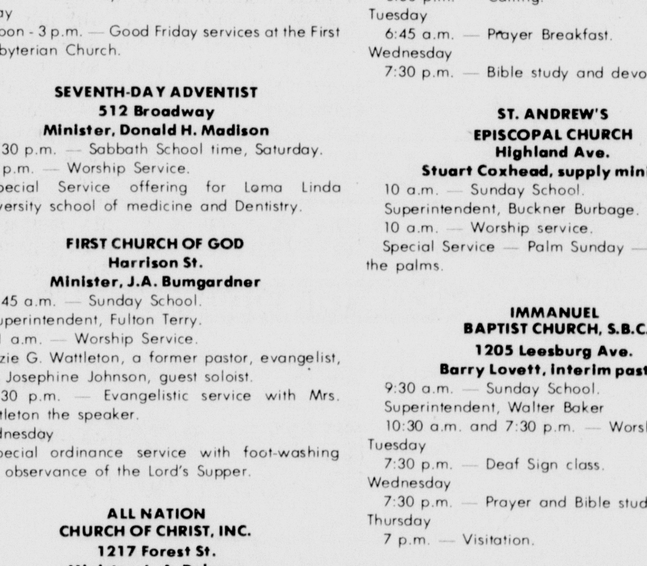

The Council will sponsor a three-day trip to Dearborn, Mich., June 1-3, to be made in the church bus and in private cars. The group, which will be limited to 60 young people, will stay at a KOA campground. Major cost of the trip will be borne by the Youth Council. The purpose of the trip is fellowship, to get acquainted with the historic area, to tour Greenfield Village, visit the Ford Museum and tour Toledo en route home.

A retreat will be held at a state park in August to plan activities for both youth groups of the church.

The group plans to raise sweet corn on the church farm and sell it to finance various projects and mission programs for young people.

The Youth Council also will participate in the summer camping program of the Presbytery at Geneva Hills, near Lancaster; scholarships are available from the church for those who are interested.

Ill members remembered by class

Members of the Loyal Daughters met in the First Christian Church social room with Mrs. Orpha Willis presiding. Devotions were by Mrs. Albert Matthews, whose topic was "Take Time." She also recited a poem, "The Coming of Easter." Cards were signed for the ill members by the 12 present.

The group voted to purchase a name plate for a painting presented to the church in 1948 by the late Jake Miller. The class also will provide a lily for the church at Easter.

A revival planned for April 30-May 4 was announced. Plans for the "fun party" and white elephant sale in the home of Mrs. James Garringer sometime in May were completed.

Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Ted Merritt and Mrs. Charlotte Haines, a guest, won the three contests.

Hostesses were Mrs. Mathews, Mrs. Dorothy Allen, Mrs. Kenneth Eggleston and Mrs. Ann Sanders.

The next meeting will be the annual birthday party at the church. Hostesses will be Mrs. Willis, Mrs. Walter Elliott, Mrs. Eunice Draper and Mrs. Dean Torbett.

Travelogue presented for Progress Club

Mrs. Carl Janes was hostess to members of the Jeffersonville Progress Club for the regular Tuesday evening meeting. Mrs. Robert Owens, president, conducted the meeting, welcomed members and read the poem, "The Oldest Easter Message." Ten members answered roll call by naming a National Park.

Mrs. Janes presented a most delightful "Travelogue." She showed colored slides, with descriptions and her thoughts on tape. The travelogue took the group to scenic spots her family has enjoyed while touring the Atlantic coastal states, the West and Hawaii.

Part of Mrs. Janes' commentary was taken from the late Pearl Buck's book "America." Miss Buck wrote that "America has every natural beauty, the variety is awe-inspiring." The recordings of "Teach the World to Sing" and John Wayne's "Why I Love Her," were played also.

A salad course was served during the social hour.

How to bake ladyfingers

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
AP Food Editor

Ladyfingers are so popular that food markets all over the country carry them. But if you like to cook from scratch, make your own according to the following recipe.

After the ladyfingers are baked you may serve them "as is" or put two together with a favorite frosting. Or you may want to use them as a base for an "icebox" dessert or strawberry shortcake.

LADYFINGERS

½ cup sifted cake flour
3 tablespoons cornstarch
⅛ teaspoon salt
3 eggs
½ cup plus 2 tablespoons sugar
½ cup teaspoon vanilla

Grease and lightly flour 2 ladyfinger pans (each pan holding 12 shapes and each shape about 4 inches long and 1¼ inches wide at narrow middle section)

On wax paper sift together the flour, cornstarch and salt.

In small bowl of electric mixer, at medium speed, beat together the eggs, ½ cup of the sugar and the vanilla until thick and ivory color. Gradually fold in sifted flour mixture making sure that all dry particles are blended.

Fill each ladyfinger shape in one of the pans with about 2 tablespoons batter — batter will come up to top of shapes. Sprinkle 1 tablespoon of the remaining sugar over batter. Keep remaining batter refrigerated while baking first pan, then fill and bake second pan the same way.

Bake in a preheated 350-degree oven until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean — 12 to 15 minutes. Cool slightly, then loosening edges with a small spatula, remove from pan to wire rack to cool completely.

'Spring's Vision' Cecilian meeting theme

"Spring's Vision" was the theme for the Cecilian Club meeting in the home of Mrs. Milbourne Flee. Mrs. Gerald Wheat, president, welcomed the members and guests, Mrs. John Crummy, Mrs. Earl King, Mrs. Harry Campbell and Miss Betty McNeill.

Mrs. Robert Bachelor, program chairman, introduced other members of the committee: Mrs. John Armentrout, Mrs. Michael Campbell, Mrs. Ronald Dowler, Mrs. Larry Oates, Mrs. Charles Stemple, Mrs. James Vess and Mrs. Ralph Yerian.

The Cecilian Triple Trio sang "April in Paris" and "Now is the Month of Maying" following a poem, "Anticipation" by Mrs. Bachelor. Mrs. Vess sang the solo "Let My Song Fill Your Heart" accompanied by Mrs. Yerian. Mrs. Dowler recited the poem, "Dandelions," and Mrs. Armentrout played a piano solo entitled "Gardens in the Rain." The trio then sang "Sing a Rainbow" and "Were You There" with Mrs. Oates as soloist.

Mrs. Stemple read the Scripture pertaining to the Easter season and Mrs. Campbell sang "The Holy City."

The trio sang "Now is Christ Risen" to close the program.

On May 8 at 6:30 p.m. in Fellowship Hall of Grace United Methodist Church, the semi-formal annual dinner will be held. Members are to bring their husbands or guests. The Cecilian Double Trio will conduct a sing-a-long.

Members were also reminded of the Good Friday services at First Presbyterian Church and that the Cecilian Club will participate in the program.

The hymn-of-the-month, "All Glory, Laud and Honor," was sung by the group, accompanied by Mrs. Frank Creamer.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. John Case, chairman, Mrs. Jerry Sears, Mrs. David Fabb, Mrs. Fred Enslen, Mrs. Dewey Sheidler and Miss Lora Ellen Tharp.

Jeff DAR conducts National Defense program

A national defense program was the main topic of the meeting of the William Horney chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Jeffersonville, in the home of Mrs. Harold Zimmerman Wednesday.

Mrs. Howard Burnett Sr., regent, conducted the meeting in ritualistic form, assisted by Mrs. Max Morrow, chaplain. Mrs. Ottis Thompson, flag chairman, led the Pledge of Allegiance and Mrs. Morrow led the first stanza for the singing of the national anthem.

Following roll call answered by 17 members, Mrs. Richard Craig gave the secretary's report.

Mrs. Louis Ulen read the president general's message and Mrs. Nona Stevens the state regent's message.

Mrs. Carroll Ritenour, corresponding secretary, read notes of thanks from the Kate Duncan Smith and Crossnore DAR-supported schools for money sent to them and the names of candidates in several states for vice president general.

Informative reports of the state conference at Cincinnati in March, were given by the delegates, Mrs. Ulen, Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Zimmerman, Mrs. Harold Cline and Mrs. Craig, and the regent.

William Horney chapter was co-hostess at the formal reception Monday evening at state conference honoring the president general, Mrs. Donald Spicer. Mrs. Cline was an assisting chairman.

The chapter received two "Blue Ribbon" awards for its yearbook from state and national program committees. It also received a certificate for having 100 per cent participation in "A Gift to the Nation" signed by Mrs. Spicer. Mrs. Charles Cline was a page at the conference and one of the flag bearers in the formal opening.

Miss Helen Fults spoke on "Freedom — Symbol of a Nation" after the business session. Her talk was based on material from the national defense committee research and views from the book "Bending the Twig" by Augustine G. Rudd, author, educator and professor and member of the NSDAR.

Continental Congress of the DAR will meet April 16-22 in Constitution Hall, Washington, D. C.

The regent thanked the hostesses and all read the DAR salute to the flag for the closing.

A dessert course suggestive of the Easter season was served during the social hour.

The board of management held a brief business session following the meeting.

Mrs. Robert Little will be hostess to the annual closed meeting May 9.

Class meets

Mrs. Roy Booco was hostess to the In His Service Class of the Jeffersonville United Methodist Church with 11 members present.

Mrs. Emma Roush conducted the meeting and used items pertaining to Easter. The group will purchase two lilies for the Easter service for the church. Mrs. Etta Hays reported on cards sent to the ill and shutins and Mrs. Lena Young read the 100th Psalm.

Mrs. Florence Seibert assisted in the hospitalities.

Croc's sun bath saved by Berlin

BERLIN (AP) — Recently, an architect drew up plans for a 25-story addition to Berlin's swank Hotel Schweizer Hof. But the director of the zoo's aquarium complained. He said that the new hotel would be so high that it would cut off the sun in which the zoo's alligators and crocodiles bask.

Berlin's zoo is the largest in Europe, last year drawing two million people, and Berlin takes it seriously. So the city government changed the plans.

The new hotel will be 10 stories high, not 25.

An Old Art Form

By JOAN O'SULLIVAN

BECAUSE her mother spent years working on a large quilt that never got finished, Ann-Sargent Wooster has a new interest in life. A painter and a sculptor whose ambition is to become an art critic, Ann is not only a prolific quilter but the author of a fascinating book on the subject. A combined history and how-to volume, her book, "Quiltmaking — The Modern Approach to a Traditional Craft," was just published by Drake.

Story of a Book

"The book is a result of several things," she said, "my mother's never-finished quilt — I'm in the process of finishing it — and a show of American quilts I stumbled into at the Whitney Museum a few years back. Because I'm an artist, I got interested in quilting designs and before I knew it I was hooked."

Ann, who also authored "The Art Reference Guide", likes to dig into subjects and find out where and how ideas originated. Her research resulted in "Quiltmaking".

"You know," she said, "quilts started out to fill a practical need, but when women got into making them they got involved with color and pattern and quilts became an art form."

Origin of "Spinster"

Among the fascinating facts mentioned in the book is the origin of the word spinster.

"When the Pilgrims first came to America they didn't make quilts," she said, "because they had to import all fabric from England and they needed clothing more than they need bedcovers. By 1640 they were allowed to make linen. Each family, by law, was required to have the services of a full-time spinner, usually a child or an unmarried woman, hence the term spinster."

The book, which is illustrated with drawings and photographs by Ann, includes a Quilting Dictionary that explains standard quilt types and terms. You can dip into the book anyplace and find fascinating reading or how-to tips and sketches that show you how to duplicate some of the most famous quilting patterns.

One of the most fascinating pages of American quilting history, says Ann, involved Friendship Quilts, a tradition similar to barn raising. For a Friendship Quilt, each friend donated a square.

Marriage Quilts date back to 1700 when an engaged girl would invite her friends to her home to see her wedding presents and to help her make a Wedding Quilt, one with hearts and other symbols of love. The charming custom died out around 1900 when household gifts replaced quilt blocks.

Ann, who is working for her doctorate in Art History at Hunter College in New York, prefers quilting small things — jackets, pillows, baby quilts — because she has little time for big projects. Her book suggests how these can be made, too.

If you are interested in "Quiltmaking" or its fascinating history, you can order this book through your local book shop.

Ohio Perspective

New state bill attacks Buckeye 'slumlords'

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill to crack down on Ohio's "slumlords" who fail to keep up their run-down rental properties is the product of one of the most elaborate background efforts in years, the chairman of the Ohio Housing and Community Development Commission reported.

James I. Huston said the advisory group conducted seven hearings around the state, established metropolitan steering committees, and sent drafts of the bill to 4,000 individuals and 300 organizations.

"No bill in recent times has been developed as much in a fish bowl as this one has," Huston said.

Huston said the measure will do no harm to legitimate landlords, but will cause concern among "Ohio's slumlords."

The housing Commission also has in the works another administration proposal that would put the state in the business of financing low and moderate income housing.

It would authorize the state to issue tax exempt revenue bonds which could be retired from rent. The size of the venue has not been announced, but reports say the state might issue $500 million in bonds initially.

David Sweet, director of the Department of Economic and Community Development, said Ohio's housing needs have become more critical in the wake of a moratorium on federal housing funding.

He said he was told by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development that if Ohio wants to get federal housing money in the future, it will have to set up its own program to get matching funds.

Rep. Robert E. Netzley, R-81 Laura, maintains a low profile these days. But his long and highly-publicized effort to repeal the state income tax still has a way of getting his name before the public.

It came up at an unlikely place — a meeting of the State Democratic Executive Committee. Columbus attorney Robert McAlister, a committee member, held him up as an example.

Urging the committee to bypass the legislature and circulate petitions to place election reform on the November ballot, McAlister said:

"Look what Bob Netzley did. He almost wiped out everything it took the legislature a year to do."

President asked to declare Ohio counties disaster areas

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP)—President Nixon was asked to declare eight Ohio counties federal disaster areas after officials estimated damage caused by Lake Erie flooding earlier this week at $27.5 million.

Gov. John Gilligan surveyed the flood-stricken area Thursday before making the request for federal aid. The counties included Lucas, Ottawa, Sandusky, Erie, Lorain, Cuyahoga, Lake and Ashtabula.

Hardest-hit by Lake Erie waters was the Point Place area of Toledo. Officials estimated the damage as $2.5 million there.

By Thursday, most of the water had been pumped from the area and residents had returned to their homes. Electricity had been restored to all but a few homes. Gas service was expected to be completely restored this afternoon.

City workers were repairing damage to a dike in the Point Place area. By Thursday, a private contractor had repaired an 80-foot breach in a high-wall.

Northwestern Ohio nearly saw a replay of flooding Thursday. Flood warnings were issued early in the day. But waters dropped later after winds shifted. Minor flooding was reported.

If the President grants disaster status, homeowners and businessmen in the area would be eligible for low-interest federal loans.

The same district was declared a disaster area in November, 1972, after another flood struck. Claims were received totaling $1.6 million from the Point Place section.

In another effort to locate funds to aid the area, Toledo Mayor Harry Kessler said he would approach the Ohio Department of Natural Resources and the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers.

Earlier, the mayor said he would ask the city council for funds to improve the dike.

Luxury liner like fortress pending cruise to Israel

LONDON (AP) — The luxury liner Queen Elizabeth 2 is being turned into a floating fortress with a private army of armed guards for its month-long cruise to Israel next week.

Twenty Marine commandos, a team of bomb disposal experts, two dozen American detectives and an undisclosed number of undercover security agents boarded the ship Thursday.

As they came aboard, a third of the QE2's 900 crew members were reported to have walked off in fear Arab terrorists would attack the 1,700 passengers bound for Israel's 25th anniversary celebration. Most are well-to-do American, British and European Jews.

"I'm damned scared and I'm not ashamed to admit it," said Ray Digweed, a cabin steward. "I signed off today because of the risk of terrorist action."

The ship's owner, the Cunard Line, promised a $150 "danger money" bonus for every crew member making the trip plus four years' salary to the family of any crewman killed in a terrorist raid.

The special security arrangements are costing Cunard $25,000.

"We're well satisfied with the security arrangements, but we don't think there will be any threat from the Arabs," said Oscar Rudwick, an American who organized the cruise.

The liner has been sealed off, its hull constantly checked for magnetic mines by a team of 12 Navy frogmen, and combed from stem to stern for explosives since she docked at Southampton early Thursday. Guards are checking everyone who boards the vessel and screening all provisions being loaded aboard

British Navy destroyers will escort the liner through the Mediterranean and Royal Air Force planes will shadow her all the way. Adding to the security problem will be stops in Lisbon on the way out and in Majorca on the return voyage.

Delay trial in Pentagon Papers case

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Daniel Ellsberg's testimony in his own defense may be postponed today for a second day because his chief attorney is ill and may have to take some medical tests.

The Ellsberg defense team planned to ask U.S. District Court Judge Matt Byrne to recess the Pentagon papers trial until Monday.

The sudden illness of attorney Leonard Boudin, who has a heart condition, interrupted Ellsberg's testimony Thursday.

Ellsberg, on trial with Anthony Russo for espionage, conspiracy and theft, had been scheduled to tell jurors how his opposition to the Vietnam war spurred him to copy the Pentagon's secret study of the war.

Boudin, 60, a veteran civil rights attorney, wears a heart pacemaker to regulate his heartbeat. He was examined by a Los Angeles cardiologist and a defense spokesman said the doctor found no serious problems but recommended that Boudin undergo more tests today.

Ellsberg has admitted publicly that he released the documents to news media in 1971 — two years after he and Russo copied them — when Congress had taken no action. Ellsberg and Russo are not charged with releasing the papers, only with copying them.

Bancshares earnings spiral

COLUMBUS — Huntington Bancshares reports a record high increase in earnings of over 26 per cent for the first quarter of 1973 compared with the same period a year ago. Net income before securities gains rose to $2.5 million from $2 million or $1.16 per share, up $.24 from $.92 per share.

Clair E. Fultz, president of the Columbus based registered bank holding company, reports total assets reached $1.3 billion as of March 31, 1973, compared with $1.1 billion a year ago. Total loan volume increased 22.3 per cent to $682 million and deposits rose $72 million to $1.024 billion for an increase of 7.6 per cent.

Commercial loans led the substantial growth in the loan category with a 29.5 per cent gain over the same period in 1972. Consumer loans were next with a $34 million (20.6 per cent) gain and mortgage loans followed with a $25 million (14.7 per cent) increase.

Fultz commented that innovative marketing programs, development of new services, development of a master profit plan, management of earning assets and receipt of timely management information have helped us to achieve objectives.

Huntington Bancshares is a registered bank holding company based in Columbus with 12 affiliated banks operating 74 offices throughout Ohio, including the Washington Savings Bank of Washington C.H.

Contract Bridge ♠♥♦♣ B. Jay Becker

Bidding Quiz

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♠	3 ♥

What would you bid now with each of the following five hands?

1. ♠AJ853 ♥94 ♦872 ♣AK6
2. ♠AKJ74 ♥A ♦Q952 ♣843
3. ♠AQJ765 ♥K62 ♦K7 ♣K9
4. ♠AK96 ♥K103 ♦AJ97 ♣84
5. ♠AQ982 ♥6 ♦K4 ♣AKJ73

1. Pass. You have a minimum opening bid — you could scarcely open with less — and the simplest way of informing partner of this is by passing. You can't tell whether East can make three hearts, whether you can make three spades, or where the future of the hand lies, so you pass the buck to partner and let him decide what to do. That's what partners are for.

2. Three spades. This is a far more promising hand and you show it by bidding three spades. You lack the values for a jump to four spades — there are seven losers in the minor suits for North to take care of — but the odds favor making nine tricks. Partner is expected to pass three spades in this competitive situation, but he is not totally barred from bidding again.

3. Four spades. The chance of making game is very good, particularly when your three kings sit squarely behind East, who is likely to hold any aces that are missing. Counting your distribution, partner's raise and the interferences you can draw from East's overcall, the hand is worth about 20 points.

4. Double. You have four probable defensive tricks and partner is apt to have two more — so the best solution seems to lie in letting East play the hand, doubled. The alternatives are to pass or bid three spades, but neither of these actions is as attractive as a double. If partner's raise was based on distributional values only, he may of course take the double out, but that is his affair, not yours.

5. Four clubs. This is an unequivocal slam try, for if you were merely interested in game you would bid four spades instead. You hope partner will respond four diamonds, showing the ace as well as interest in a slam — in which case you could either immediately or eventually get to six spades. North doesn't need much of a hand for a slam to sprout. The king of spades, ace of diamonds and queen of clubs, or shortage in clubs, are likely to do the trick.

ARAB GUERRILLA CAPTURED — Cyprus policemen lead away Arab guerrilla, second from left, after he was captured in an unsuccessful attempt to hijack an Israeli airliner at airport in Nicosia, Cyprus.

Brandt wins endorsement of policies on NATO, U.S.

HANNOVER, Germany (AP) — Chancellor Willy Brandt's party has overwhelmingly endorsed West Germany's alliance with the United States and its full participation in the North Atlantic alliance.

The Social Democratic party convention rebuffed left-wing attacks on pro-Western aspects of Brandt's foreign policy, including his staunch support for U.S. troops in Europe.

The vote Thursday night, by show of hands, looked to be about 370-3 with some 30 abstentions. The convention has 435 delegates, including about 110 leftists.

Party insiders say left-wing strength has grown considerably but not enough to change Brandt's policies. The voting today for the party's 35-member executive committee would normally give some indication of the size of the various party factions, but leftist maneuvering may cloud the picture.

Convention sources said the leftists offered to support a number of center-left candidates in return for support of 11 left-wingers. The leftists also were trying to oust right-wing members of the committee, including Annemarie Renger, speaker of the lower house of parliament, and Egon Franke, Brandt's minister for inter-German affairs.

In the voting Thursday night, the convention rejected leftist resolutions calling for a a freeze on military spending this year and a cut in it next year, cancellation of Bonn's payments to Washington for the U.S. troops in Germany and withdrawal of the 200,000 GIs.

One of the resolutions referred to the American force in Germany as "an anachronism" at a time of improving EastWest relations, and one young critic accused the Brandt government of "wasting billions of marks on the army."

During te heated debate Brandt repeatedly took the floor to rebuke the leftists. He defended his policies and said it was not possible to cut the defense budget.

Defense Minister Georg Leber told the left wing to be patient and await the outcome of the exploratory talks on an East-West reduction of forces in Central Europe and on European security.

Bowling Green case reviewed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's Supreme Court will decide whether a state suit against Bowling Green for polluting the North Branch of the Portage River should be dismissed.

It agreed Thursday to review the case in which the city could be held liable for sewage waste discharges that killed more than 20,000 fish on separate occasions in 1968 and 1970.

City officials claimed governmental immunity and the case was dismissed by the Wood County Common Pleas Court, but an appellate court reversed the decision holding that the treatment of wastes by the city is "a proprietary function."

Brooke believes both sides want cease-fire

SAIGON (AP) — Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., said today he believes both the Communists and the Saigon government want the cease-fire to work, but U.S. assistance in reconstruction may be the key to lasting peace.

"My final conclusion is that both parties want the cease-fire to work, and I think it will," said Brooke at the end of a visit to South Vietnam, Cambodia and Laos.

"Everyone wants reconstruction assistance, and I think it may be the big chip in bringing about adherence to the ceasefire. People are hurting, and they need assistance to build a life for themselves."

Brooke said the United States should also persuade both President Nguyen Van Thieu of South Vietnam and President Lon Nol of Cambodia to broaden the base of their governments.

2 historic log cabins face water damage

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—A Waynesville group will attempt to save two historic log cabins in Warren County that are to be flooded by the Caesar's Creek Reservoir.

Dennis Dalton said the group will try to relocate the cabins.

The group has been given 60 days to submit a plan to the state.

Fund distribution change proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—A bipartisan proposal containing an "innovative departure" for the distribution of public funds to private and parochial schools is being introduced in the Ohio House.

Reps. James Mueller, D-74 Chesterland, and Norman A. Murdock, R-21 Cincinnati, are sponsors of the bill which would require the state to pay the utility bills of all the public and private schools in the state.

Mueller said Thursday that the measure represents an attempt to make partial distribution of funds already appropriated for private and parochial schools, but held up by court decisions disallowing outright subsidies.

"At the present time, we are awaiting the results of the Supreme Court's decision concerning Ohio's tax credit approach ...this new parochial and private school aid bill provides an innovative departure in an attempt to find a set of constitutionally-valid conditions which the Supreme Court will accept," the Chesterland lawmaker said.

The bill would provide for disbursement of about $20 a year per pupil of the $90 a year set aside in already-budgeted funds for private and parochial pupils. Utility bills for all schools would be paid directly by the State Department of Education.

Some 38 new bills were received by the House and Senate Thursday in advance of a bill cutoff next Wednesday. Among bills introduced were proposals to:

—Require sterilization of unmarried welfare mothers after the birth of two illegitimate children.

—Reduce the state voter residency requirement from six months to 30 days to coincide with the requirement for presidential elections.

—Increase the pay of election workers from $24 to $35 a day.

—Prohibit discrimination against women by private employers and others not affected by the proposed women's equal rights amendment.

—Prohibit chain letters and similar schemes and set penalties.

—Expand eligibility for obtaining absentee ballots.

—Set ratios of skilled workers to apprentices on public works projects.

—Allow veterinarians to turn unclaimed animals over to a pound or shelter after 10 days.

—Create a jail inspection bureau and review board.

—Designate No. 11 as Veterans Day.

Ohio Real Estate Board probe may reach courts

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Real Estate Commission was asked Thursday to go to court on the validity of a real estate broker's license obtained by former Gov. James A. Rhodes just before he left office.

Commerce Director Dennis Shaul, in a memorandum to the commission, asked members to either take the question to the courts, or to not renew Rhodes' license when it expires at the end of this year.

The memorandum also said Vernon McMillen, executive secretary of the three-member commission, had been fired.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Are the big bands dead? Nope. The evidence is coming up Sunday night on the NBC Radio network in a three-hour special hosted by Art Ford.

The proceedings commence promptly at 7:05 p.m. EST on NBC's "Monitor" show, the only network program now on the air that consistently brings great jazz musicians to the listening public.

Sunday's show, called "The Big Bands Swing Again," primarily is devoted to big band jazz; it features the records of and interviews with veteran bandleaders who still are writing the history of jazz.

The lineup of guests includes Stan Kenton, Woody Herman, Count Basie and Benny Goodman. Their interviews were taped this week and last week in cities where they were appearing.

What they say about the business may be of particular interest to young musicians who play in jazz-oriented high school and college big bands that have been sprouting in growing numbers at campuses across the country.

Many of these youngsters probably have seen the Kenton and Basie bands perform at their schools, since these bandleaders have concentrated heavily the past few years on the campus circuit.

For Basie, whose 16-piece band has played in a swinging, straight-ahead groove for 30 years, the reception today's college students give his brand of music comes as an equally pleasant and unexpected experience.

"For anybody else-like the rock bands—the reaction they get is no surprise, because they're doing the things the kids are doing," Basie said.

"But I'm quite surprised and very happily so at the way the kids react to the things we're doing," he said after his interview with Ford for Sunday's show.

He said later he finds it amusing that some elders who dismiss the younger generation as tin-eared and untalented "are shocked at finding the quality of musicians they have in colleges and high schools.

"They just don't believe it. They really think the kids can only play in one key. But these kids are really playing today. They know what they're doing."

Probate law proposed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill liberalizing probate court procedures to settle estates has been recommended for passage by the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The bill, sponsored by Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, would exempt the surviving spouse from posting a bond before administering the estate of the deceased spouse.

The bill also adopts, with some changes, the suggested uniform probate code written by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws.

The purpose of the bill is reduce the cost of administering estates, particularly when no will is left. It sets up a line of descendants who would be eligible to share in such an estate.

Present law makes settling interstate estates long, difficult and costly.

Fayette Airport News

By JUDY DENNIS

Howdy, Folks!

As I sit here working on my column, I glance out the window every now and then at the blizzard that is engulfing the airport. It is hard to believe that it is April, and supposedly Springtime.

The planes are quiet, now, under their blanket of snow. Yet, only yesterday, the Vick Flying Service "Ag" plane was darting in and out of the airport sowing grass seed.

Speaking of grass seed, we have had a busy season and more requests for seeding are coming in. So far, the Ag planes have covered 1,428 acres, and I still have requests for 151 more acres. If an Ag plane sweeps over your house, don't be upset. The pilot is just helping the farmers who have been unable to get into their fields, due to the wet and muddy ground.

In spite of the unpredictable spring weather, we have been able to do a little student instruction. In addition to the new students I told you about last time, we are happy to welcome Walt Gooldin and Bill Pauley to our flight school.

Walt is starting on his private pilot flight course, and Billy Pauley is working on his commercial rating in a "fixed wing" aircraft in the VA class. Billy already has a commercial rating in a helicopter.

TWO MORE of our students have soloed, so congratulations are in order for Mike Prickett and Bruce Denen. Other students receiving primary dual instruction were Owen Prince, Martha Rockhold, Barbara Abernathy, Gary Meyers and Deane and Marilee Carter (a father-daughter team).

Primary students going solo were Owen Prince (who is about ready to be flight-tested), Deane Carter, Jim Vess, Louie Poole, Gary Meyers, Chris Givens (one of our Ross County boys), Bruce Denen and Mike Prickett.

A couple of weeks ago, we had some really exciting plans. Four plane-loads of us (16 in all) made reservations for a weekend in New Orleans. However, that weekend was when we got all the ice and snow. Also, the New Orleans area was being hard hit with floods and tornadoes.

All of us were disappointed when we had to cancel our plans. However, I still had our suitcases packed when Rod and Jo Scott appeared Monday morning and said they were taking off for Florida. They asked us to go along, and we rushed around making arrangements for our son and the management of our airports. Three hours later, we climbed into Rod's Debonair and were on our way.

We reached Clearwater, Fla., in four hours and 40 minutes, and had a very enjoyable visit, although not nearly as long as we would have liked. We returned on Thursday, and had the same beautiful weather back that we were lucky enough to encounter on the way down.

Jim Roberds, a VA commercial student, is about to be flight-tested for his commercial rating. Jim passed his commercial written test and is now perfecting his maneuvers in preparation for his flight test. We are happy to report, also, that Charlie Dodds passed his written exam for his private pilot ticket.

COMMERCIAL students receiving dual instruction were Billy Pauley, Jim Roberds, Tom Romph, Ken Mathias and Ron Fitzwater. Commercial students soloing were Billy Pauley, Tim Vehnekamp, Bob Sowers and Ken Mathias. Tom Romph also flew to Cleveland taking his little son, Jimmy, to stay with "grandma and Grandpa" while Tom and his wife, Bev, have a wonderful vacation in Hawaii.

The State Department of Education visited our facility last week, and inspected our VA school records.

Bill flight-tested five students from other airports for private pilot licenses. Some passed and, I'm sorry to say, some didn't. However, the ones who didn't rescheduled for a re-test and will no doubt make it on their second try.

WE HAVE two new employees. We hired Tom Preston as a flight instructor and Blaine Kohler as our new mechanic. Tom is a local boy, and Blaine comes to us from Union County Airport, where he worked three years as their A & P mechanic.

Craig Beam has been working hard on his instrument rating. Bill went with him on a dual instrument cross-country flight to Fort Wayne, and they have also been "shooting" instrument approaches into Port Columbus.

This winds up our airport news for now. I'm anxious to get home and toast my feet in front of a cheerful fire.

There seems to be no place colder than an airport when the weather is bad.

Beans said cheapest source of body-building protein

WASHINGTON (AP) — Let's say you have a choice between a sizzling porterhouse or a serving of dry beans. Would your selection be influenced if you had to pay for it—and you knew the beans cost a 10th as much and had the same nutritional value?

Experts from the U.S. Department of Agriculture—wary of such ticklish items as food controls and meat boycotts— didn't pose the problem exactly that way today. But that's the way it came out.

What the USDA experts did was to put out some advice on how to stretch the food dollar for protein-rich, body-building foods necessary in family nutrition. They very carefully avoided any recommendations.

Measured in terms of February grocery prices, a six-cent serving of dry beans will provide the same amount of protein as 66 cents worth of porterhouse steak or 67 cents worth of lamb chops, the experts said.

Further, according to the USDA cost figures, when it comes strictly to meat and poultry, the best buys for protein-conscious shoppers are whole chicken and hamburger.

"One way to determine good buys among meats and meat alternates is to compare the costs of amounts ... that provide equal protein," the Agricultural Research Service said in a report.

Twenty grams of protein, for example, is about one-third of the recommended daily allowance for a 20-year-old man. A three-ounce serving of cooked lean beef, pork, lamb, veal, turkey or fish provides about 20 grams of protein or more.

On a 20-gram basis, the protein-cost rating of bacon, for example, is 63 cents; hot dogs 35 cents and bologna 47 cents.

Some other ratings on this 20-gram protein scale: peanut butter 12 cents; milk and eggs 18; beef liver; turkey and canned sardines 20; liverwurst 34 and veal cutlets 63.

Leukemia victim gets Nixon help

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nine-year-old Jessie Clark has leukemia and needed a room of his own in his fight against the disease.

Since March 28, the youngster has been without even a home. Fire destroyed the Washington residence where his mother and her seven children had lived.

Since that time, Mrs. Mamie Clark, 29, and her children have lived at a welfare shelter. But today is different.

President Nixon, a federal official said, found a new home for Jessie and his family, that will give the boy what doctor's say he needs most—a room of his own in his fight against the disease.

"The President's giving you a house," Mrs. Clark quoted Gilbert DeLorme as telling her. DeLorme is deputy area director of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

DeLorme said he was contacted by a "top administration official," whom he did not name, "on behalf of the President." He said he was told to find housing for Mrs. Clark and her family.

News accounts of the family's plight said Mrs. Clark, a welfare mother, had run into trouble finding housing for her large family.

DeLorme placed the family in a newly remodeled four-bedroom apartment that is being rehabilitated under a federally subsidized program.

The White House has confirmed that aides had stepped in to help the family, but a spokesman would not say whether Nixon was personally involved.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photography's ability to be shared and to provide intense personal satisfaction is clearly apparent in the achievements of Volunteer Service Photographers Inc. I've participated in its activities for about 20 years but must be jolted periodically into realizing that it's unique and newsworthy and that its dedicated service of rehabilitation through photography is not just a routine mission.

VSP was founded in 1941 in New York by professional photographer Josephine U. Herrick as a community volunteer enterprise to enlist photography's services in our country's war effort.

In the three decades since, it helped wounded veterans of World War II, Korea and Vietnam in their hospital recovery periods. Between wars — and currently — VSP's programs have expanded into youth and senior citizens centers, a prison hospital and rehabilitation centers for the emotionally disturbed, handicapped and drug addicted.

When Miss Herrick died last year, the little group she started 30 years before had grown to a hard core of 100 active volunteers bringing photo enthusiasm to 45 institutions or groups in the New York area.

IT WAS FOUND that photography's greatest therapeutic value was achieved when the patient or student engages in a do-it-yourself activity. A definite amount of mental and physical stimulation is involved in handling a camera and a roll of film, in processing negatives, in making prints or in handling a set of oil colors and a brush to produce a hand-colored photograph.

Therefore, through the years, VSP's basic instructional services hasn't changed its teaching of taking, processing and printing black-and-white photographs and hand coloring black-and-white prints.

These basics maintain VSP's major objective: to impart a sense of personal achievement. It applies to hospitalized servicemen, the chronically ill or handicapped and to the young or elderly whether they're acquiring an interesting hobby or learning a useful skill.

VSP's efforts are humanized when you visit Goldwater Hospital on New York's Welfare Island and meet volunteer Sylvia Solomon and patients Tom and Nancy Brown.

Mrs. Solomon, a past VSP president, has been teaching at the hospital for 25 years. Tom and Nancy are polio victims who met at the hospital's VSP classes. Their mutual interest in photography developed to more than sharing a crippling disease and a hobby. They got married.

IT ISN'T EASY for Tom and Nancy to take pictures. Tom can't walk and his left hand is the one he has some control over. His camera requires the firm support of a platform attached to his wheelchair and must have a left-hand film advance. He designed a special screw-and bolt contraption for focusing.

Nancy has limited use of her fingers but can get around on her feet. Her camera, mounted on a tripod, has a cable release. It's placed in her mouth and she takes pictures by tongue pressure.

Tom and Nancy photograph staff and patient activities and their enlargements decorate the hospital walls and corridors. Tom is head of Goldwater Hospital's Community Board and has been photographically involved in numerous projects.

One was recording special medical techniques devised for patients, to illustrate reports at medical meetings. Another was making photo posters which encouraged patient participation in blood-donor and get-out-the-vote drives.

Other projects are aimed at improving Welfare Island roads and towards drug addict rehabilitation.

FOCUSING on teacher-volunteer Sylvia Solomon and student-patients Tom and Nancy Brown helps bring the whole VSP program into sharper focus.

It's a self-help program for people who need it, supported by working volunteers, contributions from sympathetic people and gifts of equipment and material from enlightened firms in the photographic industry.

Rehabilitation through photography works. It's being accomplished in one area in the country. In other areas there are other photo enthusiasts with talent, time and desire to serve their communities and there are hospitalized, young, old and handicapped people whose lives could be enriched.

All it takes is a VSP-type program. For information about it, you can write: Volunteer Service Photographers, 111 W. 57 St., New York, N. Y. 10019.

Stamps In The News

By SYD KRONISH

The 1973 Easter Charity stamps of Surinam feature religious scenes connected with the life of Jesus as shown on five multicolored, well-designed adhesives. As in past years, the set consists of five denominations, each with a surcharge (additional value) to raise money for charitable causes in that South American country.

The 10c plus 5 shows "the storm on the lake." The 15c plus 8 depicts "the washing of the disciples' feet." the 20c plus 10 illustrates a scene of Jesus being led away to execution. The 25c plus 12 pictures a cross. The 30c plus 15 shows the "men of Emmaus."

All of the stamps feature wording in Dutch to denote this is the Easter Charity set.

MANY OTHER countries around the world are issuing stamps commemorating the Easter season.

One such country is the British Indian Ocean Territory which has issued four stamps for Easter highlighting Ethiopic art. Two values show Christ on the Cross while the other two depict Jesus being carried to burial.

Many scholars believe the paintings found on the highlands of Ethiopia are true reflections of early Christian culture.

CRICKET has often been referred to as "the sport for rich Englishmen."

However, on Antigua 50 years ago the Rising Sun Cricket Club was organized to provide a social and athletic organization for the underprivileged where one could be a participant regardless of race, creed or color.

To honor the golden anniversary of this famous athletic organization, Antigua issued a special set of three stamps. The lowest value shows a cricket player and a map of Antigua, denoting its capital, St. John's. The middle value portrays two cricket players.

The highest value depicts the official emblem and crest of the Rising Sun Cricket Club and inscribing the name of its founder, Clemenceau A. Perry.

PUBLISHERS of stamp albums are busy catching up on a gap of 25 years now that the U.S. has a new "Open Door Policy" with the People's Republic of China.

The latest to augment its publication setup is H.E. Harris & Co. with its all-new, 64-page special section for the People's Republic of China. The section contains spaces for nearly every issue of Mainland China from its present regime, started in 1949, through late 1972, including even the issues of all the Chinese Provinces. It has over 1,850 illustrations and a comprehensive stamp identifier. Only the costly varieties have been omitted.

The section, as a supplement for the Harris loose-leaf albums, sells for $1.50. For those who desire just the binder for the section, it is available for an additional $2.50. They may be purchased at your local stamp dealer.

TWO international stamp exhibitions will be held in Munich in May. To honor these events, the West German postal authorities will issue four new semi-postals, reports the Wide World Philatelic Agency.

The additional values will go to the "Foundation for the Promotion of Philately and Postal History" in that country. Two of the stamps will appear on a souvenir sheet. All are available at your local dealer or stamp department.

Claim hospitals breed smallpox

CHICAGO (AP) — Hospitals are a potential source of smallpox, says a leading epidomiologist who maintains that all hospital personnel should be vaccinated.

Dr. Alexander D. Langmuir, a visiting professor at Harvard University Medical School, said Wednesday the hospital is "the weak link in the chain" of smallpox prevention.

The former U.S. Public Health Service employe made the comment in a lecture at the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians and elaborated later at a news conference.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman pillars of strength for Nixon regime

By FRANK CORMIER
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Harry Robbins Haldeman and John Daniel Ehrlichman share an ample supply of critics—and a boss who considers both of them nearly indispensable. The boss is President Nixon, so the critics don't count for much at the White House.

No strangers to controversy, Haldeman and Ehrlichman also share with Henry A. Kissinger the distinction of being Nixon's most powerful assistants. Charter members of what some have called the "German Mafia," they regulate the flow of people, papers and proposals reaching the President's office.

Haldeman—everyone calls him Bob—is chief of the White House staff, keeper of the gates and Nixon's naysayer. Ehrlichman has likened him to a lord chamberlain.

Soon after the President took his oath in 1969, Haldeman's office became known to critics as the "Berlin wall"—because members of the Cabinet and Congress found it blocking the path to Nixon's door.

More recently, Republican Sen. Lowell Weicker of Connecticut suggested Haldeman had advance knowledge of policies and personalities behind the Watergate conspiracy and should resign. The bipartisan leaders of the Senate select committee investigating campaign misdeeds stated publicly they had no evidence Haldeman was involved. Haldeman added a firm denial of his own.

Ehrlichman is the President's domestic policy assistant and, like Haldeman, he has been judged too aloof and inaccessible by some administration officials as well as senators and congressmen.

The two men, close friends since college days at UCLA, are Christian Scientists who neither smoke nor drink. As young men they were Eagle Scouts. Like Nixon, they display enameled American flags on their lapels and Haldeman even shares the President's enthusiasm for cottage cheese lunches.

Politically, Haldeman is a conservative generally regarded as standing somewhat to the right of Nixon. Ehrlichman is seen as more receptive to liberal thought. Both are intensely loyal to Nixon.

Ehrlichman, when interviewed by author Allen Drury for his book "Courage and Hesitation," said: "Part of our job is never to confront the President with a situation in which he has to disappoint someone or take a harsh action. For that reason, we usually send memoes to him for decision. He can then be perfectly free to turn ideas down without making his decisions personal."

Haldeman also gave Drury testimony to Nixon's detachment from argumentative hurly-burly, and to Haldeman's own reputation for barring the presidential door.

"Ehrlichman, Kissinger and I do our best to make sure that all points of view are placed before the President," he said. "We do act as a screen, because there is a real danger of some advocate of an idea rushing in to the President or some other decision-maker, if the person is allowed to do so, and actually managing to convince them in a burst of emotion or argument. We try to make sure that all arguments are presented calmy and fairly across the board."

In pre-election days, Haldeman made no secret of a conviction that the original builders of Washington wisely placed the White House and the Capitol at opposite ends of Pennsylvania Avenue.

"I don't think," he said, "Congress is supposed to work with the White House...There is a clearcut division of power which was intentional, and I think that a certain amount of distance is healthy."

Since November, Haldeman and Ehrlichman have been more accessible to Congress members, especially Republicans who argued they fared poorly in the election because of White House preoccupation with fashioning a Nixon landslide. Consultation and cooperation now are oft-used words and the President himself has found it desirable to expand the list of those invited to periodic breakfast sessions with GOP congressional leaders.

Haldeman, 46, married and the father of four, became a dedicated Nixon partisan more than 20 years ago, admiring his dogged pursuit of alleged Communist Alger Hiss. A volunteer whose responsibilities increased with each Nixon campaign starting in 1956, he enlisted Ehrlichman in the cause.

Haldeman looks like a chief of staff, erect and tall, his thinning crewcut showing ample scalp. His sense of humor tends to be rather sardonic.

He brought several proteges, among them press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, to the Nixon staff from his position as vice president and Los Angeles manager of the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency.

Haldeman's most visible avocation is taking home movies of Nixon, which he shows to friends. Tennis, chess and the guitar also lay claim to his limited leisure time, along with such plays as "Godspell" and "Jesus Christ Superstar." Cocktail parties are not for him.

Ehrlichman is the more affable of the two but is no devotee of the Georgetown party circuit either. A World War II air corps navigator and former Seattle zoning attorney, he is 48, stocky, round-faced and balding. He and his wife have five children.

He and Haldeman have a zest for sunshine that keeps them tanned troughout much of the year as they follow their boss to Florida and Southern California.

Ehrlichman thinks of himself as an attorney with a single client, Richard Nixon.

His loyalty is unquestioned. So is Haldeman's.

Calloway Army chief?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Howard "Bo" Callaway, a former one-term Republican representative from Georgia, is in line to become secretary of the Army, congressional and Pentagon sources report.

Callaway, now a GOP national committeeman, would replace Robert F. Froehkle, the Army's civilian head for nearly two years.

Froehlke is said to be anxious to return to the insurance business in Wisconsin.

Hatfield fears involvement in Cambodia

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, fresh from briefings by Pentagon and State Department officials, says he believes events in Cambodia are following the pattern of secret commitments that preceded U.S. entry into Vietnam nearly a decade ago.

The Oregon Republican's statement came amid rising senatorial concern over Cambodia and as President Nixon received a 45-minute report from trouble-shooter Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. on his Southeast Asian fact-finding mission.

The White House gave no details on Haig's 45-minute meeting with Nixon Thursday afternoon.

Secretary of Defense Elliot L. Richardson, meanwhile, said "there are no proposals" for a possible South Vietnamese drive into Cambodia to ease Communist pressure. But he said the presence of North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia in violation of the cease-fire agreement gives South Vietnam "a basis for retaliatory, self-protective action."

Hatfield, a long-time critic of U.S. policy in Southeast Asia, said "my anxiety has intensified" that U.S. actions in Cambodia may be repeating "the pattern of secret commitments and public denials" of Vietnam.

He made the comments in a statement issued following a secret briefing by administration officials to a Senate Appropriations subcommittee on which he serves. "Developments in the past days heighten the unpleasant but unavoidable truth that we are on the verge of more, rather than less, involvement in the continuing Indochinese war," Hatfield said.

He indicated that the State and Defense Department officials who appeared Wednesday had pictured U.S. bombing, military aid and airlift—plus support for a possible South Vietnamese invasion—"as indispensable for the survival" of the current Cambodian government.

In 1909, when William Howard Taft was inaugurated, 6,000 workmen labored 12 hours to clear the snow.

The four symbols of the National Honor Society were explained by the officers. These included: "Character," by President Chuck Bath; "Scholarship," by Secretary Jeanne Gad; "Leadership," by Treasurer Melody Mustain, and "Service," by Vice President Steve Hill.

The call to new members was given by Fred Cluff, adviser, and by the National Honor Society members. Fred A. Jones, principal, accepted the new members. The address was given by Edwin M. Nestor, superintendent, and the benediction was given by Albert Donahue.

Cancer CAN be cured

300 people attend dessert smorgasbord

Cancer can be treated effectively, even cured, if it is detected early, and science now has developed relatively simple methods for early detection.

This was the heart of the message given by a panel of four local physicians to more than 300 people at the dessert smorgasbord sponsored by the county unit of the Cancer Society Thursday night in the Mahan Building.

Dr. Byers W. Shaw said cancer of the breast caused the death of 37,000 women last year and then declared that "if it had been caught early, 85 per cent of these patients could have survived." Methods for detection of breast cancer, he emphasized, are not painful.

Dr. Ralph Gebhart asserted that "beyond all doubt, lung cancer is caused by cigarettes." He said people may inherit a tendency for cancer.

Dr. Robert A. Heiny reminded that in 1937, uterine cancer was the No. 1 cause of death among women and that by 1972 the death rate has been cut by 65 per cent. The decline, he said, is credited to the use of the Pap test. Although the Cancer Society has encouraged women to have the Pap test, only 2,451 received it last year and of these 15 were positive. He said cancer of cervix is "practically 100 per cent curable with early detection." He added that home kits for detecting uterine cancer are not reliable and should be taken off the market.

Dr. Joseph Herbert was the panel moderator.

Eighty-five posters made by Miami Trace and Washington S. H. school art classes were displayed as a backdrop for the smorgasbord. A special group of them created by a Miami Trace school class was the center of attention and the student who made them were at the meeting. They were Wayne Armentrout, Tim Bryant, Doug Cottrell, Dick Davis, Pam Evans, Rudy Funk, Debbie Harter, Sharon Hawkins, Barry Knapp, Marvin Matthews, Terry Miller, Bruce Reed, Bill Roe, Randy Smith, Sherman Strickratt, Keith Sutton, Ron Warnock and Jeff Wilson.

The group attendance plaque was presented to the United Methodist Church of New Holland.

Fifteen prizes were awarded at intervals throughout the evening under the direction of Mrs. Billie Shaw and Mrs. Marilyn Heinz.

Entertainment was provided by the Miami Trace Folk Singers

Robert E. Minshall, president of the county unit of the Cancer Society, was the master of ceremonies for the after-dinner program. The Rev. Gerald Wheat, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, gave the invocation. Co-chairmen for the event were Mrs. L. C. (Sonny) Johnson, Mrs. Bart Mahoney and Mrs. Wesley Cox.

School bus struck

No injuries in 3 mishaps

No injuries and only minor damage was reported in three traffic mishaps investigated by sheriff's deputies Thursday.

A Miami Trace School bus was one of three vehicles involved in an accident on Prairie Road, just east of Bloomingburg-New Holland Road at 4:40 p.m.

Sheriff's deputies said cars driven by William A. Sexten, 17, Rt. 4, and Beverly J. McMurray, 25, Rt. 1, Jeffersonville were following the bus and collided as they both pulled out to pass. The Sexten car then slid into the left side of the bus driven by Millard H. Wiedinger, 59, Rt. 3.

None of the seven passengers on the bus were injured.

A wheel came off the rear of a dump truck driven by Paul V. Wamsley, 38, Belpre, and ran through a large plate glass window at the Dairy Isle, CCC Highway-W, at 10:30 a.m. Thursday.

Officers said a freezer in the building was damaged by the runaway wheel.

The right front wheel of a car driven by James S. Woods, 66, Rt. 2, Leesburg, was damaged when it hit a trench dug across Rowe-Ging Road, just west of Ohio 41, Thursday evening.

Sheriff's deputies said the fill in the trench had apparently settled well below the road surface.

Onion prices may take breath away

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A comedian somewhere once did a routine about high-priced restaurants that included the line: "Eat all the onions you want. The check will take your breath away."

Food prices in restaurants and supermarkets, particularly meat prices, remain astronomical. Now, to the added shock of already stunned consumers, the price of onions is soaring.

Produce managers blame short supplies on weather-damaged crops, principally in Texas. This came on the heels of poor crops in other major onion-growing states, Idaho, New York, California, Michigan, Colorado and Oregon.

In Boston, a two-pound bag that sold recently for 49 cents was reported now retailing for 79 cents to 89 cents.

In Los Angeles, where a 50-pound sack of white onions sold for about $7 in January, the price now runs from $18 to $22. Similar conditions were reported elsewhere in the country.

Hobbies help alcoholic to health

By JOY STILLEY
AP Newsfeatures Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Jo Bucher has come a long way in the past dozen years — from a guilt-ridden, alcoholic nonfunctioning housewife to a vibrant, active teacher, lecturer, businesswoman and author.

"Like millions of American housewives, comfortably off with a nice husband and children, it just crept up on me," she says of the drinking problem that put her in a number of institutions before she conquered it. "I had quite a few years of happy social drinking, but someplace along the line I began to lean on it — use it as a crutch."

She and her husband wanted to believe it was nervous fatigue, "anything but the real thing," recalls Mrs. Bucher, who finally began going to Alcoholics Anonymous meetings after her husband said, "Shape up or ship out."

NOW SHE OWNS a needlework shop in Denville, N.J., runs a mail order service for supplies, gives workshops all over the country, writes articles and has just published her second book, "Complete Guide to Creative Needlepoint."

"I started making my own clothes at 11," the attractive Mrs. Bucher says. "My mother was a frilly Southerner and she dressed my sister and me alike in ruffles. My sister was the feminine type but they just weren't for me."

While she "knit right through a lot of bottles of booze," she didn't really get hooked by needlework until she picked up a couple of crewel kits to fill the time while she was in a Connecticut institution.

"Later I was looking for some interest and signed up for six weeks of courses at The Embroiderer's Guild here. I stayed three years," she adds.

She began to volunteer her services at a rehabilitation center in Blairstown, N.J., where she had spent some time, and became active in teaching AA members needlework.

"A HOBBY is a healthy thing," she explains. "You can't go to AA meetings all day and you want to become a part of the human race again. Most of us lose coordination and feel we have wasted a lot of time, so doing something creative gives you a sense of accomplishment."

After receiving her Embroiderer's Guild teaching certificate she set up her shop, Stitch Witchery, and with the revival of interest in crafts traveled widely to lecture at museums and workshops.

"People are beginning to realize the pleasure of working with their hands again, and more and more men are taking up needlework, usually starting with needlepoint or rugs and going on to other things," she says.

"The men who do this kind of work are usually much better than women. After all, the first embroiderer's guild in the 1400s was made up of men — they wouldn't let women in."

BOTH Mrs. Bucher's sons have done macrame, and her daughter and daughter-in-law do all kinds of handwork. Her two granddaughters, 7 and 5, already work on simple needlepoint, she says. But her husband, an oceanographer, expresses his creativity in building research vessels.

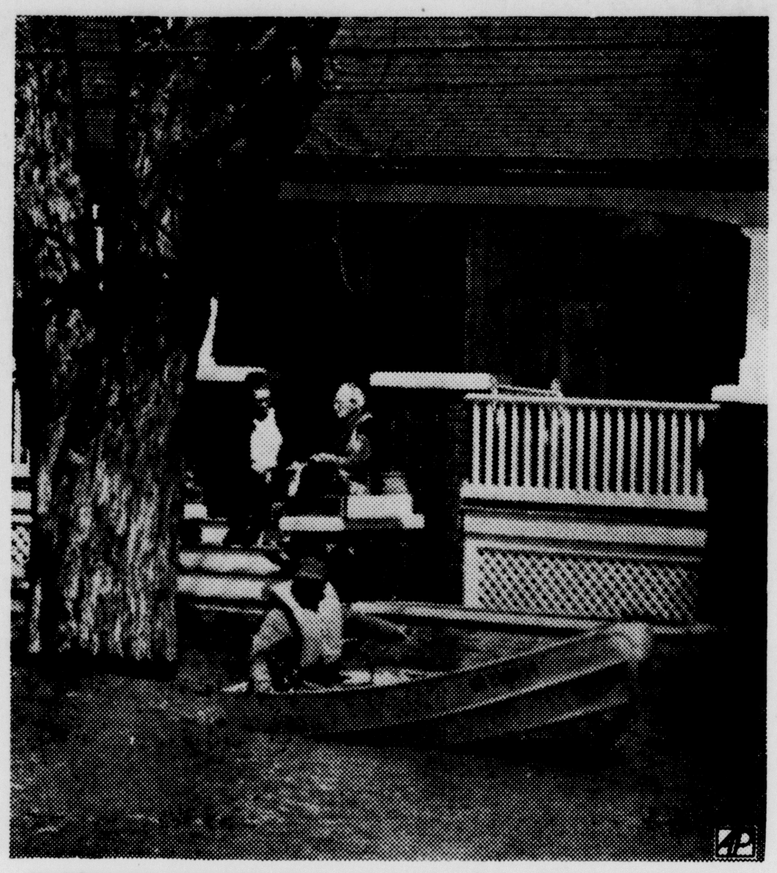

Mrs. Bucher was graduated from Cornell University with a degree in aeronautical engineering. That training has proved useful in the diagrams she makes for her books, which developed from pamphlets she prepared for her classes.

"They're really engineering schematics rather than artwork," she notes. "I think the analytical approach makes it easier for the reader to understand how to do the stitches."

AMONG the needlepoint items the author suggests are watchbands, slippers, lamp bases, typewriter covers, pillows, wall hangings, chair covers, wastebasket and tissue box covers, eyeglass cases, mirror frames and even an elegant flyswatter.

Mrs. Bucher continues her active life, slowed down only a little by the fact that she suffers from remissive spinal cancer.

"Your problems don't end when you sober up — you're just able to cope with them using the philosophy of one day at a time. Meeting the challenge of the other problem has helped me cope with this," she adds. "Every time you meet a challenge you build a little more for later."

WATERY FRONT STEP CHAT — Residents of West Alton, Mo., sit on front steps as a boat navigates a street in front of their home. Most of the residents of the town were evacuated when levees along the Mississippi River and Missouri River gave way, flooding the town.

Youth Activities

BLUE RIBBON CHAMPS

Jack Sommers, well known 4-H extension agent for Fayette County, was the guest speaker at a recent meeting of the Blue Ribbon Champs 4-H Club. "State and National Awards," was his topic for the evening. He pointed out that younger members should start now on keeping records of all their 4-H activities if they are interested in these awards. Mr. Sommers also showed slides and answered questions that were asked by members and advisers of the club.

"13 Steps to Alcoholism," was a dual report given by Health Leaders Julie Frost and Mark Holloway. Members were given a quiz on alcohol while Julie and Mark gave their report. Some of the signs of alcoholics were they have blackouts, liquor means more to them than friends, they drink more than they mean to and they start to drink alone.

Eddie Armintrout gave his safety report on "Protection Against Tornadoes." Ed told the club that the safest place to go during a tornado is a storm cellar or basement.

"Seat Belt Safety," was the topic of J. T. Perrill's safety report. J. T. stated that your chances of being injured in an accident are five times greater if you have no seat belts on.

Gary Mossbarger pointed out in his demonstration on "Caring for Sheep at the Fair," that the most important things were to keep your sheep watered, fed, and clean.

"How to Prepare a Garden," was the title of Robert Cotton's demonstration. Robert told some of the things he was going to plant this year for his project and answered the club members questions.

Jeff Smithson reported on the Program Committee meeting by reading the list of meeting dates and the speaker for each, and Raymond Mick reported that the club collected $32.27 for the Heart Fund. Roger Duff read the constitution which was approved by the club.

After the meeting, refreshments were enjoyed by all.

The same team attended both contests and consisted of Tim Anders, Anita McFadden, and Mary Wilson. The two were Mike and David McFadden.

April 1 was club enrollment deadline.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Barbed-wire fences may be harder to climb, and wooden fences harder to see through. But for sheer versatility, nothing beats the invisible fence erected around every piece of property by the laws of trespass and nuisance. Consider an example:

The Benson family lived next door to a vacant lot on which the owner kept a large pile of sand. Whenever the wind blew from that direction, sand would seep through the doors and windows of the Benson house.

Finally Benson sued the neighbor on grounds of nuisance. In court, the neighbor argued that he could not be blamed for what the wind did. But the court held it was unlawful — a breach of the invisible fence — for him to allow his sand to invade the Benson premises.

OTHER COURTS have taken a similar attitude toward leaves dropped from an overhanging tree, vines spreading into a lawn, eaves jutting over a boundary line (by a matter if inches), and sound waves from a neighbor's howling dog.

And, of course, the invisible fence also bars anyone from walking across your property without permission.

How high does the fence extend? Courts used to say it extended all the way up to heaven — a theory that, if enforced literally, would make every airplane flying overhead a trespasser.

Nowadays, your invisible fence extends only to a "reasonable" height. But still, your protection goes higher than the average housetop.

In one case a telephone company strung a wire 30 feet above a man's back yard, contending it was using only the "free and open" air. However, a court ordered the wire removed, since space that close to the ground might well be used someday by the owner himself.

"The space occupied by the wire," said the court, "was a part of his land. The law protects it from hostile occupation."

Bricklayers at work on the Goodyear Tire Service Center, Washington Square.

Although somewhat hampered by unseasonable spring weather, construction in the Washington C. H. area is booming. At least four new structures or additions to present buildings are underway as well as work on the U.S. 35 bypass. More projects are in the preliminary planning stages.

Work is progressing rapidly on the Goodyear Tire Service Center located in front of the Washington Square Shopping Center on Columbus Avenue and contractors are readying footers for concrete on the Pizza Hut Building at Elm and Cedar streets, across from Eastside School.

Roofing and siding is now being added to the new addition at the Seaway building, CCC Highway-W.

The future headquarters for the Case Power and Equipment Co., on CCC Highway-W, near the Drive-In Theatre, is taking shape, with most of the steel frame in place and some concrete work completed.

Ohio wine lover continues fight against producers

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Paul Moran, a Cincinnati lawyer, fell in love with wine and wine-making 20 years ago during a visit to the wine-making area around Hammondsport, N.Y.

Now he is embroiled in a suit against five New York State wine producers charging their wine violates Ohio law. Moran said most of his information comes from material printed by the wine companies, themselves.

Moran's suit, filed Feb. 20, names the Taylor Wine Co.; Pleasant Valley Wine Co.; Widmer Wine Cellars Inc.; Gold Seal Wine Co. and Canadaigua Industries Co.

Moran said Ohio law, passed at the urging of Ohio winemakers in 1899, requires that all wine sold in Ohio must be made of at least 75 per cent pure grape juice.

For years, Moran said, the New York State manufacturers have been adding water and sugar up to 53 per cent in their products.

He called it a "cheap industrial way of reducing acidity," but added that he never charged them with "not making good wines."

Moran insists that the law, which was modernized in 1953, should be enforced. He has amended his suit to include those makers who are using dried grapes, called extracts, in their products.

Monday, the Ohio Board of Liquor Control, announced that tests had been made on the defendants' wines and nothing harmful to health was found.

The state is not part of the suit.

"I am delighted they have that result," laughed Moran, "because I drink it too. I didn't set out to accuse them of that. I never said it was harmful."

Moran said the law he cited is not part of Ohio Liquor Law. He said the state operates under the federal standards "in permitting the sales" of wines.

"The federal standards are very minimal," he said.

The smog is so bad in Tokyo, Japan, that traffic policemen and pedestrians are forced to stop at streetside oxygen stations to breathe oxygen into their lungs.

Cite fund needs for Ohio libraries

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Library service to the homebound elderly, disadvantaged children, prisons, hospitals and rural Ohio counties will end June 30, unless $4.4 million is appropriated to the state library system, the head of the Ohio Library Association said Thursday.

A. Chapman Parsons, OLA executive director, said he will attempt to amend Gov. John J. Gilligan's $9.8 billion budget proposal to include funds needed by state libraries.

The biennium budget proposal was expected to be reported out of the House Finance Committee today. It does not now include additional funding for state libraries.

Parsons said the $4.4 million figure represents loss of federal funding as the result of President Nixon's cutbacks in social programs.

Parsons said Nixon recommended at the time that federal funding be made up by the states through revenue-sharing monies.

Ohio is expected to receive about $170 million in revenue-sharing funds over the next two years.

Ohio's public libraries are funded by the "intangible tax," which Parsons called "insufficient" to run most county library facilities. The Ohio Library Association has been helping to support these libraries through its federal funding and a yearly income of about $3.1 million from the state general revenue fund, Parsons said.

Along with the cutback in services, 116 library employes will be layed off if the additional revenue is not obtained, Parsons said.

Other services slated to be terminated Parsons said included:

Bookmobile service to 146,000 Ohioans in 21 counties.

—The state library catalogue center.

—A 70-county library unit.

—A reference and information network serving 79 libraries.

Storms hit Plains areas

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Thunderstorms rumbled across the southern Plains from central Texas to Oklahoma today in one of the few stormy centers in an otherwise calm weather picture.

Large hailstones pounded an area near Crosbyton, Tex., east of Lubbock, and winds reached 50 miles per hour, but little damage was reported.

Scattered light showers sprinkled the region from the northern Pacific coast to the Great Basin and the northern Rockies.

Dense fog settled over the coasts of Southern California and Texas and over West Virginia.

Below-freezing temperatures were confined mostly to the northern Great Lakes region, the middle and northern Mississippi Valley and the northern and central Atlantic coast states.

Temperatures before dawn ranged from 17 at Marquette, Mich., to 77 at Blythe, Calif.

Cincy deals Dodgers fourth loss in row

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The Los Angeles Dodgers have lost four games in a row and six of their first seven.

Their manager, Walter Alston, is man known for his patience but not so the Dodger fans.

Thursday night there were 14,056 of them at Dodger Stadium and, reaching for someone to blame for the club's poor start, they chose shortstop Bill Russell.

He committed an error which cost a run, failed to get to a hard ground ball which let in another and then popped out to lead off the ninth inning in the Dodgers' 5-2 loss to the Cincinnati Reds.

The fans booed and afterward an emotional Russell said, quietly, "They pay their money, they can do what they want."

But Cincinnati Manager Sparky Anderson wasn't anywhere near as quiet as Russell as he defended the young Dodger shortstop.

"He's a fine athlete and he can play," said Anderson. "I'm really disappointed in these fans. That infield may be pretty to look at from the stands but it's terrible to play on. It's so hard. Those balls come off the bat like bullets. It's self defense."

Cincinnati, having swept the two games in Los Angeles, continues its West Coast tour Friday night in San Francisco in the first of a four-game series with the Giants. Ross Grimsely, 1-0, will start against San Francisco's Ron Bryant Friday night.

Characteristically, the Dodgers loaded the bases in the first inning against Cincinnati starter Jack Billingham, but managed only one run.

Against the Reds that's hardly enough. Cincinnati pounded out a dozen hits off Andy Messersmith who drew the loss. Seven of the 12 hits were produced by the Reds' big three at the top of the order—Pete Rose (double, single), Joe Morgan (double, single) and Bobby Tolan double, two singles. Tony Perez also had three singles.

Cincinnati scored twice in the third, added another run in the fifth, an unearned run in the seventh and one more in the ninth.

Ron Bays turned in his best effort in the mile run and won the event with a 4:58.3 clocking. Senior Gardner Cobb was defeated for the first time this season in the 440-yard dash as Hillsboro's Jim Buck won the race in 53.2, despite Cobb's best clocking of the spring.

Glenn Gifford and junior Jim Reno also turned in their top clockings of the year in the 100-yard dash and low hurdle events, but were beaten.

Miami Trace will participate in the annual Circleville Relays Saturday afternoon.

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— There's still a chance Cincinnati can win a proposed new hockey arena for its downtown riverfront, but the city must come up with a proposal within two weeks, according to Mayor Theodore Berry.

MT cage banquet speaker April 30

Defense key to Knight's success

It took young Bobby Knight only two seasons to install the discliplined control offense and hard-nosed man-to-man defense that characterized his teams at West Point after coming to Indiana University.

The Hoosiers took to it so well they captured their first undisputed Big Ten basketball championship since 1958 with an 11-3 record, posted a smart 22-6 all-games record and finished third in the NCAA tournament after losing to UCLA and Indiana was ranked sixth in the final Associated Press national basketball poll.

KNIGHT, who was a clear-cut winner in a poll of 40 Midwestern sportswriters and broadcasters for Big Ten Coach of the Years honors this winter, will be the featured speaker at the annual Miami Trace basketball banquet at 6:30 p.m. Monday, April 30.

The banquet will honor members of head coach Jan Stauffer's highly-prized 16-7 Miami Trace team which bounced back from a dismal 5-6 start to win a South Central Ohio League co-championship, the Rio Grande Class AAA sectional crown, plus the Southeastern District title before being ousted by highly-touted Columbus South in the Columbus Class AAA Regional tourney.

Tickets for the booster-club sponsored banquet can be purchased from Stauffer at the high school, at the high school office or from any member of the Miami Trace Booster Club. The ducats priced at $2.50 per person, can also be purchased at the Washington Paint and Glass Co., 125 N. Fayette St.

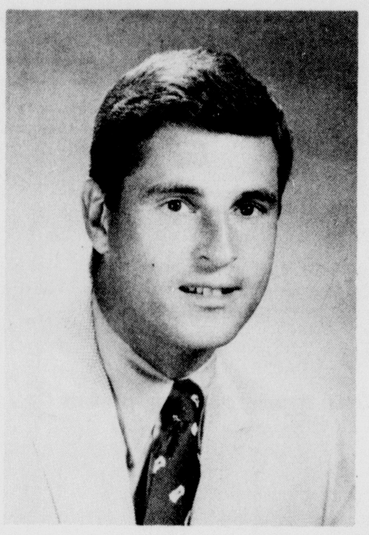

Defense is the key to Knight's brand of basketball and he played it to the hilt in six years as head coach at Army.

Taking over at West Point as a 24-year-old head coach, the Ohio State product built teams, despite the disadvantage of Academy height restrictions, which led the nation in defense in 1968-69-70, ranked second in 1971 and third in 1967. They produced a six-year record of 102-50, four invitations to the National Invitation Tournament, Army's best-ever season (22-6) and highest-ever national ranking, 16th in 1968.

The 32-year-old Hoosier head coach, who won ten letters as a prep athlete in Orville, was a 1962 graduate of Ohio State University and a three-year member of the Buckeye teams which won the 1960 NCAA title, Big Ten championships in 1960-61-62 and posted an overall mark of 78-6.

It also exposed him to the Big Ten's most successful coach, Fred Taylor, whose techniques and philosophy have shaped Knight's approach to the game and coaching it.

"Next to my father Fred has had more effect on my life than any other person," says Knight.

BOBBY KNIGHT

AFTER graduation with a degree in history and government Knight was an assistant coach at Cuyhoga Falls High School a year before entering the army, where he was assigned to be assistant to Tates Locke at West Point. After two years Locke, now head coach at Clemson, left to become coach at Miami University in 1965 and Knight was named to succeed him at the Academy.

Knight's first Indiana team finished 15th in the nation in defense, allowing opponents an average of only 67.1 points per game and this year the Hoosier head mentor successfully gambled with a youth experiment as he blended freshmen Quinn Buckner and Jim Crews and sophomore Steve Green with veterans Steve Downing and John Ritter for a winning combination.

In demand as a clinic instructor, Knight spent a month in Spain last year, lectured in Hawaii and this summer assisted veteran Hank Iba in the U.S. Olympic selection camp. He was also tapped for coaching and Clinic duty in South America.

Beulah Park loses spring racing day

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Beulah Park will not request an additional day for its spring thoroughbred racing meeting after losing Thursday's nine-race card because of snow.

"We probably will seek an extra day for the fall meeting from the racing commission," said an official of the suburban track.

Beulah races 31 days in the spring and 19 in the fall this year.

Three NBA quints facing elimination

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Superstitious?

Three National Basketball Association teams facing playoff elimination, better not be. Chicago, Milwaukee and Atlanta all trail their best-of-7 postseason series 3-2 with Game 6 scheduled for tonight, Friday the 13th.

In the only pro basketball playoff action Thursday night, the Utah Stars defeated the Indiana Pacers 124-107 to take the opening game of the American Basketball Association's Western Division finals.

The defending champion Los Angeles Lakers will try to finish off the Chicago Bulls, Golden State goes for the wrapup victory over the Milwaukee Bucks and Boston tries to eliminate the Atlanta Hawks in tonight's NBA action. There are no ABA playoff games scheduled for tonight.

Chicago and Atlanta will at least have the home court advantage going for them and in the series between the Bulls and Los Angeles, that advantage has been a factor so far. In the first five games of that series, the home team has won each time.

"Our fans really helped," said Los Angeles Coach Bill Sharman of Tuesday night's victory which gave the Lakers the edge. "They were behind us every step of the way. In a playoff situation when the games get more physical. fans can really pick you up."

Boston, which dominated the first two games of its series against Atlanta only to drop the next two, staged a second half comeback to take Game 5.

Golden State has been doing just that at Milwaukee's expense, winning two straight to go ahead in the series. The Warriors would love to finish the Bucks off at home and avoid a return trip to snowbound Madison, Wisc.

No-hitter escapes McNally

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Dave McNally is in his April rut again.

Baltimore's veteran lefthander barely missed a nine-inning no-hitter against Detroit Thursday, finally getting a 10-inning, three-hit, 1-0 victory over the Tigers thanks to a throwing error by Detroit pitcher Mickey Lolich.

It was McNally's second start of the young baseball season— and his second three-hit shutout.

He started off last season with a pair of shutouts, a onerun game and two more shutouts before tailing off to a 13-17 record. That snapped a string of four 20-victory seasons for the 30-year-old pitcher.

In other American League games, the Chicago White Sox came from behind to beat Oakland 6-3, the New York Yankees stopped Cleveland 5-0, Texas defeated Kansas City 4-0 and Boston's game at Milwaukee was postponed due to snow and cold weather.

The unbeaten Orioles got their fourth victory of the season when Mark Belanger led off the 10th with a single and stole second. After Merv Rettenmund walked, Bobby Grich bunted. Lolich fielded the ball and tried for a forceout at third, but his throw was wild and Belanger came around to score.

"I'm throwing the ball better now than in the past couple years," said McNally, who handcuffed the Tigers over the first nine innings, when the only Tiger hit was a routine fly ball by shortstop Ed Brinkman, which Baltimore right fielder Rettenmund lost in the sun. It bounced off Rettenmund's right elbow for a triple.

Ken Henderson hit a grand slam home run in the eighth inning to lift the White Sox over Oakland. The A's, who got a two-run homer from Gene Tenace in the second inning, had taken a 3-2 lead in the top of the eighth when Chicago relief pitcher Terry Forster walked Sal Bando with the bases loaded.

But the White Sox came back in the bottom half of the inning, loading the bases on a single by Pat Kelly and walks to Carlos May and Bill Melton. Then Henderson, acquired from San Francisco in a major off-season trade, delivered his basesloaded blast off Rollie Fingers.

The Yankees' Steve Kline blanked Cleveland on a pair of singles, by Jack Brohamer in the fifth inning and George Hendrick in the sixth. Kline's performance came on the heels of a two-hit shutout hurled by the Yankees' Mel Stottlemyre against the Indians Wednesday.

"That's the way it should be done,"noted Stottlemyre, approvingly.

Dick Bosman limited the Royals to one hit over seven innings and finished with a threehitter as Texas snapped Kansas City's four-game winning streak. Amos Otis singled in the fourth inning for the only Royals hit until Paul Schaal and Fred Patek came through with eighth-inning singles.

Gabriel eyes minor league

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Roman Gabriel's attorney says he has reached a tentative agreement for the unhappy Los Angeles Rams quarterback to play with a minor league club next season, despite threats he could be dropped from major league football.

But there were indications Gabriel was using the proposed contract with the Las Vegas Casinos to force a trade to some other National Football League club. Gabriel's attorney, Ed Masry, declined to comment on the matter after arriving here Thursday night, saying only, "Roman wants to be traded. If this helps him to be trade then as far as he's concerned it's beneficial."

Masry later met with owners of the Casinos and in a joint statement said the tentative agreement called for the 6-foot-4 signal caller to be paid $100,000 for an eight-game summer season with the team and be free to report to an NFL team by mid-August.

Gabriel, who has played 11 years for the Rams, still has two years remaining in his contract. But he has been seeking a trade and Masry said he wanted to join the Washington Redskins, coached by former Rams head coach George Allen.

Aaron out of Monsanto tournament

PENSACOLA, Fla. (AP) — "I tried, but I just couldn't quite get with the program."

Masters champion Tommy Aaron, looking tired and drawn, was explaining his withdrawal after shooting a fat 77 Thursday in the first round of the $150,000 Monsanto Open Golf Tournament.

"I knew full well what to expect," said Aaron, who has had only a few hours of sleep since his Masters triumph Monday. "I'm just mentally and emotionally exhausted.

"I felt an obligation to play. I'd committed to the tournament and I was obliged. But after that 77 it's just hopeless for me to try to continue."

Homero Blancas, the happy hombre from Houston, held the first round lead with a 67, most of it built on his delicate touch around the slick, hard-to-hold greens that sent scores exceptionally high in this event that often produces a number of relatively low rounds.

Veteran Doug Sanders was alone in second with a 68 that he described as "not too exciting. Just another day at the office."

New Zealand left-hander Bob Charles, Chuck Courtney and Bob Wynn, grouped at 69, were the only others in the 144 man field able to break 70 on the 6,679 yard, par 71 Pensacola Country Club course.

Australian Bruce Crampton, who said he hit only six greens, headed a large group at 70. Defending champion Dave Hill had a fat 75 and must improve if he is to make the cut for the final two rounds Saturday and Sunday.

McCovey sparks Frisco powder keg

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

When Willie McCovey speaks, everyone listens respectfully. When he hits, everyone watches admiringly.

The biggest Giant of them all gave the crowd something to watch Thursday with two home runs in one inning that carried San Francisco to a 9-3 victory over the Houston Astros.

After carrying his big stick, the 6-foot-4, 230-pound first baseman spoke softly as reporters listened respectfully in the clubhouse.

"It didn't even occur to me that I was coming up again in the same inning," said the quiet, unassuming McCovey.

McCovey's two shots, his third and fourth of the season, drove in four runs and highlighted an eight-run fourth inning that sewed up the game.

In the National League's other games, the Montreal Expos trimmed the Philadelphia Phillies 5-3; the Pittsburgh Pirates turned back the Chicago Cubs 6-0; the New York Mets nipped the St. Louis Cardinals 2-1; the Atlanta Braves beat the San Diego Padres 3-2 and the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the Los Angeles Ddogers 5-2.

McCovey's feast on Houston pitching marked the first time in 24 years of baseball that a National Leaguer has hit two homers in one inning. Sid Gordon did it July 31, 1949, when the Giants were in New York California's Rick Reichardt was the last man to do it was in the American League, in 1966.

McCovey's power show made it easy for starter Tom Bradley, who secured his first National League victory. Houston's Ken Forsch, victim of McCovey's first clout of the inning, was the losing pitcher.

Jorge Roque's first major league grand slam homer keyed a five-run first inning that carried Montreal past Philadelphia. Roque's smash spoiled Jim Lonborg's debut before the Phillies' home fans and saddled the former American Leaguer with his first National League loss.

Home runs by Milt May and Manny Sanguillen and the fourhit pitching of Bob Moose helped Pittsburgh maintain its perfect record with a victory over Chicago. The Pirates' fourth straight victory was fashioned in near-freezing temperatures at Three Rivers Stadium before a sparse crowd of 3,764.

The New York Mets tagged Bob Gibson for two runs in the first inning and Tom Seaver and reliever Phil Hennigan made them stand up for their victory over the Cardinals. John Milner singled home Bud Harrelson with the first run and Cleon Jones later drove in the winning run with a sacrifice fly.

Hank Aaron broke a tie with a solo home run in the sixth inning to lead Atlanta over San Diego. The blast was his second of the year and 675th of his career, moving him 39 behind Babe Ruth's all-time career record of 714.

All in the family: they're cymbal makers!

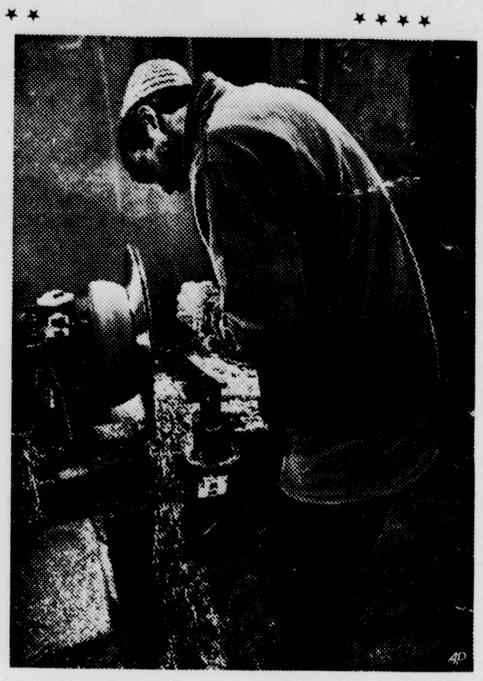

By RODNEY PRIDER

ISTANBUL (AP) — What do the Grenadier Guards, Armenian churches, jazz bands and Carnegie Hall have in common? They all use cymbals — tinkling thin ones, clashing big ones — and they all use cymbals made in Istanbul by a family which has been making them since the early 17th century.

* * * *

* * * *

MUSIC MAKERS — The Zilcan family in Istanbul has been making cymbals since 1623. The formula they use is handed down from father to son and still is kept a solemn secret. In the two pictures above, a workman is shown working on a cymbal and holding the finished product.

The Zilcan family has been at work since 1623, producing nothing but the finest cymbals, from a formula handed down from father to son and still kept a solemn secret.

They make their own alloy, cast their own molds, and hammer, batter scrape and polish them into the final product, which they treat as tenderly as hi-fi fans treat their most cherished records.

The end product, they say, is the best in the world, and the list of customers is impressive. Some 2,000 to 3,000 pairs are exported each year, most of them to America, at prices ranging from $20 to $100.

THE ZILCANS, an Armenian family, have only a small share of the world cymbal market, and the American branch of the family, established at Weymouth, Mass., for the past 50 years produces many more than are made here.

The Zilcans attribute the quality of their instruments to their secret formula, and the fact that all the stages, including mixing the alloy of copper and tin, are done in the same workshop.

The workshop is a one-room, high-roofed shed in the slums outside the 4th century city walls of Istanbul, where it stands cheek by jowl with live animal traders, auto repair shops and fitters and turners.

Inside nine workmen, some Turks and some Armenians, hammer and hone and burnish and polish. The noise they create makes conversation below a bellow impossible.

"The finer tuning is done at the end of the day, when the noise stops," shouted Kerope Zilcan, 60, the cousin of the present owner Mikhail, 65.

THE CYMBALS come in four thicknesses — paper-thin, thin, medium, and medium-thick, and in any number of diameters from 10 inches to 24 inches, depending on the specification of the buyer.

The paper-thin and thin cymbals are used by dance-bands, the medium by symphony orchestras, and the thick by military bands such as that of the Grenadier Guards.

The firm of Toledo Brothers handles the orders and the exporting, and their representative calls each night at the workshop to collect the 20 or so cymbals produced during the day.

These have to be picked up gingerly by the edges — touch one and the perspiration has to be immediately rubbed off with a rag or the tone will be spoiled, Keroke Zilcan said.

CYMBALS have been in use as musical instruments since the Bronze Age, and are probably the oldest musical instruments man has. Primitive tribes in New Guinea and Australia use a wide variety of objects — stones, shells and sticks to clash together to maintain the rhythm for their songs, and these certainly predate primitive wind instruments made from hollow branches and the much later stringed instruments made from animal sinews.

The Zilcan family cannot trace their origins back to pre-history, but they still have records to show they were producing cymbals for the "Mehtar" bands of the Ottoman army's Jannissary corps, which terrified the armies of Europe with their shrill pipes and clashing cymbals.

More peacefully, they still provide the Armenian Patriarchal church here with the cymbals used to accompany the choir at the Liturgy.

HOME TOUR PLANNED — The Georgian-Heritage House, built in 1833, is headquarters for the Fairfield Heritage Association's tour of homes May 5 and 6 in Lancaster, Ohio. This landmark, purchased by the association from funds accumulated from previous tours and gifts, is under restoration.

Bomb experts check liner

SOUTHAMPTON, England (AP) — Bomb experts and frogmen are making a thorough search of the liner Queen Elizabeth 2 before she sails Saturday with more than 2,000 Jews going to Israel's 25th anniversary celebrations.

The QE2 docked late Wednesday from Cherbourg, and visitors were barred from the pier as part of the extensive security precautions against Arab terrorist attack.

The British Defense Ministry said armed guards and bomb disposal experts will sail with the ship. The ministry tried to get the Cunard Line to call off the trip, but the line refused.

Do You Have Hypoglycemia?

The mystique and confusion about hypoglycemia, or abnormally low sugar level in the blood, is attaining enormous propsitions.

It not unusual for a medical term to capture the attention and imagination of homemade diagnosticians.

Now it seems as if every conceivable symptom had been explained away by hypoglycemia enthusiasts.

It has been my fixed rule not to describe or identify symptoms of any medical condition I write about. The reason is that many readers, already tense and concerned, find it easy to say, "That's exactly what I have. Therefore I am sure that I have that illness."

The fact is that symptoms of various illnesses often resemble each other closely and thus usually cannot be pinpointed to one particular disease.

Today I am deliberately departing from this rule in order to emphasize how ridiculous it can be for anyone to make his own diagnosis of hypoglycemia simply by identifying with one or a combination of the following symptoms which can be associated with hypoglycemia.

Headache, fatigue, palpitation of the heart, restlessness, double vision, emotional upsets, sweating, mental disturbances, allergic reaction, changes in personality, nervousness, dizziness, hunger-weakness, tingling sensations in the fingers and the toes, drowsiness, inability to concentrate.

It is true that these symptoms occur in cases of hypoglycemia, but every one of these symptoms, single or in combination, can also be produced by a wide variety of conditions totally unrelated to hypoglycemia.

Hypoglycemia is a very definite, complex body disfunction.

There are two types: the organic type is associated with tumors of the pancreas, liver disfunction, hormone deficiencies especially related to the adrenal gland, and other intricate changes in the normal body function.

In this, and in the second type, there is an increased production of insulin.

The second, or functional, type of hypoglycemia may be associated with poor nutrition, severe muscular exertion, and faulty metabolism of sugar.

This second type is said to be responsible for the symptoms that have captured the imagination of super-enthusiasts of hypoglycemia.

There is no guesswork about this important condition. When it is suspected, very definite and conclusive tests of the blood sugar level can prove or deny the existence of the disorder.

The "five-hour glucose tolerance test," blood sugar studies while fasting, and a tolbutamide tolerance test are a few of the methods by which true hypoglycemia can be diagnosed. Once the diagnosis is made, treatment can be established, and the condition kept in control in most instances.

Many readers have written to say, "I know I have hypoglycemia and would like to know what to do about it."

The single most important thing to do is to make sure that you really have hypoglycemia by having your own physician check on your suspicions.

The alcoholic has been one of the most vulnerable people for the new fad — exploitation of hypoglycemia. Injections of cortisone or ACTH are not the answer to alcoholism, nor to hypoglycemia.

Only your own physician can direct you to the proper diagnosis and the proper control of this intricate disorder.

Meatless days are proposed by consumerists

WASHINGTON (AP) — The newest national consumer group wants Americans not to eat or buy meat on Tuesdays and Thursdays, and to prepare for a national day of protest against food prices next month.

The battle cry for continued meat boycotts was sounded Wednesday as 150 women, all boycott leaders, met on Capitol Hill as the National Consumers Congress.

"I really think the consumer movement started here today," said congress chairman Betty Furness, New York City's commissioner of consumer affairs.

The group immediately called for two meatless days each week and designated May 5 as a national day of protest against high food prices with demonstrations scheduled across the country.

C. of C. lays plans for annual meeting

Plans for the 1973 Washington C. H. Area Chamber of Commerce annual meeting and program planning for the 1973-74 year were discussed Thursday at the Chamber's monthly board of directors meeting.

Fred L. Domenico, the 1973-74 president-elect, announced that the annual Chamber meeting will be held June 5 in the Mahan Building on the Fairgrounds.

Details for the meeting will be presented at the board session in May.

The board also established a format to be used in planning for 1973-74. The membership has been surveyed to determine program needs, and a committee will be appointed to draft a preliminary program for the board.

A budget committee also will be appointed to review the needs of the coming year, and its members will present a preliminary report to the board. The program of work will be formally announced at the annual meeting. The membership drive will open June 6.

Board members heard reports on agriculture, the annual Business - Industry - Education Day, a March 14 legislative conference held in Columbus and the progress of the physician-search committee.

HUGH WILSON, chairman of the chamber's agricultural committee, reported that the Chamber of Commerce and the Fayette County Extension Service worked together this past week on a public relations program for farmers. WBNS-TV (Channel, 10) in Columbus reported on Fayette County agriculture, a board members felt this was successful.

Plans for the annual BIE Day, which will be held in Washington Senior and Miami Trace High schools next month, have been completed, according to Bruce Galloway, chairman of the chamber's educational committee.

Galloway said panelists have been selected for the May 2-3 program and all that remains is to finalize plans for the banquet. The theme of this year's BIE Day program will be "Tell It Like It Is."

A report on the spring legislative conference held in Columbus was presented by George Winkle, head of the Community Improvement Corp. and a member of the Chamber board. Winkle stated that there was joint participation at the meeting by the Chamber, city and CIC and that those attending felt that it was one of the most successful sessions of its kind.

James Dunn, executive vice president of the Chamber, presented a report from the physicians committee. The board discussed the committee's progress and agreed that this program should be continued in the coming year. The physicians committee was successful in bringing Dr. Kwok Kuen Wong, who specializes in obstetrics and gynecology, to Washington C. H.

President Jerry Sheppard reported that preliminary ballots for new members of the board of directors have been returned at a good pace. He said 5 p.m. today is the deadline for returning the preliminary ballots.

Grangers discuss price rollbacks

NEW MARTINSBURG — Pomona Grange did not take any formal stand on a possible rollback of prices to check inflation, but during the informal discussion following legislative reports by Otties Smith and County Deputy Richard Carson, the opposition was unanimous.

Master Nathaniel Tway conducted the business session at which the subordinate Granges made their routine reports. Clarence Taylor reported for Marshall Grange, Gary Hidy for Good Will and Winfred Morgan for Forest Shade.

Deputy Carson read an invitation to the Fayette County Grangers to attend the Grange-sponsored Friendly Hills Camp, near Zanesville, and announced that Rural Life Sunday will be observed June 10 at the camp with a worship service and potluck dinner.

The theme of the program presented by Mrs. Charles Cook, lecturer, was "Welcome Spring." It included readings and poem recitations by Mrs. Robert Ritter, Mrs. Florence Bethards, Mrs. Maurice Sollars and Mrs. Cook.

After adjournment there was an auction of baked goods which netted $24 for the Grange treasury. Forest Shade Grange served refreshments.

Gilligan's net worth $306,602

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan today listed the net worth of he and his wife at $306,602, an increase of $48,347 over a similar report he made last year.

Gilligan said the increase was due primarily to a boost in value of their securities and personal property.

In making public his net worth, Gilligan called for "strong, effective legislation to insure ethical conduct by state employes and officials.

It was the fourth consecutive year Gilligan has filed a personal net worth statement. He requires all state employes under his jurisdiction earning more than $15,000 a year to disclose their finances.

"The people of this state and of the United States continue to view their public officials with distrust," he said.

'Scandals at every level of government, the Watergate incident, secret campaign funds, all add to this general feeling that politicians are on the make and on the take," he said.

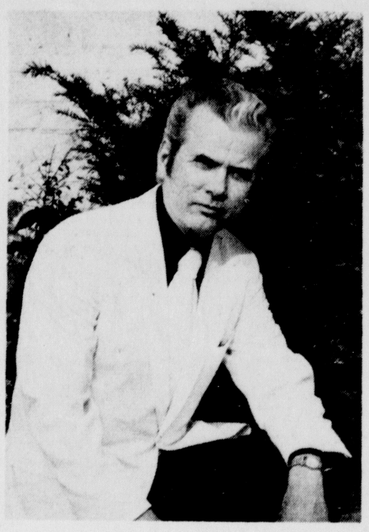

"Effective ethics legislation, such as that now under consideration in the House, is essential if we are to turn around this tide of mistrust," Gilligan said.

Gilligan noted that while his total income was approximately four times that of the average workingman, his state income tax was nearly 12 times as much.

"This is the real equity of this tax reform program," Gilligan said. "I pay more because I can afford more, and that is as it should be."

Gilligan's state income tax return showed he paid $787.50 based on taxable income of $37,750, less $1,500 for three exemptions.

A total of $827.86 has been withheld from his salary during the year and he had paid $100 in estimated tax payments. The Gilligans, therefore, would get a $140.36 refund.

EVANGELIST — Ed Bouseman, of Lynchburg, will conduct a seven-day revival, April 16-22, at the New Holland Church of Christ. Gerald Stemm, of Circleville, will be the song leader. Services will begin at 7:30 p.m. The Rev. Howard McGinnis is the church pastor.

New Holland group seeks blood donors

The Christian Women's Fellowship of the New Holland Church of Christ has started lining up donors for the Red Cross Blood Bank's mobile unit when it comes here on Good Friday.

And the fact that it will be here on the day of a religious festival is not expected to make the Fellowship's sponsorship any easier.

The mobile unit equipment will be set up in the First Christian Church from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m. The quota, which had been 150 pints for many years, has been increased by Blood Bank officials to 160 pints. While the mobile unit is at the First Christian Church the community Good Friday service will be in progress from noon until 3 p.m. in the First Presbyterian Church.

Mrs. Marvin Landman (495-5737) and Mrs. Howard Bryant (335-4690) are co-chairmen of the Women's Fellowship committee which already has started calling for volunteers and making appointments for them

Mrs. Donald Moore is chairman of the Red Cross chapter's blood program. She succeeds Mrs. Leonard Korn and Mrs. Robert P. Wilson.
